A branch office of the Illinois Attorney General's Bureau of Consumer Fraud and Protection is scheduled to open in Elk Grove Village Aug. 15.

The office, manned by local volunteers, will be serving all residents in villages surrounding Elk Grove to Schaumburg and Niles where other offices are located.

Situated in the conference room of the village hall, directly behind the police station on 666 Landmeter Road, the office will be open from 9 a.m. to noon each Saturday.

This is a tentative scheduling according to Tom King, one of the volunteers, until the demand for services in the area is determined.

Other volunteers include Mrs. Jeanne Seidlin, Mrs. Pat Peacock and Miss Kirsten Reeder.

"This is a volunteer effort between the state's attorney's bureau and the village," Village Pres. Jack Pahl said.

WILLIAM KUTZA, director of the branch office, will help the volunteers in responding to complaints when necessary, he said, but would not work out of the Elk Grove office.

"The rationale behind the branch office is that local people know the consumer," he said. "They shop at the same stores and may have the same complaints."

Any type of complaints will be handled at the office, but Kutza cautioned that the customer contact the company with his problem before coming to the consumer fraud office.

"Many people are afraid to contact the company when the company may always offer a refund on bad merchandise according to policy," he said.

"There are a myriad of ways the consumer can get cheated. You name the complaint and we've had it," he said.

Pahl indicated that most complaints in Elk Grove involved door-to-door salesmen, and sales involving air conditioners.

COMPLAINT FORMS will be available at the village hall during the week for people who want to fill them out and bring them in on Saturday mornings.

Pamphlets will be available at the office with tips on how to avoid fraud. One is entitled, "20 Ways Not to be Gyped," and the other is "Your Protection Against Fraudulent Sales, Advertising and Loans."

WILLIAM KUTZA

The office will accept insurance complaints but will not handle them through the fraud office. They will be forwarded to the Illinois insurance director, according to Kutza.

The mobile unit will also be available to consumers for complaints, Kutza said. He explained that upon prior request the unit can be available any time to supplement the service of the local office.

The Elk Grove office is the only group operating on a volunteer basis, Kutza said. He added, "As far as our office is concerned we hope this will be a model arrangement."

Brooks: Future Of Sidewalk Dim

The future of the Sidewalk Academy in Rolling Meadows is dim, according to the man who has helped bring speakers to the lecture series.

In an indictment of the city, yesterday Clyde Brooks said the "overwhelming apathy and indifference" of the community to the series may mean it will be moved to another location. Brooks, who heads Educational Laboratories in Elk Grove is also a manpower director in the county Office of Economic Opportunity.

Brooks said the decision to move the academy will be made on the basis of the attendance. He did not say where the academy might be moved. The present location is Sacred Heart of Mary High School at 2800 Central Rd.

"I feel the concept," of the academy, "to promote community education is desirable," Brooks said. "We have speakers that will appeal to the ultra-right, liberals and moderates."

"But for some reason," he continued, "the community has not seen fit to support this concept of community education."

Attendance at two of the first three sessions was less than 50 people. Over 100 people showed up to hear representatives of the Black Panther party.

Brooks said that there has been a "noticeable absence of ministers, of educators and of civic organization representatives."

BROOKS THEN leveled a blast at Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland J. Meyer saying he refused to be involved in the academy because he felt that criminals were participating in the series. This is not the case, Brooks said.

Meyer's comments constituted "program slander that is not in the best interests of a free and open society," Brooks said.

"I just can't see how people can be so indifferent and draw conclusions based on mis-information," said Brooks.

The purpose of the academy, he said, is to provide opposing points of view so people can "make up their own minds about positions they want to take."

Brooks said he knew what to expect from the people he called the "ultra right" but was depressed "with the liberal who professes so many things in rhetorical terms, but who is absent from activities designed to help man understand his fellow man."

"If the community does not want to support this type of program, there are other communities that want it," he said.

The academy, he said, is now in debt. "We had hoped to raise money for a drug abuse program for the young people," Brooks said. "Lord knows, we need it out here."

The lack of interest in the Sidewalk Academy, he said, may be part of a larger "mental health" problem in the Northwest suburban area.

THIS PROBLEM is illustrated by the attitude of many people toward low income housing in the area, the attitudes of people who speak different languages, have different skin color and different religion, he said.

Three Cited At Dance Convention

Three Elk Grove Village residents received certificates of merit for participation in the Student Cavalcade of Dance Masters at a National Association of Dance convention held in Chicago.

The girls are Linda Feller, 816 Bonita Ave.; Gayle Evans, 804 Creighton Ave., and Debby Dunning, 847 Bonita Ave.

The girls and teacher Mrs. Lori Walker attended the convention as part of the summer school dance program at Elk Grove High School.

Other area girls who received certificates are Debby Jendrycki, 650 Kathleen Drive; and Edie Landise, 124 Sandy Lane; both of Des Plaines.

Attended Army Medical School

George W. Warneck Jr., formerly of Elk Grove Village, is presently attending the U.S. Army Medical Field Service School at Ft. Sam Houston, Texas.

Warneck was commissioned a Second Lt. in the Army at Ft. Riley, Kansas in 1968 after graduating from Loyola University in Chicago. He received a bachelor of science degree.

Warneck is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Warneck Sr., 119 Clearmont Drive.

Part of the problem may be seen in what Brooks called the "increase in the number of alcoholics" and increasing "drug dependency."

Brooks said people may be staying away from the academy because they feel "threatened." These "insecure" people, he said, are afraid that "some of the speakers represent an illness that can be communicated."

Tonight's speaker, the Rev. George Clements, Brooks described as a "dynamic personality, the kind of Christian we need more of in society."

Rev. Clements was the kind of "activist Jesus Christ was all about," Brooks said.

He will be speaking on "Jesus Christ, the Revolutionary." The program starts at 8 p.m. Admission is $1.50 for students and $2 for adults.

Firms Locate In Park

Three more sites have been sold in the southern section of the 588-acre Industrial Park development in Schaumburg Township, making a total of 49 lots sold since its opening in September.

The $200 million park, planned by Bennett and Kahnweiler, industrial developers, includes sites for light industrial manufacturers and warehouses.

Two lots were sold to Perlman and Zemon, contractors, and the third lot was sold for offices of Elk Grove Engineering.

Neither company has submitted a building schedule to Bennett and Kahnweiler, so specific uses of the land has not yet been determined.

Land titles will not be given to the buyers until water and sewage facilities are installed to the satisfaction of the buyer.

Several Hanover Park residents have been concerned that their sewage treatment plant will be overloaded because the industrial park empties into it.

However, James Dana of Bennett and Kahnweiler said that by the time the sewage empties into the Hanover Park area, it will have been already treated twice.

"We couldn't get a permit to attach to them (Hanover Park) without the permission of the Metropolitan Sanitary District, and they wouldn't give us a permit unless they were sure it would not overload," Dana said.

Schaumburg Plan Commissioner Robert Link said, "I don't think an industrial area could cause a problem like that."

When completed, taxes from the industrial park are expected to bring local school districts and other taxing bodies about $6 million a year.

The park, which is being industrialized after the successful Centex Industrial Park in Elk Grove Village, is only one of 718 industrial parks developed by Bennett and Kahnweiler.

The Elgin-O'Hare expressway will run through the center of the park, and is expected to be completed by 1973.

The park is also 10 minutes from the Milwaukee Road piggy-back ramp at Bensenville and in close proximity to the Chicago and North Western R.R. ramp at Proviso.

The Lighter Side

He's Really 'Astute'

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — My friend Rogers, who took a course in elementary psychology about 30 years ago, claims he has discovered a new personality-intelligence evaluation technique that is both simpler and more reliable than existing methods.

He explained it to me the other day as we were driving along Pennsylvania Avenue past the vast excavation from which the new $100 million FBI Building eventually will emerge.

"By their bumper stickers ye shall know them," said Rogers, who tends to speak in proverbs when he discovers something.

"What does that mean?" I said.

"I was just thinking of all the money that the FBI wastes on security checks and similar investigations," he replied. "In many cases, it could find out everything it needed to know about a person just by looking at his car number."

Dick West

"PEOPLE REVEAL a tremendous amount of information about themselves on their car windows and bumpers.

"Properly analyzed, bumper stickers provide deep insights into political instincts, prejudices, economic status, education, age, religion, ethnic and regional backgrounds and cultural standards."

I said, "How does bumper sticker analysis work?"

"It works like a political poll," Rogers said. "By examining a few key precincts, pollsters can project the vote for an entire state."

"There also are key bumper stickers that an analyst learns to recognize and interpret." I said, "Could you give me an example?"

"SURE. SEE THAT car just ahead of us? It has a Harvard decal on the rear window, an American flag decal on the trunk and an 'America — Love It or Leave It' sticker on the bumper."

"The car is owned by a middle aged, second-generation American who makes pretty good money as a construction worker and admires Spiro Agnew. He barely finished high school but he has a son in Harvard."

"He was proud of the boy at first. Then a generation gap developed. The kid let his hair grow, became an antiwar militant and got busted for smoking pot. Now his old man is ready to disown him."

I said, "That's amazing. How could you tell that was what the stickers meant?"

"The guy driving the car lives down the street from me."

New Law Boosts 4-Quarter School

High School Dist. 214, which is studying the possibility of adopting some form of expanded schedule such as a four-quarter system or an expanded school day, now has a legislative tool to aid such a change.

Gov. Richard Ogilvie recently signed Senate Bill 1488 into law, which sets up a procedure that allows school districts to develop innovative schedules under state law.

In part, it states, "Any school district may, by resolution of its board, operate one or more schools within the district on a full school year plan approved by the superintendent of public instruction."

The bill also states that such boards must devise a plan so that students attend a minimum of 180 days of classes a year. Also, no teacher may be required to teach more than 185 days a year.

RODERICK McLENNAN, assistant superintendent for instruction, stressed that the legislation came up partially as a result of the Valley View 45-15 plan in Romeoville, southwest of Chicago.

That plan allows staggered shifts of students to attend school for 45 days, then take 15 days off. It is one of few such plans across the country.

McLennan said that under the new legislation, the district's summer school might be expanded further to allow for greater course credit. He said the district would need all-day, eight-week summer sessions to approach the requirements for an additional quarter.

A committee of 75 persons, including citizens, teachers, students and administrators, have recommended that the district go to a four-quarter plan. Their recommendation will go to the school board this fall.

Deborah Patanella Weds

Aqua and white was the color scheme for the June 20 wedding of Deborah Ellen Patanella of Arlington Heights and Robert Snyder Howe of Hanover, Pa. The couple exchanged vows and rings at two in the afternoon in St. Peter Lutheran Church in a setting of white altar bouquets and bridal attendants gowned in aqua silk with nosegays of white and aqua daisies.

Even the 5-year-old flower girl, Darlene Graham of Palmyra, N.Y., a niece of the bride, was dressed in aqua silk and carried a basket of white and aqua daisies.

Parents of the bride and groom are the Joseph R. Patanellas, 217 W. Palatine Road, Arlington Heights, and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar E. Howe of Hanover, Pa.

THE REV. Robert O. Bartz performed the afternoon rites, and the newlyweds then greeted 150 guests at a reception in the church hall. Before the wedding service, two candles were glowing on the altar, and during the ceremony the couple lit a third candle, signifying their union, and then blew out the first two.

Soloist was the groom's uncle, Clifford Snyder.

A nylon organza gown with ribbons of Venice lace running down the front of the Empire bodice and A-line skirt was worn by Deborah as she was given in marriage by her father. The dress had full sleeves, also trimmed with bands of the lace, and a rounded neckline edged with the lace motif. The bride's chapel train had the same lace edging and flowed from a crown of matching lace. She carried a nosegay of white teaseros and lilies of the valley surrounding a single white orchid.

JOAN CARLSON of Arlington Heights

Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Howe

was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Mrs. Jane Phillips of Palmyra, N.Y., and Sally Howe, sisters of the couple, and Pamela Schumann of Des Plaines. Their aqua silk dresses were styled on princess lines with matching Venice lace trim and a wattleau panel flowing from the back waistline.

John Howe was his brother's best man, and friends from the University of Evansville, where both the bride and groom studied, were ushers. They included Harvey Kiesel, Indianapolis; Mel Ulrich, Huntington, Ind., and Jerry Swarzens of Ramsey, Ind.

There was also a ring bearer, 3-year-old Gary Phillips of Palmyra.

AS THE mothers of the bridal pair greeted the guests at the reception, Mrs. Patanella wore a powder blue brushed satin dress with matching coat and Mrs. Howe appeared in a pink and white suit. Both had white orchid corsages.

Both Deborah and Robert are graduates of the University of Evansville, and the groom has a commission as Second Lieutenant in the U. S. Air Force. Deborah attended Arlington High School.

The newlyweds spent their honeymoon at Bozeman, Mont.

Arlington Couple Exchange Rings

An Arlington Heights couple, Holly Ann McWhinney and Robert Allen Bruyn, exchanged vows and rings June 20 in St. James Church. All went well during the solemn occasion with one exception - in the exchange of rings, the bride put the groom's wedding ring on the wrong finger.

Holly Ann is the daughter of Francis

McWhinney, 410 W. Maude, and her husband is the son of the Arthur Bruyns of 918 N. Hickory.

For the three o'clock ceremony performed by the Rev. Edward Laramie, the bride wore a Victorian styled gown of white organza with rows of satin ribbon and lace running from the shoulder line to the hem. The Empire bodice had a high neckline, also trimmed with ribbon and lace, and full sleeves edged in lace.

HOLLYANN'S elbow-length veil was held in place with a crown of fabric roses studded with sequins. Her bouquet was a nosegay of white carnations surrounding a single white orchid.

Mary Pat Bruyn, the groom's sister, was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Nancy McSweeney and Jean Kramak, both of Palatine, and Pam Hall of Arlington Heights.

The girls were gowned alike in yellow silk Victorian gowns with avocado ribbon accenting the Empire waistline. They carried yellow and orange carnations.

Leo Zikowski, Arlington Heights, served as best man, while Richard McGee, the groom's brother, Donald Bruyn, and his brother-in-law Ronald Standen seated the wedding guests.

ALSO IN THE wedding party were Deanne Bruyn, 3, of Buffalo Grove as flower girl and Phillip Standen, 3, of Palatine as ring bearer. The children are niece and nephew of the groom. Deanne wore a yellow floor-length dress trimmed with green ribbon at the Empire waistline and carried orange and yellow carnations in a white basket.

The groom works at Plentywood Farm Restaurant in Bensenville, so the reception for 140 guests was held there. Greeting relatives and friends, the groom's mother was attired in blue lace and had a blue orchid corsage.

Holly Ann and Bob met while attending Arlington High School. She now works for Misco Care Co., Wheeling. After a week's honeymoon in Florida, the newlyweds are living in Arlington Heights.

Shoemaker Directs Band Tonight

Dr. John Shoemaker, past director of the Palatine Village Band, will return tonight at 8 o'clock to serve as guest conductor for the seventh in a series of 10 summer concerts in the park.

A former resident of Palatine, Dr. Shoemaker is presently assistant professor of musical education and conductor of special ensembles at the University of Hawaii in Honolulu.

Sharing the stage with Dr. Shoemaker will be Dr. Gordon Bird of Northern Illinois University. He has selected "Be-guine" by Osse, "Youth Triumphant Overture" by Hadley and the "Washington Post March" by Sousa to direct.

Tunes will originate from the band shell located in Palatine Park, corner of Palatine Jaycee Wives Honor Mrs. McCarthy

Palatine Jaycee Wives have awarded their highest honor, a lifetime membership in the organization, to Mrs. Hal McCarthy for her efforts on local, regional and state levels to establish an active women's auxiliary which aids and assists the Jaycees in their service to the community.

Mrs. McCarthy, a native of Richland Center, Wis., is a graduate of St. Francis School of Nursing at LaCrosse and the mother of four children.

Mel, as she is known to her friends, has been involved in the Jaycee movement for more than seven years, beginning as a charter member and officer of the Waupun, Wis., Jayette chapter. Four years ago her husband was transferred to the Chicago area, and the couple settled in Palatine. They immediately became active in the local Jaycees, her husband holding several offices in the local chapter and currently serving as vice president of the Illinois Jaycees.

IN THAT SAME time, Mrs. McCarthy has served as treasurer and president of the Jaycee Wives. During her term as president, membership in the auxiliary doubled.

Successful in renewing the activities of the auxiliary in Palatine, Mel McCarthy devoted her efforts to establishing a similar organization on the regional level. Working with Jaycee Wives in other communities, she presented a plan for a regional women's auxiliary to the North Region Jaycees, which was approved by them in November, 1968.

Most recently, Mel worked with state Jaycee representatives to develop a state uniform that was worn last June by Illinois Jaycees and their wives who attended the 50th annual Jaycee convention in St. Louis. The uniform was so unusual that the state organization was awarded first place in the Parade of States because of it.

Festival At St. Mary's

The Women's Club of St. Mary's Church in Buffalo Grove will host its annual ice cream social and festival Sunday from 2 to 7 p.m. It features events of interest to the entire family.

This year's festival will continue the crowd-pleasing attractions held in previous years, including ice cream, other foods, games, rides, a bazaar and cake walk. In addition, there will be a bike decorating contest, an advertising booth and an old-fashioned auction.

MRS. DONALD WILSON is chairman of the festival, with Mrs. Thomas Hering as co-chairman. Assisting them are Mrs. William Meinholz, advertising; Mrs.

Paul Raupp, food; Mrs. David McCabe, publicity; Mrs. Allan Stahl, ice cream; Mrs. Charles Moodhe, tots and teens games; Mrs. William Fox, bike, and Mrs. Don Thompson, cake walk.

Others working on special projects are Pat Maples auctioneer; Mrs. Ed Pfaff, children's entertainment; Paul Raupp, beverages; Mr. and Mrs. Mal Caskey and Tom Hering, games; Mr. and Mrs. James Martin and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Doyle, children's attractions.

Leroy Raupp will give hayrides to the children, and Eddie Shum of the Union Hotel Restaurant will provide musical entertainment for the afternoon.

The Illinois Federation supports Brain Research and Scholarships for Teachers of Exceptional Children.

Job Office Helps To Bridge Hiring Gap

What do you say to a butcher who wants to change his line of work, if he likes to repair things and build model airplanes?

"We signed him up as a trainee to be an airline mechanic, and after a year of training he was hired by a local airline and has been there ever since," said Victor Gombotz, employer relations representative at the Illinois State Employment Service, Northwest Suburban Office, at 601 Lee St., Des Plaines.

Building bridges between the person looking for a job and an employer is important to Gombotz and others on the staff. "To meet this goal, they place many people in training programs designed to upgrade their skills or vault them into another line of work. They're filling employment gaps at the same time, in the towns from Schiller Park north to Wheeling and Barrington and as far west as Schaumburg.

"We work primarily with suburban people," said Gombotz. "Although many training programs are geared to the needs of a poverty area, we also respond to the needs of people in our area. We contact as many agencies and companies as we can through the Illinois Migrant Council, the Cook County Office of Economic Opportunity (CCOEO) and other groups, to set up training classes where there is a need, but many companies have developed training programs on their own."

TRAINING IS a boon to people entering new jobs or skill levels, but the training programs evolve only after industries take a hard look at the labor market and admit that they can't afford to let a segment of the population go without jobs, said Gombotz.

Counselors at the employment office usually spend three to five sessions with a job-seeker before determining what employment field he'd like to break into.

After basic information is gained about the person's background, aptitude and interest tests are given.

"It's all in the interpretation," said Gombotz. "Test results give structure to their ideas. Then we discuss specific jobs they could go into."

Gombotz estimates that between 100 and 200 people are usually involved in federally funded programs through this office, although this does not include a large number of people placed in training programs paid for by local industry. "Training programs run the gamut," said Gombotz, from licensed practical nursing, child care assistants, material handlers, to airplane cleaners.

Four training packages, through the National Alliance of Businessmen (NAB) and the Manpower Development Training Act of 1962 (MDTA) are most used by job-seekers through the Des Plaines State Employment Service, in addition to Project Transition programs for retiring servicemen. In the NAB programs, government and private industry form a partnership to help the disadvantaged, as certified by the state employment service, with job orientation and training. Under a contract program, a company assigns a contract to train a number of people, and is reimbursed by the federal government for the cost of the program. In the non-reimbursable programs, a company pledges to train personnel on its own.

ON THE JOB TRAINING is one of the MDTA training programs, and according to Gombotz, the easier to implement. Employers can submit a training program, for persons who are disadvantaged or have lost their jobs because of automation. If the program is acceptable they will receive funding for it. Institutional training programs represent another type of MDTA training. One example is the nurse training program in Niles Township, where local recruits, certified by the state employment service, on the basis of economic need and other factors, receive 48 weeks of training at no cost.

One local company slants its training toward disadvantaged people with a minimal background for factory type jobs, including suburbanites. "The people working for us represent a cross-section of the population," said Jim Deering, personnel director at Littelfuse, Inc., in Des Plaines, manufacturer of switches, relays and television components.

"We've found that the training benefits the suburbanite as well as the person from the inner city."

"We're interested in what a person can do, rather than where they live or whether they're a member of a minority group. Although we have actively recruited the disadvantaged, most of these people now come to us on referrals from their friends," he said.

"Before we started the formal training program, we didn't have the time to give our new employees personal attention," Deering said.

"If they went into the plant and their foreman gave them a job without much explanation or attention, those first few days were hell on earth."

"THROUGH THIS TRAINING program, we have reduced scrap on the job, retained more people and our workers develop a sense of pride in their work by knowing what the job entails," he said.

The program at Littelfuse includes on the job training for 30 to 60 days, and approximately 10 hours of classroom discussion. In addition to company policies, machine operation and safety, the counseling reaches into other areas of the employee's life, such as personal problems which could affect work.

Maryville Academy in Des Plaines is filling another employment gap through training. Maryville is conducting training classes for child care assistants under the JOBS-70 program of NAB.

"We recruited among the disadvantaged for this program," said Jack LaMotte, program director. "We wanted to hire from the local community, and in this area many of the disadvantaged are Spanish-speaking. We weren't sure what the response to this would be, but we got the word out through local agencies, and we had more than enough applicants for the training program. We feel that the need for this type of training is firmly established in the area," said LaMotte.

EIGHT WOMEN are now in training as child care assistants at Maryville, in a 15-week training program which started in June. Maryville has a one-year contract to train 20 people, and all but one are women.

"Our training program has been modified since it began," said LaMotte. "Our recruits spend 15 hours a week in training sessions including lessons in English, and 25 hours a week are spent on the job. From the time they start the program, they're guaranteed a job here."

It's a beautiful way for agencies and businesses to become involved in solving community employment problems," said LaMotte. We have other employment needs here, in addition to child care assistants, and we may go into other job training programs in the future."

Bringing people into the labor market and keeping them permanently employed are two big reasons why local industries and agencies are establishing training programs. As they realize their employment needs, many cash in on the experience of Gombotz and others at the state employment service to set up the programs.

Gardening Today

U. of I. Show Set

by JAMES E. SCHUSTER

Home gardening enthusiasts can view some 1,500 varieties of annuals and bedding plants — all carefully arranged for easy comparison and evaluation at the University of Illinois' Open House for Home Gardeners, Sunday, Aug. 2.

The open house will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the U. of I. trial garden near the intersection of Florida and Lincoln avenues, Urbana.

G.M. Foster, in charge of the trial garden, says that the things to see are the F1 hybrid seed-grown geranium varieties, including the new double-flowered types, the new F1 hedge type zinnias, the 30 entries for the All-America Selection competition. Visitors are invited to look over the plantings of shade plants between the floriculture greenhouses. These are grown in special beds and include begonias, impatiens, lobelias, pansies, exacums, lorenias, edelweiss, polka-dot plant, and others.

The popularity of the U. of I. trial garden is reflected by the number of people who visit it annually, more than 50,000 persons. The garden is open to visitors daily from dawn to dusk.

Gardeners arriving from out of town should turn off Interstate 74 at the Lincoln Ave. exit and proceed directly south to the garden. Those arriving from the south on Route 45 can turn right on Florida Ave. and go east to Lincoln Ave.

South had no trouble counting to eight tricks but his partner had put him in game and, somehow or other, he had to find a way to get nine.

There was no chance for a fourth trick in spades. Whichever opponent held four spades wasn't going to throw one away. Hearts were even more hopeless. He didn't have time to set up dummy's

A defeatist would have run his top cards and settled for one down but South was a firm believer in giving the cards and his opponents every chance to help him.

That meant he had to get East and West to play clubs for him. The Statue of Liberty play was indicated and South led a low heart to his 10 at trick two.

West was in with the queen and went into an executive session. What did South have for his bid? Nothing in spades. Surely the king of hearts and something in clubs. Perhaps the ace. Probably just four diamonds, all of which would wind up as tricks.

West decided that it was up to him to start the club suit, since otherwise South would have time to set up a heart trick.

By that time, West had thought himself into the losing line of play. He led the three of clubs. East rose with the ace and led the suit back. East knew that South didn't hold the king of hearts but was sure that he held the ace and jack.

West was in with the king and could have saved the day by playing hearts, but West was still acting under the wrong idea. He led another club and South had his nine tricks.

Learn Cooking... Via Telephone

by ALBERT E. KAFF

TOKYO UPI — Dial 571-9141 for dinner. That's the telephone number for the menu of the day, if you can get it.

Tokyo Gas Company, Japan's largest public utility, gives cooking lessons by telephone.

"So many young housewives today know very little about preparing meals and they are tempted to rely on packaged, instant foods instead of imaginative, home-cooked dishes," a Tokyo Gas spokesman told UPI.

"We decided to do something. We set up a telephone service which anyone can call and receive free advice on the most wholesome and suitable meal for a particular day."

EACH DAY, 571-9141 provides a new menu for dinner prepared by Mrs. Hisako Yoshizawa, noted Japanese consultant in home economics.

Dial that number and if you are lucky — the number usually is busy — you will hear the cheerful voice of a young woman with tips for dinner.

"This is Tokyo Gas telephone cooking service," the voice answers. "Greens are excellent on the market today. How about gyoza for dinner? It's a Chinese dish, a fried ball of wheat flour dough filled with cabbage and ground pork. Husband and children find it delicious."

The voice then gives specific cooking instructions.

Tokyo Gas, which serves 80 per cent of the households in Tokyo, the world's most populous city, 11.5 million residents, started its dinner dial service in April.

Telephone number 571-9141 is fed into 10 phone lines so that 10 callers can hear the day's tape recorded menu simultaneously.

A 'Neurotic' Success

by WILLIAM VERIGAN
NEW YORK (UPI) — "I'm really a very sick, highly neurotic and problem-infested person," complained Paul Zindel.

Most aspiring playwrights would love to have problems like his. Ever since his six-year-old play "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds" became the biggest off-Broadway hit of the season, Zindel's most pressing problem has been fighting off salesmen who want to cash in on his new wealth and movie producers who want to add to it.

"It's more fun than I ever had sitting around while the producers try to outbid each other for the film rights," Zindel admitted. "My mother always said that play would be a hit."

His mother, the 34-year-old playwright, said, was very much like the domineering, neurotic woman who destroys the lives of her two daughters in "Marigolds." She died several years ago.

"OUR HOME WAS a house of fear," Zindel said in an interview. "Mother never trusted anybody and ours wasn't the kind of house someone could get into by knocking on the front door. A knock at the door would send my mother, sister and me running to a window to peek out."

"Mother was a girl in her 20s when my father left," he added. "She used to have to fight to get the allowance from him and tried to keep us together, moving from apartment to apartment. She worked at everything, nurse, real estate, a hot dog stand and inventions, but we usually lived in a shambles."

The Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Thursday July 30, the 211th day of 1970 with 154 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase.

The morning star is Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

On this date in history:

In 1916 German saboteurs blew up ammunition dumps at Black Tom Island near Jersey City, causing an estimated $22 million damage.

In 1942 President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed a bill creating a female branch of the Navy called the WAVES.

In 1967 there were reports from behind the Bamboo Curtain of a mass purge of the Red Chinese Army.

A thought for the day: British Statesman John Morley said: "You have not converted a man because you have silenced him."

His play has been bouncing around for six years since it was first produced at Houston's Alley Theater. It was done on television four times and at the Cleveland Playhouse, but Zindel had to take a job as a chemistry teacher on Staten Island in New York City while he was waiting for it to become a hit.

Besides "Marigolds," he has written a television drama, "Let Me Hear You Whisper," about a cleaning lady in a vivisection laboratory who talks to a porpoise, and he is currently working on the final details of "Miss Reardon Drinks a Little," a play about three old maid schoolteachers scheduled to open later this year.

"Perhaps it's not coincidental that his plays all seem to deal with women," Zindel explained. "When I write, I hear the voices of my mother and sister. I'm writing from their voices in a metaphor I know about. The only time I was away from them was when I was in a tuberculosis sanatorium for a year and a half, and the only times I saw my father was occasionally on Christmas."

It Really 'Pays' To Get An Education

by SUSAN McCABE
WASHINGTON (UPI) — If you're a high school student and people have stopped laughing when you say you'd like to be a cowboy, it's time to start giving some serious thought to your future.

The Labor Department has put out for young people an 855-page study of job outlooks during the 1970s. It covers more than 700 occupations, explaining their training requirements, pay scales and probable opportunities for employment.

The forecasts take account of major trends influencing the job market, such as population growth, increasing urbanization and rising standards of living, and analyzes the effect these trends are likely to have on career opportunities in the coming decade.

FOR EXAMPLE, population growth requires more extensive governmental services, urbanization increases that demand for service-producing industries, and a rising living standard stimulates trade and manufacturing. The most rapid growth in job opportunities may therefore be expected in these major areas.

The Labor Department also noted that the fields of greatest employment growth will be those requiring the most education and training.

The department said a young job applicant with eight years of elementary education on the average can expect to earn about $250,000 during his lifetime. An applicant with 9 to 11 years of schooling can look forward to lifetime earnings of about $300,000.

THE FIGURE GOES up to $25,000 for a high school graduate and jumps to $375,000 for an applicant with one to three years of college. It increases to $500,000 for a college graduate and to more than $600,000 for young people with more than five years of college.

So it pays in preparing for almost any occupation to get as much education and training as you can.

Here are some of the promising career fields that a high school student of today might want to consider:

ACCOUNTANTS — Employment opportunities are expected to be excellent throughout the '70s. Starting salaries for college graduates with accounting majors estimated at about $8,300 a year. The pay scale may go as high as $28,000 a year for experienced CPAs employed by large firms.

Engineering — Employment outlook should be very good in the '70s, with the starting salary for engineering graduates with bachelor's degrees averaging $9,200 and over 10 per cent of experienced engineers earning $24,000 or more.

Dietitians — Opportunities for qualified dietitians are expected to be excellent through the '70s, with salaries beginning at $7,500 and rising as high as $15,000 with experience.

Oceanographers — Excellent opportunities can be expected in the '70s, with starting salaries for bachelor's degree holders as high as $9,078 a year, and for those with Ph.D. degrees, $12,580.

Performing Arts — Including actors, dancers, musicians and singers. This field is overcrowded and highly competitive and is expected to remain so in the next decade. Movie actors received a minimum $112 a day, dancers $140 weekly, musicians from $60 to $300 a week and singers about $200 a week.

Newspaper reporters — Employment opportunities are good for beginners with writing talent, salaries starting at $95 a week, and increasing with experience to $300 a week or more on large dailies.

Photographers — Opportunities will be favorable in the '70s for talented and well-trained photographers, salaries ranging from $110 to $250 a week or more according to ability.

Electronic computer operating personnel — Employment opportunities are expected to increase rapidly throughout the '70s, beginners receiving $116 weekly, skilled console operators commanding as much as $288 a week.

Automobile service advisers — A rapidly expanding field in which beginners are trained on the job and receive about $4 an hour plus commissions when they are qualified.

Hospital attendants — Employment expected to increase rapidly in the '70s. Attendants receive on-the-job training and earn between $70 and $90 a week.

Truck drivers — Moderate increase in employment expected, with local drivers earning an average $3.78 an hour and over-the-road drivers receiving an average of $11,000 yearly and up, depending on experience.

Television and radio service technicians — A moderate increase in employment opportunities expected in the '70s. Vocational school-qualified technicians earn from $80 to $240 a week, depending upon experience.

Civil aviation — Including pilots, stewards, flight engineers, air traffic controllers and traffic agents and clerks.

This field is expected to have one of the fastest employment growth rates.

Captains and copilots are among the highest paid wage earners in the nation, earning from $25,000 to $37,000 a year. Stewards earn between $433 and $688 a month, depending on tenure and the airline which employs them. Trained air traffic controllers can earn between $770 and $1,500 a month. Agents and clerks make from $430 to $624 a month.

Other occupations which are expected to have excellent employment opportunities in the '70s are school counselors $6,000 to $15,000, physicians, therapists and medical laboratory workers unlimited, anthropologists $12,000 to $20,000, librarians and library technicians $7,500 to $23,000, cooks and chefs $2.53 to $4.36 an hour, up to $25,000 annually.

Judson Still Has Room

The Admissions Department of Judson College in Elgin is interviewing students for enrollment for the fall trimester.

While the school is nearing its cut off date, a limited number of students will still be accepted for fall enrollment. Prospective students may call the admissions office for appointments.

This fall the co-educational liberal arts college begins a new curriculum that will be more student-need oriented and more aware of the students' sociological and academic backgrounds.

Students will select an area of study from six broad divisions. They include communications arts, fine arts, human institutions, human relations, Christian religion and philosophy, and science and mathematics.

Students will be able to develop their own academic program with the aid of faculty advisors.

The 1970 edition of the 4th Annual Paddock Olympics is history and Roselle Park District will now display the large traveling trophy to show for its thrilling victory.

Both Palatine, a double-winner during the tournament's initial stages, and River Trails, last year's king, were considered favorites to repeat for the 11-team honors, but Roselle emerged victorious Wednesday by amassing 156 points.

Dueling Palatine down to the final event, the Roselle 12-13 year old boys' softball team nailed down the clincher by winning its competition, putting the meet out of reach.
Palatine landed the runner-up slot with 151 markers while Arlington Heights crept up to bag third with 122½ points. River Trails had to settle for the fourth position with 118½ counts, while Elk Grove climbed into the fifth spot with 97½ points.

Mount Prospect accumulated 89 points to edge Schaumburg with 87. Hanover Park notched seventh place by racking up 74½ points while Hoffman Estates had 61½, Salt Creek, 58 and Rolling Meadows, 50.

Roselle, commander of a 20-point spread after the first day's activities, lost ground in the tennis and jump rope events, but managed to cling to the lead until the softball teams came up with their clutch decisions.

While Roselle walked off with the first place trophy, 1,300 other Olympic participants were rewarded for their efforts with Paddock Olympic patches.

The first five qualifiers in each individual event and the top three finishers in each team event landed ribbons signifying which place they captured in the event.

It Takes Two Evenings But Heights Stops Des Plaines

by LARRY MLYNCZAK
Arlington Heights, which finished in a tie for first in the District Nine standings, used a variety of means to win enough games to take the pennant.

But against Des Plaines in the American Legion District Nine tournament, Arlington found another way to get runners on base and around to the plate — hit batsman.

Post 208 batters were hit by pitches on four occasions, three in the first inning in which Arlington posted six runs, and held on to hand Des Plaines an 11-7 setback in a game which covered two days.

The contest was started on Monday afternoon but was halted because of rain at the end of seven innings. The game was continued on Tuesday.

By scoring single tallies in the seventh and eighth innings and a trio in the ninth, Arlington Heights salvaged a game which was thought to be sewed up in the first inning.

Jim Bokelmann, who hurled the first seven innings, was given credit for the victory. Bob Leja and Gary Anderson came on in relief in the final two frames.

Mike Loach, who was Des Plaines' most effective pitcher of the four sent to the mound by coach Keith Koentopp, was tagged with the loss. Loach yielded only one run in five and two-thirds innings of work.

The run that Loach gave up came in the top of the seventh. Gary Salm led off the frame for Arlington with a single. He went to second on a single by John Brodnan and scored on a base hit by Dave Lundstedt. That made the score 7-6.

Arlington Heights tallied a run in the eighth against Frank May as Larry Geyer walked, went to third on Bokelmann's ground rule double and scored on an error.

Three more runs were scored by the eventual winners in the top of the ninth on singles by Brodnan, Bruce Fraser and Bob Fitzgerald, a hit batsman and a pair of fielder's choices.

Arlington Heights jumped out to a 6-0 lead in the first inning on three singles, three hit batters and a walk against Post 36 starter Ed Johnson and reliever Losch.

Salm got things started for Arlington with a single to left field. A walk to Brodnan was followed by Lundstedt getting hit by a pitch to load the bases.

Fitzgerald was hit by a pitch and Salm scored. Mike Moffo was then hit by a pitch and Brodnan scored. Larry Geyer slapped a single to center which scored Lundstedt and Fitzgerald and that was all for Johnson.

Bokelmann met a Losch pitch for a single and Moffo and Geyer sprinted to the plate after each had advanced on a wild pitch on the previous pitch.

Des Plaines stormed back with three runs in the bottom of the first. The initial stanza lasted 35 minutes.

Gary Pleickhardt opened up the frame with a walk and went to second on a single by Gabino Galindo. Rich Olson singled home Pleickhardt and then both Olson and Galindo advanced on a passed ball.

Galindo raced home with Des Plaines' second run on a fielder's choice and Olson scored moments later on a single by Kevin Chesney.

Des Plaines scored its fourth run in the next inning on Olson's booming 345-foot home run over the left field fence. Two pitches prior to the home run pitch, Olson slammed a 330-foot blast which was foul by a few feet.

Des Plaines tied the score at 6-6 in the sixth frame.

After two were out, Frank May walked and Gary Pleickhardt reached base on an error. Galindo rapped a single to center field to score May and Olson singled to score Pleickhardt.

After Arlington Heights made it 8-6 with runs in the seventh and eighth, Des Plaines tallied in the bottom of the eighth.

May singled to right field and went to second when Pleickhardt was walked. May and Pleickhardt advanced on a wild pitch and Galindo lined a single which barely evaded third baseman Brodnan and May scored.

Anderson, who gave up the single to Galindo, settled down to retire the next two batters with Post 36 runners perched on first and third.

Arlington Heights then nailed down the triumph with three runs in the top of the ninth.

The win advanced Post 208 further in the winner's bracket while Des Plaines was dropped into the loser's bracket in the double elimination tournament.

Arlington Heights was scheduled to meet Logan Square while Des Plaines was slated to meet Park Ridge Wednesday night. Results were unavailable at press time.

Wheeling Triumphs, Ousts Prospect From Playoffs

by JIM COOK
Ninth District entry Wheeling continued to remain alive in the post-season double-elimination tournament, that will eventually push a representative into the Cook County Tourney.

The seventh place team in a league of eight, Wheeling turned the tables on Mount Prospect, 8-5, in a suspended contest that resumed on Tuesday night.

The victors yielded to darkness and a steady drizzle in their seven-inning Monday night confrontation protecting a 7-3 advantage.

They added an insurance tally in the top of the eighth of the Tuesday night meeting to compensate for a two-run outburst by the Prospectors in the bottom of the frame.

Both squads went down in silence in the ninth to insure the Wheeling triumph. Mount Prospect, having dropped their two opening contests, is now eliminated from the tourney, but with their youth, they promise to challenge the leaders next season.

Wheeling, meanwhile, had drawn Palatine as their opponent Wednesday in the long climb from the loser's bracket. Dial 394-1700 for highlights.

Wheeling solved Prospect starter Bill Thurnhoffer in the fourth after the big right-hander set the visitors down in order over the first three frames.

Gary Schweitzer and Speedy Wiesen lashed singles to ignite the rally before Scott Day drew a pass to fill the bases. Cleanup hitter Dean Sheridan quickly

The count went to 6-0 in the sixth as Wheeling again cut loose for a three-run spurt. Sheridan collected his fourth run batted in with a tremendous clout over the left field fence.

Paul Elisco reached on an error at short and was singled to second by Ralph Baker. On the play, however, a wild throw from the outfield eluded Prospect catcher Stu White, rolling out of play to nudge a run across. George Solomon capped the frame with a single to left to drive Baker home.

Prospect crept within four when Thurnhoffer reached on an error, and was doubled to third by Jack Fritsche. Dennis Tite's single to left brought both runners around.

Wheeling got one of the runs back in the seventh on a single, a walk, a passed ball and a sacrifice fly by Day, but Prospect came right back on consecutive triples by Vic Incinelli and Don Koehler.

For an instant, it appeared that Prospect had another tally when Thurnhoffer lifted a fly to center to score Koehler who was tagging, but an appeal play by Wheeling caught Koehler leaving too soon.

That's when the drizzle began, halting further action until Tuesday, but the outcome went unchanged.

Lynch Sparks Bankers To Top

Led by Capt. Chuck Lynch, the Mount Prospect State Bank climbed over the Market Place Barbers, with an 8 to 2 win over K & M Rubber in the Mount Prospect Friday League.

The Barbers, in the meantime, were winning 6 to 4 over FBK Realtors on the strength of a 2½ point effort by Stan Sampson and 1½ points by Harold Lins.

With only 1½ points separating the Bankers and Barbers this coming Friday Nite League in the Paddock Publications Inter-League Handicap Golf Tournament.

Clayton Courts held on to third place despite a 6-2 loss to S&H Packaging, which was led by Joe Sostek's three point win. Closing in on the Courts was Jakes Pizza led by Capt. Joe Pash and his birdie parade. Capt. Pash had birds on 11, 17 and 18 as he led his teammates to a 6 5/6 - 3 1/6 win over Kruse Tavern.

Keefe Pharmacy took Bainbridge Apts to the tune of 6-4 to move up a notch. Dale Johanson was the big gun for Keefe's with a gross 32, good for three points. The battle to stay out of the cellar between Willie Inc. and Busse Food & Liquor ended in a 4-4 tie. John Rice of Willie had low gross for the evening, a nifty 28. Warren Collier of FBK had low net, a sizzling 36.

Besides Joe Pash and his three birdies, other birdmen were Dick Skoog on No. 7, Jerry Rawls No. 13, Al Gilso No. 12, John Rice No. 18, Don Campbell No. 12, Chuck Lynch No. 15 and Jordy Italia No. 1.

To Discuss Harper's President Salary

by TOM WELLMAN

The Harper College board, meeting in special session tonight, will discuss president Robert Lahti's salary for the 1970-71 school year.

Lahti, who will be completing his fifth year as Harper president this September, was granted a three-year contract last fall. His salary for the 1969-70 school year was $33,500.

The budgeted amount for the college president this year is $37,000. However, the board, in setting Lahti's salary for this school year, is not required to stick with that figure.

There are indications that the closed door session may involve a lengthy discussion not only on Lahti's salary, but his performance during the past year as college president.

Board chairman James Hamill, when contacted by the Herald, stressed that job performance would be discussed. "It may get sticky when we discuss performance," he said, on the basis of past criticism by board members.

Last year's approval of a three-year contract for Lahti was approved in open session after the board had discussed the matter. In last year's open session, board member Lawrence Monts cast the only negative vote. He suggested a one-year, rather than a three-year, contract.

Several board members are known to be concerned about Lahti's performance as a president. In tonight's closed session, they will have a full opportunity to set Lahti's salary for the 1970-71 school year.

Electronic Voting Bill Introduced

Amendment of House rules to permit recording of votes and attendance by electronic equipment may be incorporated in the Congressional Reorganization Act now being debated in the U. S. House of Representatives.

The amendment offered by Congressman Robert McClory (R-Ill.) would permit installation of electronic equipment aimed at reducing the time consuming oral roll calls under existing rules.

McClory has been joined by more than 30 Republican and Democratic House Members who hope to cut roll call time in half so that Members' time can be utilized for other legislative duties.

Present estimates indicate that more than 27 per cent of the Congressional time during House sessions is consumed with oral roll calls. This means that the equivalent of three months of every legislative year is devoted to answering roll calls and quorum calls by Congressmen.

McClory has pointed out that 35 State legislatures record votes by electronic means, and that a variety of alternative systems are available for use in the House of Representatives. The McClory amendment is part of a comprehensive measure seeking to improve and modernize Congressional procedures.

This is the first such attempt in 24 years.

In other action, the board will consider filling an open faculty position and will discuss further the 1970-71 budget. They will then go into closed session, but could return to vote on Lahti's salary.

The Way We See It

Control Pendulum

No one can honestly dispute that the problem of crime in this country has been swelling at an unthinkable rate, and that the ordeal for police in our cities worsens by the day.

Neither can anyone reasonably disagree with the logic of Sen. Charles Percy, who endorsed President Nixon's District of Columbia anti-crime bill with this observation: "The pendulum has swung too far. We have emphasized too heavily the rights of criminals and taken too lightly the rights of society."

These are grim facts. Crime rates spiral, and we've been guilty — for want of a better expression — of coddling criminals, of leaning so far to insure their individual rights that we've hurt ourselves.

Now the drift is going the other way, as it should, but in so moving, it has opened up a whole new menace to all of us. We are caught up in a backlash that may snap back too far.

The seeds are in Mr. Nixon's D.C. crime bill, given final Congressional approval last week.

There is no question that the anti-crime legislation was needed in a city with 56,000 felonies last year, including 7,071 armed robberies, 287 murders and 336 rapes.

There also is no question that much of the legislation, particularly in the area of court reorganization, should go a long way toward attacking that city's problem.

The danger lurks in the controversial provisions tacked onto the bill, particularly that for so-called "no-knock" entry by police and court-ordered preventive detention.

The provisions are dangerous on their face, and dangerous because the D.C. legislation may become the model for similar laws across the nation.

Under the no-knock section, police with search and arrest warrants would be allowed to enter premises without announcing themselves. A protective clause says the police must have cause to believe evidence was likely to be destroyed, or their lives were likely to be endangered, or the suspect was likely to escape if they delayed.

Under the preventive detention section, defendants charged with dangerous or violent crimes could be held without bail for up to 60 days if a judge found their release would pose a serious threat to community safety.

With the qualifying protective clauses in both provisions, a reasonable argument might be made for their necessity. Police, after all, have it tough enough.

But we don't think that's enough justification. We agree with the critics of these provisions that they fly in the face of some of our essential rights as citizens, among them the right to privacy in our own homes and the presumption that any of us must be presumed innocent until proven guilty.

Putting such provisions down on paper as written law is a dramatic threat to those rights, and even with the best of intentions, the way is opened for abuse. The potential for that abuse is incalculable if the D.C. plan does become a national model.

There are better ways to fight the crime problem — through stronger enforcement of existing laws, through stricter application in the courts, through expansion of the courts where backlog is a problem. But not through over-reaction.

Reckless Driving

Spotlight:

Volunteers Help Parks

by ALAN AKERSON

Buffalo Grove residents are determined to improve their parks. Last September they approved the formation of a park district by a margin of 5 to 1.

Now they are showing their determination another way. Volunteers are playing a major part in both developing new parks and improving the ones already here.

Last Saturday about a dozen adults and children answered the park district's plea for volunteers to spend a day cutting and clearing weeds and refurbishing the playground equipment at Emmerich Park.

THE JAYCEES have been responsible for adding to the village's park facilities. Recently they dedicated a new baseball field in the southwest corner of the village. The dedication came after three years of work and almost $2,000 of Jaycees funds were put into the site.

A much bigger and more expensive park project now being undertaken by volunteers involves the purchase of playground equipment and the development of the first park in the Lake County part of the village.

The project is being done by the Strathmore Homeowners Association. It involves the installation of playground equipment at Longfellow School and the development of a park on a 5.6-acre site on Arlington Heights Road just north of Checker Road.

Two SHA members, Larry Johnson and Eugene Gaines, are in charge of the project. Johnson is handling the Longfellow portion, Gaines, the Lake County park portion. They are using funds collected by the SHA during a fund raising drive held in May, and another held less than a month ago.

About $1,500 was raised in the drive. About $1,100 of that will be spent on playground equipment for the two sites.

GAINES' PLANS for the Lake County site include much more than playground equipment, however. He wants to install two ball diamonds a football field and a picnic table area.

And, if his plans are successful, the cost will be minimal. Grading for the site to be done for no charge by a construction company. The necessary backstops and goalposts will be made of utility poles he is planning to get from Commonwealth Edison Co. — again at no charge.

As soon as the playground equipment arrives and certain others matters are handled, the two men will be ready to install it.

At that point, both will once again need volunteers. Judging from the volunteers that helped clean up the park last weekend and the ones that helped collect the money, Gaines and Johnson will have little trouble finding yet a few more Buffalo Grove residents who want better parks for their village.

Between the Lines

Jaycees Play Constructive Role

by STEVE NOVICK

I received a call from a Hoffman Estates lady this week wanting to know how she could adequately thank the Hoffman Estates Jaycees for playing host to the group of retarded children at their carnival held last week at the Golf-Rose Shopping Center.

"I'll pass on your thanks," I told her.

She said the Jaycees were great with the kids and she explained how all the rides were run at half speed, so the children would not be disturbed during their fun.

HER CALL WAS not the only one I received from a grateful parent praising the Hoffman Estates men for their consideration.

I know, however, that the Jaycees expect no thanks for having hosted the children.

Saturday night I was with a group of Hoffman Estates Jaycees at the Miss Illinois Pageant. The men were beaming with pride over the accomplishment of Carol Lynn Knight, Miss Hoffman Estates, who was one of 10 pageant finalists.

Our conversation turned to the carnival. Each of the men with words, nods, facial expressions and gestures emphatically expressed how much they enjoyed being able to entertain the retarded children last Thursday.

We also talked about a Jaycee study done last month which influenced the High School Dist. 211 trustees toward choosing Hoffman Estates for the next school to be built in Schaumburg Township.

THE ALTERNATE site was in the township's south-east section. The Jaycees showed the greatest population growth in the next few years will come in the township's north-west section. They statistically indicated that the Hoffman Estates site, near Higgins and Jones roads, will provide a school within walking distance for many students who will attend the facility.

The Jaycees are always busy. Another survey the group did recently offers a priority list of community improvements most wanted by Hoffman Estates residents.

The group is also busy getting ready for the Miss Hoffman Estates 1971 Pageant to be held Aug. 29 at Conant High School.

The regional Jaycees track meet was co-hosted last month by the Hoffman Estates and the Schaumburg Jaycees at Conant.

The Schaumburg Jaycees is a group who also offer a great deal to their community.

I REMEMBER two years ago, being assigned to cover the Schaumburg Jaycees taking control of a park site on Cornell Lane. The picture of four Schaumburg Jaycees looking into an empty field with Schaumburg Mayor Robert Atcher is one that always stuck in my mind. I wondered what would ever come of the site.

Tonight, the group meets at Great Hall at 8 p.m. for a public meeting before finalizing plans are set to develop Jaycee Park.

The park's development is being financed through Jaycee fund raising events over the years. At the same time the group has sponsored a series of annual youth activities including everything from billiards to bowling.

Jaycee groups in Hanover Park, Streamwood and across the country sustain projects similar to those sponsored by the Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg groups.

And, you don't have to read between the lines to know the Jaycees have a good time together with everything they do.

Palatine Today

The Roll-Around Caper

by AL GREENE

(News Item Palatine Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun vows the village will take a different approach next year in checking out games of skill at the American Legion-Lions Club carnival. Braun made the promise when he learned that Crazy Ball, a game he termed illegal, was featured under the name of Roll-a-Round at this year's carnival.)

Undulating Hills special agent James Bun sat before B, his Afghan silk suit glistening, pulled a Tanzanian cigarette from his 24-carat gold plated cigarette case and lit it with his liquid oxygen lighter.

"It's a tough job, James," said his curly headed boss, the beads of perspiration starting to form on his wrinkled brow.

B had been chief of the subdivision for three years. It was he who was responsible for the crackdown on illegal sump pump connections and, when the time came, that was not forgotten.

"THE DOUBLE L gang has pulled another Carnival caper," B continued. Bun sat silent, listening. The only sound came from the hum of his electronically activated Persian watch.

"They called it Roll-a-Round but it was really Crazy Ball," said B, his voice starting to quiver. "Throwing a ball into a group of numbered circles and betting on where it will fall is as serious as connecting a sump pump to the sanitary sewer line."

B was not one to forget. Bun knew he meant business.

"They tell us that the Lions and the Legion are good groups raising money for worthwhile causes but we can't tolerate law breakers. What does this town want, good groups or good games?" B sat down in his chair, exhausted.

"IT'S UP TO YOU, James," he said. "Stop them. If you don't, it could mean the end of the Hills."

Bun took one last drag from his cigarette, rose and put it out in a Nepalese ivory ashtray.

He walked out the door of the subdivision hall and climbed into his seven liter Brazilian made car. The Sikkimese manufactured tires screeched as he took off into town.

Bun arrived at the restaurant where the Lions and Legion were holding a joint meeting. After consulting the building's engineering plans, he walked through the front door and kicked in the Egyptian made door to a private meeting tuxedo.

The Lions and Legion sat stunned. Bun loosened the tie on his midnight blue xedo.

"YOU IN THE LEGION," he said, "no more Crazy Ball."

"Whattya mean," someone replied, "it's for a good cause."

"No more Crazy Ball or illegal games," said Bun.

A Legionnaire tried to argue but Bun stopped him.

"If you try to pull that again," Bun said, "we're taking away your flag holders. It will make marching in parades tough," said Bun.

Turning to the Lions Club, Bun knew they would not be so easy.

"You in the Lions," he said, "no more Crazy Ball."

"Whattya mean," someone replied, "it's for a good cause."

"It's illegal," said Bun. "We can't make exceptions. The rules are made for everyone."

A Lion rose to his feet and began shouting.

BUN KNEW HE couldn't pull any more punches.

"If that's the way you want to play," thought Bun taking a deep breath, "I'll do the same."

"If the Lions," he said, "are ever caught playing Crazy Ball at a carnival, your community billboard at Brockway and Palatine Road will be turned over to the Rotary Club."

A grin crossed Bun's face as he left, secure in the knowledge he had done his job.

In another part of the Hills, a lawn was being sprinkled in violation of the watering ban. It would soon be another day's work for the special agent. But now, it was time to play.

Pride And A Green Folder

by JAMES VESELY

George Sammet, Sr. is a grey-haired gentleman who carried pride and dignity in a green leather folder.

Sammet lives at 1 N. Chestnut Ave., in Arlington Heights with his wife, Hanna. He is easy to talk to because he has a mild, unassuming manner and a quick smile that opens up his face.

The green leather folder Mr. Sammet has under his arm this week is something that few people see in their lifetimes. It was sent to him by his son, Brigadier General George Sammet, Jr., U.S. Army, and it contains the certificate to General Sammet's Legion of Merit.

GENERAL SAMMET was awarded the Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster after his service as the chief advisor to the First Republic of Korea Army, the largest tactical fighting force in the free world.

The Legion of Merit is one of this country's highest decorations, but it is just one of the numerous awards General Sammet has received in his years of service since World War II.

The general's father opened the green folder carefully and displayed the scrollwork and ribbons and fancy lettering that spoke of distinguished service on behalf of the United States.

Alan Akerson

Jim Vesely

George Sammet, Sr. said his son has served in places like Turkey, Korea and Germany and wanted to go to Vietnam but the Army thought he should be in Washington, D.C.

"HE'S BEEN EVERYWHERE," the general's father said. "He started out in the artillery when he graduated from Illinois in 1942 but I guess now that he's a general he gets involved in a whole lot of things."

George Sammet, Sr. said his son went through the Second World War and then got out of the army for a while.

"They sent him a telegram asking him to come back into the army and he asked me what to do. I told him he had to do what he thought was right," the general's father said. "I guess I would have liked to see him in business or something else but he said he wanted to do this, to go back to the Army."

And then, two years ago, George Sammet Sr. and his wife Hanna went to Washington to see a four-star general and the Secretary of the Army pin brigadier general's stars on their son's shoulders.

General Sammet is now on the list of men who will be made major generals in the United States Army. The promotion will probably mean the culmination of a career that began as a Second Lieutenant fresh out of the University of Illinois. It will mean high responsibility after years of wars and foreign assignments and dismal army posts, and that tough decision 25 years ago to stay in the army when everybody else was getting out.

THE GENERAL'S father said all of that and closed up the thick green folder that held the Legion of Merit. I asked him if his family had a long tradition of military service and he said no, he had tried to join during World War I but had been rejected.

"But now I'm the father of a general," George Sammet, Sr. said. "I can hardly believe it."

Con-Con Ok's Expanded County Executive Power

The president of the Cook County board of commissioners will become the chief executive officer of the county and will be elected on a county-wide basis if a Constitutional Convention proposed approved this week is ratified by the voters later this year.

The proposal for greater executive power for the county board president had been made to Con-Con by County Commissioners Carl Hansen of Mount Prospect and Floyd Fuller of Des Plaines.

Under their proposal, the county board president would not run for a commissioner's seat, as he does now, and would have the authority to appoint committee chairmen and run the various county departments.

Fuller and Hansen told Con-Con's local government committee in May that Cook County government has operated "inefficiently and ineffectively" because there is no clear division between an executive and legislative branch.

Another county-related proposal approved by the convention this week would allow Cook County voters to decide if they want to retain two county districts (Chicago and suburban) or if they want to adopt single member districts for commissioners.

Currently, the Cook County board includes 10 Chicago commissioners and five suburban commissioners.

Hate crabgrass? You'll love CLOUT!

Just spread CLOUT on your lawn and it's good-bye crabgrass. The ugly stuff starts to curl up and disappear within days. One or two follow-up applications at weekly intervals will polish it off completely.

Yet CLOUT is kind to good grass — lets it grow merrily on to fill in where the crabgrass was. Result? A thicker, handsomer lawn — without ugly crabgrass.

Low-Cal Lunch Is Dieters' Delight

Seasonal fruits and cottage cheese are favorite foods for summertime luncheon. The sweet and tart flavors of fresh fruit complement the mild, creamy cottage cheese. For the diet-conscious, this combination is low in calories, high in necessary nutrients, yet satisfying and refreshing.

Those on a weight-reducing diet know that they must continue to include milk and dairy products, to maintain one of their most important allies to healthful weight reduction.

Actually, milk is very necessary for the weight-watcher. It contains high quality proteins, minerals and vitamins that are essential to good health. Milk and dairy products pack more nutrition into each calorie than almost any other food. In addition, milk and dairy products have "staying power" to keep the dieter feeling full for a longer period of time — and he (or she) will be less apt to snack on high calorie-low nutritive value foods.

COTTAGE CHEESE FRUIT PLATE
2 pound carton creamed cottage cheese, large or small curd
Pineapple and apple slices
Pear and peach halves
Grapes, raspberries, strawberries, blueberries
Leaves of lettuce

Place a scoop of cottage cheese in lettuce leaf cut in center of dinner plate. Arrange fruit in spiral from mound. Garnish with mint leaves. Makes 8 servings. Serve with banana nut bread and glass of milk to complete luncheon menu.

BANANA NUT BREAD
1/2 cup butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup mashed banana (about 3 medium)
1/2 cup chopped pecans
Cream butter and sugar together until fluffy. Add eggs; mix well. Sift together flour, baking powder, salt, soda and nutmeg. Add to creamed mixture alternately with mashed banana; stir until dry ingredients are moistened. Gently stir in pecans. Pour into a well-greased 9x5x3-inch loaf pan (or into two well-greased small loaf pans 7-3/8 x 3-5/8 x 2-1/4 inch).

Bake large loaf in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, until done, 45 to 50 minutes. Bake small loaves about 35 minutes. Makes 1 large loaf or 2 small loaves.

ANOTHER WISE CHOICE for a low-calorie lunch is grapefruit, which is high in the valuable vitamin C you need daily. Fresh grapefruit halves can be sectioned and the pieces combined with shrimp, chicken or vegetable fillings. After preparation, the fillings are returned to the grapefruit shells for attractive salad servings.

When sectioning the grapefruit, be careful to save the juice. It's used as the liquid in blending each of the following three delicious fillings.

THREE GRAPEFRUIT SALADS
Use two grapefruits; this makes four servings.

To prepare grapefruit shells, cut grapefruit in half; cut around each section. Remove grapefruit pieces; drain and reserve fruit and juice. Remove membrane from grapefruit shells; discard. Chill shells.

SHRIMP FILLING
1 pound shrimp, cooked, cleaned, chilled
1/4 cup catsup
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1/2 cup minced celery
1/2 teaspoon salt
Combine grapefruit pieces and shrimp. Blend together remaining ingredients with 2 tablespoons grapefruit juice. Add to grapefruit-shrimp mixture; toss lightly. Chill 1 hour; spoon into grapefruit shells.

CHICKEN FILLING
2 cups diced cooked chicken
1/4 cup sliced pimiento-stuffed olives
1/2 cup sour cream
1/2 teaspoon salt
Combine grapefruit pieces, chicken and olives. Blend 2 tablespoons grapefruit juice with sour cream and salt. Add to grapefruit-chicken mixture; toss lightly. Chill 1 hour; spoon into grapefruit shells.

VEGETABLE FILLING
2 cups sliced beets, drained
1 cucumber, sliced
1 small red onion, sliced

COTTAGE CHEESE and fresh fruits make a picture-pretty salad good enough to eat. It's low in calories, high in nutrients. With it, serve Banana Nut Bread and a glass of milk.

1/2 teaspoon salt
Lettuce
Combine grapefruit pieces, beets, and 1 tablespoons grapefruit juice with remaining ingredients. Chill 1 hour; spoon into grapefruit shells that have been lined with lettuce.

Creative Cookery Finds Outlet in New Kitchen

HIGH AND HANDSOME Alaska Melba Pie is ready for serving by Mary Jo Morgan. The fancy frozen dessert topped with meringue has just been popped into the oven for quick browning.

Specialties Whet Family Appetites

by LOIS SEILER

Cooking in her recently remodeled kitchen is a source of constant pleasure for Mrs. Jack E. Morgan of 1170 N. Beverly, Arlington Heights.

She has always loved to cook and bake and, thanks to her husband, she can now do so in a new kitchen complete with all the modern conveniences.

"Jack designed and built it himself during his spare time," Mary Jo Morgan proudly exclaimed. "His flight schedule allows certain blocks of time at home, and being handy with his hands he set to work on this project."

Formerly a Marine Corps pilot, Jack is now with Eastern Airlines. The family moved to Arlington three years ago, buying an older home.

He installed Mediterranean-style cabinets, built in a stove and dishwasher, paneled and wallpapered the walls, put ceramic tile above the counters and carpeted the floor.

The cool blue-green color scheme complements the warmth of the walnut cabinets and paneling. It is in this pleasant atmosphere that Mary Jo prepares such specialties as her Alaska Melba Pie. Made by a method similar to that used for Baked Alaska, this dessert uses a pie crust as a base rather than cake. And Mary Jo's excellent pie crust is failure-proof. She uses her mother's recipe which calls for lard, an ingredient that makes the flakiest pastry imaginable.

Into the baked crust she assembles layers of ice cream and a tasty raspberry sauce, producing a marbling effect. Then a high meringue is spread over the top.

At this stage, the dessert is frozen. It is simply popped into the oven for five minutes to brown the meringue before serving.

"The meringue and crust act as insulation for the ice cream and the quick baking period doesn't affect its frozen state," Mary Jo remarked. "It is very impressive as a bridge dessert, and makes a festive finale for a fancy dinner."

One of her favorite entrees for a dinner party is Hungarian Chicken Paprika.

She uses chicken breasts for this dish, browning them with onion and simmering them in chicken broth generously seasoned with paprika. After the chicken is done, sour cream is blended in to make an elegant sauce which is served over the tender and tasty chicken.

As accompaniments for this elegant dish, Mary Jo suggests Onion-Mushroom Rice, peas and French bread or rolls.

Easy to prepare, the rice dish is made by simmering regular rice and mushrooms in canned onion soup. It is fluffy in texture with lots of flavor.

"A light dessert is preferable with this rich meal, while the Alaska Melba Pie is best with a light dinner or plain food," Mary Jo advised.

While cooking is her favorite home-making activity, Mary Jo also enjoys sewing for herself and her daughter, Janet, who is 6. She also has a son Michael, 4.

A Sunday school teacher at the local First Presbyterian Church, Mary Jo also belongs to a church circle, is active in the PTA at Olive School, and when time permits she takes courses at Harper Junior College which will eventually lead to her becoming a registered nurse.

In her spare time, Mary Jo likes to refinish furniture, and for real relaxation she enjoys playing the piano.

ALASKA MELBA PIE

Crust:
3 cups flour
1 cup lard
1 egg
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vinegar
5 tablespoons water
Cut lard into flour with a fork or pastry blender.

Beat egg; add salt, vinegar and water. Stir into flour-lard mixture with a fork. Form into a ball. (Can keep in refrigerator for a week.)

Roll out on floured cloth, using a floured, cloth-covered rolling pin. Makes one large double crust and one single shell.

For the Alaska Melba Pie, use 1/3 of the dough to make a 9 or 10-inch shell. Prick bottom. Bake at 425 degrees for 15 minutes. Let cool completely.

Prepare the following sauce:
1 10-ounce package frozen raspberries, thawed
2/3 cup sugar

Dash of cream of tartar
Press raspberries through a sieve into a small saucepan. Stir in sugar and cream of tartar. Heat quickly, stirring constantly, to boiling. Then continue cooking and stirring constantly for three minutes. Cool thoroughly.

Have ready 1/2-gallon vanilla ice cream.

Scoop ice cream in big, flat spoonful and place petal-fashion in bottom of cooled pie shell. Drizzle with raspberry sauce and continue layering until all the sauce and ice cream are used.

Cover with the following meringue:

4 egg whites
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
Dash of cream of tartar
1/2 cup sugar

Beat egg whites, vanilla and cream of tartar until foamy. Gradually add sugar, beating constantly until quite thick. Spread over top of pie, making sure meringue touches shell. Place in freezer.

Before serving, bake in 425 degree oven for five minutes or until meringue is lightly browned. (Leftovers may be returned to freezer.) Serves 8.

HUNGARIAN CHICKEN PAPRIKA

8 to 10 chicken breast halves
5 tablespoons flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon oregano
2 ounces butter
1 tablespoon olive oil
1 large onion, sliced
2 tablespoons paprika
1 cup chicken stock or bouillon
1 cup sour cream

Place flour, salt, pepper and oregano in paper bag. Add chicken and shake well to coat chicken evenly.

Brown chicken in oil and butter for 15 minutes. Add onion and cook five minutes longer.

Add paprika and chicken stock and bring to boiling point, stirring constantly. Reduce heat and simmer until chicken is tender, 20 minutes or more.

Reduce heat to very low and slowly blend in sour cream a little at a time so it does not separate. Mix well and cook two minutes longer. Serves 6.

ONION-MUSHROOM RICE

2 tablespoons butter
3/4 cup regular rice
1 can sliced mushrooms and juice
1 can onion soup
3/4 cup water

Melt butter in large pan. Add remaining ingredients. Cover and simmer for 30 minutes. Serves 6.

Guide for Food Shoppers

by JANET LEBEM

NEW YORK (UPI) — Uncle Sam's advice on buying and storing food is Grade A and mostly free. But until recently, a shopper either had to cram her purse with individual folders and booklets or memorize their contents.

Now, the latest U. S. Department of Agriculture USDA information on shopping and storing fresh and processed foods is available in one convenient 9½-ounce, purse-size paperback book that is as practical for grocery shoppers as field guides are for birdwatchers and amateur botanists.

"How to Buy Food" was compiled and edited by Valerie Moolman from USDA publications and published by Cornerstone Library.

Chapters on beef steaks and roasts are immensely helpful, with photographs of basic cuts and captions that tell how to recognize each and the best methods for cooking them. Strangely and regrettably, similar information on veal, lamb, pork products and variety meats is omitted.

To its credit, the $1 book describes safe storage times and methods for dozens of different foods. It recommends refrigerating fragile berries uncovered in shallow containers so they won't crush under their own weight. Washing them just before mealtime also is suggested, to retard spoilage.

Directions for three different methods of thawing uncooked poultry are a great help for last-minute meals or coping with big birds when refrigerator space is limited. Poultry thawed in a water-tight wrapper in several changes of cold water will take about 1 hour for small birds, or 6 to 8 hours for large turkeys, writes Miss Moolman.

Another safe room temperature method involves placing the poultry in its original plastic wrap in a closed, double-wall paper bag or wrapping it in newspaper and setting it in a corrugated box. All poultry should be thawed only until pliable.

Fresh fruit and vegetables are cheapest when they're in season. But how does a city dweller recognize harvest time unless he drives past a farm or an orchard when the pickers are at work? Miss Moolman's book reproduces a USDA chart that indicates month-by-month, when 28 different fruits are in good, fair or small supply.

She advises against buying vegetables that have begun to decay, even though they're priced lower than unblemished produce. Decay spreads rapidly, so you'll probably end up with less edible fruit for the money than you would if you buy top quality.

An alphabetical buying guide for fresh vegetables describes the signs of good and bad produce. With carrots, a shapeless, smooth, firm and well-colored appearance is desirable. Roots that have large green "sunburned" areas at the top and flabby roots are not.

Shoppers baffled by the net weights quoted on canned and frozen food labels get help in planning servings both from the text and from charts that indicate the volume of solids in various standard size cans and packages. Half a cup of solids is considered an adult serving of vegetables, and ¼ to 1/3 cup, a serving for small children and light eaters.

To save money on canned and frozen vegetables, cut styles are recommended instead of whole ones, because it's hard — and also costlier — to keep fragile products whole during processing. But fancy-cut vegetables, such as french-style green beans and julienne carrots, usually are more expensive than plain cuts.

Grade A and fancy vegetables are suggested for serving when attractiveness and top flavor are desired, but Grade B and Extra Standard quality also are nutritious and a good buy for casseroles, gelatin salads, soups, purees and soufflés, in which shape, tenderness and flavor are secondary.

Lasagna Is Perfect Choice

Lasagna is still a favorite with many, so why not plan your next dinner party around it?

The tasty entree can be prepared ahead, and a salad is really all the last-minute preparation you need do. Lasagna is the perfect choice for large groups.

To simplify preparation and serving, U. S. Stamping Co. has introduced colorful new baking dishes that are perfect for lasagna. They come in two sizes, have removable chrome handles to facilitate oven-to-table use, and are available in vibrant blue, orange or avocado green. Here's a sure-fire lasagna recipe:

LASAGNA

- 2 cans Italian-style peeled tomatoes (No. 2½)
- 4 cans tomato sauce (8 oz. ea.)
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 3 teaspoons dried oregano
- 2 teaspoons onion salt
- 2 cups minced onions
- 2 minced cloves garlic
- 1/3 cup olive oil
- 2 lb. ground beef
- 2 teaspoons monosodium glutamate
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ¼ lb. lasagna noodles

- 2 tablespoons cooking oil
- ¼ lb. Ricotta cheese
- 1/3 lb. thinly sliced or crumbled Mozzarella cheese
- ¼ lb. grated Parmesan cheese

In a large saucepan combine the tomatoes, sauce, salt, oregano and onion salt. Sauté minced onions and garlic uncovered in the olive oil until golden. Add to the simmering mixture the ground beef, monosodium glutamate and salt, and cook just until the meat turns pink. Add the meat mixture to the tomato sauce and simmer another 2½ hours.

Cook the lasagna noodles according to package directions; add 2 tablespoons cooking oil to the water. Stir occasionally, drain and separate noodles. Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

Now, using a 16x10 1/8 x 2 3/8 lasagna dish or two of the smaller, 12 1/8 x 7 1/2 x 2 1/8 dishes, put a thin layer of sauce in the bottom, then a criss-cross layer of the lasagna noodles and a layer of cheese.

Repeat this procedure twice. The final cheese layer should be covered once more with sauce and a sprinkling of Parmesan cheese.

Bake for about 40 minutes. Let lasagna stand for 10 or 15 minutes before cutting.

SOPHISTICATED BUT SENSIBLE
French salad is a satisfying family main dish, complete with protein, vitamins and minerals. Canned tuna, star of this "Nicoise" salad, is kind to the budget, as well.

Tuna 'Nicoise'

The Liveliest Salad

Sometimes the simplest things are the best. Tuna Salad Nicoise, an adaptation of the French classic salad, falls into that category. Easy to prepare but elegant in result, this superb salad creation can highlight a summer family meal delightfully.

The French take their salads seriously. They must be artistically satisfying, tasty and budget-sparing. Tuna Nicoise is a sophisticated salad. But it is sensible like its French kin. This tuna salad is nutritious in protein and, at the same time, economical as a protein buy (particularly when compared with other protein foods).

In the bowl, sliced cooked potatoes and bright red tomato quarters alternate cheerily with the white and yellow of hard-cooked eggs. Shiny black olives, reminiscent of the Mediterranean, are ringed with silvery-pink circles of sweet red onion. Cooked green beans provide a further pleasing color contrast. The base of the salad bowl is lined with the spring green of finely shredded lettuce. And in the center of the salad bowl the star, tuna, takes the stage, mounded neatly in tender chunks.

This is not a tossed salad. It can be prepared a little ahead of time, covered with plastic wrap and kept refrigerated until time to eat. At serving time, you simply pour a zesty French dressing over the "Nicoise" to unite all of the tantalizing flavors and present it to guests. That's all there is to this elegant salad, as appealing and admirable as those served on the charming, shaded terraces of Riviera cafes.

TUNA NICOISE

- 1 head lettuce
- 2 cans (6½ or 7 ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil
- 1 cup cooked sliced potatoes
- 1 cup cooked cut green beans
- 3 hard-cooked eggs, quartered
- 3 tomatoes, quartered
- 1 sweet red onion, sliced
- 12 ripe olives

French dressing

Finely shred lettuce; place in large shallow bowl. Break tuna into large pieces and pile in center of bowl. Surround with ring of potatoes and then with beans. Alternate egg and tomato quarters around beans. Separate onion slices into rings and cover ingredients. Garnish with olives. When ready to serve, pour on French Dressing and toss.

Yield: 4 servings.

FRENCH DRESSING

- ¾ teaspoon salt
 - ½ teaspoon Ac'cent
 - 1/8 teaspoon garlic powder
 - Dash paprika
 - 1/3 cup lemon juice or vinegar
 - 2/3 cup salad oil
 - ½ teaspoon dried leaf basil
- Combine salt, Ac'cent, garlic powder, paprika and lemon juice; stir until dry ingredients are dissolved. Add salad oil and basil; shake or beat until blended.

WHIPPED CREAM SUBSTITUTE

To make a good topping for fresh fruit shortcake, you need the following ingredients:

- ½ cup non-fat dried milk
- ½ cup ice water
- 1 egg white
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- ¼ cup sugar

Chill a small bowl and combine in it the dried milk, ice water and egg white, beating at high speed. Add lemon juice and beat a minute more. Gradually add vanilla and sugar and beat until fluffy. Since this topping doesn't keep its form as long as whipped cream, it is best made close to serving time. Makes four cups. Freeze any unused portion.

Eating for the heart's sake can delight the most epicurean tastes. Try this delicious beef bourguignonne or lemon-baked chicken and watch your husband's eyes light up.

Dairy Goods Can Be Kept Fresher

Here are a few tips on cooking with and caring for dairy products.

Fluid milk, cream and cultured milk products are at their very best in flavor and nutritive value when they are kept clean, cold and tightly covered. Rinse off the bottle or carton and dry with a clean cloth before placing it in the coldest part of your refrigerator.

Keeping these dairy products tightly covered will prevent absorption of odors and flavors from other foods in the refrigerator.

Don't let milk and cream stand in the light because it destroys the vitamin, riboflavin and may cause an off flavor. Put these products in the refrigerator as soon as possible after they are purchased or delivered to your home, and take them out only long enough to measure the amount needed for immediate use.

Low-Calorie Yogurt

Yogurt is one of the most versatile forms of nourishment ever discovered or invented. Available in various size containers, it comes in plain, orange and vanilla as well as the fruit preserve varieties of strawberry, prune whip and pineapple.

Low in calories, Yogurt has one-half the calorie-loaded butterfat removed while retaining high protein and mineral content.

YOGURT IS so versatile that it can be used "around the clock." Here are some interesting ideas from Dannon Yogurt home economists that you might want to try for enjoyment of this flavorful, yet nutritious food.

For breakfast, combine yogurt with dry cereal. Or, for a protein packed pep-up, try fruit flavored yogurt. To create a satisfying salad for a summer luncheon, blend delicious fruit flavored yogurt in a vegetable, fruit or molded salad.

And don't forget dinner when a delicious dessert tops off the best of meals. Serve plain or fruit flavored yogurt in a sherbet dish and offer fruit or sweet syrup toppings.

Soon the whole family will be saying, "Yippee for Yogurt!"

New Barbecue Treat Emerges From Reuben

People who are partial to the robust flavor of a Reuben sandwich will take quickly to the unique treat of a barbecued rolled Reuben and those with hearty appetites will come running back for more.

This variation of the traditional Reuben sandwich was developed specially for covered kettle cooking by the gourmet chefs at Weber-Stephen Products Company, originators of the covered barbecue kettle.

Barbecued Rolled Reuben Sandwiches (Serves 6)

- 6 thin cut sandwich steaks
- 6 Swiss Cheese slices
- 6 hot dog buns
- 1 can sauerkraut
- Thousand Island Dressing
- Toothpicks

Lay sandwich steak flat and season to taste with salt and pepper. Spread with a thin layer of drained sauerkraut and top with a slice of Swiss cheese. Lift the edge of the steak, roll up tightly with sauerkraut and cheese and skewer with toothpicks to hold the roll.

Place the rolls on the grill and cook over medium heat for 15 minutes, rotating them each five minutes to brown all around.

Serve in hot dog buns spread with Thousand Island dressing or top each roll with dressing after it has been placed into a bun.

The Pennsylvania Dutch are noted for their charming old-world manner of speaking and delicious food. When invited to dinner, for example, you will be asked to "eat yourself full" of many "wonderful good" things.

Cooks in Pennsylvania Dutch country are probably most noted for their mouth-watering egg noodles, known locally as "geschnitzte nudle." And since these cooks are notably frugal, noodles which make other foods go farther, are the backbone of the daily menu. They vary the noodle dishes, though, by putting "lots of stuff" in them.

In this recipe, mushrooms, chopped onion, tomatoes, and cheese are added for a mixed variety of appealing flavors. Luckily, the busy homemaker doesn't have the chore of making her own noodles. She can now buy "wonderful good" egg noodles, made with the Pennsylvania Dutch tastiness, in her supermarket.

Serve this hearty noodle casserole, based on packaged stroganoff egg noodles, with another typical specialty — meat loaf with hard-cooked eggs hidden in the center. And don't forget the corn bread and apple butter, and other "sweets and sours" of your choosing. For dessert, "to top off on," a luscious Shoo-Fly pie and a pot of piping hot tea make a happy ending to an intriguing meal.

NOODLES MIT A FLAIR

1 package (8 oz. Stroganoff Egg Noodles)
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 cup sliced mushrooms
1 cup chopped onion
1 cup chopped, seeded, peeled tomatoes
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon white pepper
1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
8 small whole peeled tomatoes
Preheat oven to 375 degrees.
Cook noodles as directed on package; drain.
In large skillet, melt butter; add mushrooms, onion, tomatoes, salt, and pepper.

THIS HEARTY casserole with tomatoes, mushrooms and onions, uses convenient packaged stroganoff egg noodles for that homemade tastiness.

Cook about 5 minutes, stirring frequently. Add noodles. Then blend in 1/4 cup cheese; turn into a buttered 2-quart baking dish.

typical of Pennsylvania Dutch cooking. Serve "Noodles Mit a Flair" with corn bread and apple butter for a "wonderful good" meal.

Bury tomatoes in noodle mixture and top with remaining cheese. Bake 15 to 20 minutes or until top is brown. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Beef Prices Reflect Inflation Pressures

by GAYNOR MADDOX

We are definitely a beef-eating nation. For that reason, the price of steak, hamburger and roasts in the coming months might well be taken as a key to inflationary trends.

"For the rest of 1970 beef output is expected to show only a slight gain. The gain over the first quarter of the year was about 3 to 4 per cent. From now on it is expected to increase at a slower rate," says Dawson Ahalt, economist with the U.S. Economic Research Service.

"As the gain in beef production will be very little and as consumer demand is expected to continue strong, I wouldn't expect any major change in beef prices during the remainder of this year," he adds.

He comments further: "If inflationary pressures ease, as a number of economists predict, and supplies of meat expand, especially of pork, (as well as broiler-fryer chickens) then producers' prices for livestock are expected to drop below those earlier this year. This could mean a variance, but in a very narrow range in retail food store prices. This forecast assumes, it must be remembered, that the spread between retail and farm prices, which had widened sharply earlier, will level off. They may even narrow in the coming months."

But this is only an economic presumption. Prices generally continue to go up though at a less-accelerated rate than previously. And beef is almost a passion with Americans. Under continuing inflationary pressures, consumers are cutting expenses. On things other than food, but especially not on beef. In fact, we seem to be eating better today as a nation than at any time in the last 15 years.

Actually, many people have more expendable cash. There have been major wage increases. The remaining surcharge of 5 per cent on income tax is off. Also, the recent addition of 10 per cent to Social Security payments has boosted many incomes. This all adds up to about 7 per cent increases.

On the other side of the ledger, our unemployment figures continue to rise, business is temporarily moderating expenditures on plants and equipment and money continues very tight.

"Prices for food eaten away from home are expected to continue to increase during the rest of the year. They probably will go over 8 per cent. Retail food prices also will continue to go higher than last year. But these increases will be at a somewhat slower rate than they have been earlier this year," according to Ahalt. "Many people may be forced to cut down on food spending, too. They may have to turn to pork products and chicken because of their lower prices," Ahalt says.

But beef — steaks, hamburger, roasts — continues the No. 1 choice of Americans. A porterhouse steak averages $1.60 a pound. To gauge the rate of inflation compare the price per pound today with what you must pay in the future. This gives a good general index to the increase or modification of the inflationary pressures.

Bargain Buys in Pork

German Accent in Any Season

Those who watch their newspaper food ads each week know that pork prices are relatively low now.

A German pork butt makes a "stretch food for family eating. When served with celery and apples it is a dish for any season. Those with hooded or covered barbecue grills can cook the pork butt outdoors. Merely insert a meat thermometer and watch it for doneness. It is a special treat, whether done indoors or outdoors.

GERMAN PORK BUTT WITH CELERY & APPLES

5 pounds fresh pork butt
4 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
1 1/2 teaspoons powdered mustard
1 1/2 teaspoons warm water
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
1 tablespoon prepared horseradish
1 tablespoon caraway seed
2 large onions (2 cups) sliced
1 stalk Florida celery
2 red apples, peeled, cored and diced

Rub meat on all sides with salt and black pepper. Place on rack in roasting pan. Brown in preheated 450-degree oven 1 hour. Mix mustard with warm water; let stand 10 minutes for flavor to develop. In a small bowl, combine mustard with tomato sauce, horseradish and caraway seed; mix well. Pour over top of meat. Sprinkle with onions. Cover. Reduce oven heat to 375 degrees. Roast for 3 1/2 hours. Meanwhile trim celery (save leaves for soups, stews, etc.). Cut ribs into 1-inch pieces (makes about 1 quart). Add celery to roasting pan 1 hour before meat is done and add apples 1/2-hour later.

er. Remove meat to serving platter; slice. Surround with celery and apples.

Serve with gravy if desired. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Watermelon Can Spark Menu

On a hot summer day, cool it with ice-cold watermelon, suggests the U.S. Department of Agriculture. During August, supplies of this popular summer fruit will be abundant.

Ordinarily, watermelon is served freshly cut into slices or wedges. However, there are other ways to serve this delicious fruit. For example, watermelon balls of various sizes can be made with measuring spoons or teaspoons. Other geometric designs that can be cut out of watermelon include strips, cubes, hearts and diamonds.

Enjoy such designs in the following: WATERMELON CUP — Sprinkle juice of two fresh limes over three cups watermelon balls or cubes. Add three to four tablespoons chopped fresh mint leaves. Chill. Serve in well-chilled sherbet glass with a mint sprig.

WATERMELON CHIPS — Cut ripe watermelon into strips about 1/4 inch thick and two inches long. Serve with cantaloupe balls in a hollowed-out cantaloupe half, garnished with watercress.

WATERMELON BLUEBERRY DELIGHT — Combine cubes of watermelon and plump blueberries in a large serving bowl. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and chill.

Ham Salad Cools Hot Weather Appetites

"It's hot; too hot to eat," means the family. Then they proceed to eat three meals a day, seven days a week. Arouse appetites with a meat dish like this ham salad.

HAM SALAD TROPICAL

2 cups cooked ham, cut julienne strips
1/2 cup diced celery
2/3 cup diced pineapple, drained
1 tablespoon chopped sweet pickle
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 tablespoon French dressing

1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 large ripe banana
Flaked coconut, if desired
Combine ham, celery, pineapple and sweet pickle. Mix mayonnaise, French dressing and mustard. Add to salad ingredients and mix lightly. Chill. Just before serving peel banana and cut in 1/4 inch-thick slices. Fold carefully into salad mixture.
Serve on crisp salad greens. Sprinkle top of salad with flaked coconut if desired. 5 to 6 servings.

HAMBURGERS AND potato salad are standard summer fare, but you can give them a brighter outlook by making Inside-Out Cheeseburgers. Chiffon Pie requires no baking. A and Orange and Potato Salad.

Inside-Out Cheeseburgers, Orange Potato Salad Vary Old Favorites

One of life's small joys is a recipe for a new kind of hamburger, or at least it can seem so on a day when you're trying to plan an economical meal based on ground beef. Don't despair — the never-ending ground beef recipe search has turned up another fine one to try.

Inside-out Cheeseburgers are quick and easy cheeseburgers with two new twists. First, the cheese, Cheddar or Roquefort, as you wish, is put in the middle of the burgers and not on top. The second trick is adding a luscious new flavor to ground beef by using the new Shake 'n Bake Seasoned Coating Mix for Hamburger. Just shake the patties in the plastic bag with the mix and let the oven take over for about 15 minutes' baking.

The special seasonings in the mix complement ground beef, and the oven method insures burgers that are plump and juicy. Serve the burgers with toasted buns if you want, but weight-watchers, who usually go bunless, will especially appreciate the savory flavor of the burgers by themselves.

TRY THE NEW hamburgers for an informal meal on the porch, and serve with Orange and Potato Salad. For dessert, make some Jumbo Raisin Cookies to serve with fresh fruit.

Inside-Out Cheeseburgers

- 1 envelope seasoned coating mix for hamburger
- 2 pounds ground beef
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Dash of pepper
- 8 slices Cheddar cheese, crumbled or 4 ounces Roquefort cheese.
- Toasted hamburger buns (optional)

Empty seasoned coating mix into shaker bag. Combine ground beef with salt and pepper. Form into 16 thin patties. Place some of the cheese between 2 patties; seal edges. Repeat with remaining patties. Shake 1 burger at a time in bag until evenly coated. Place in ungreased shallow baking pan. Bake at 400 degrees for about 15 minutes. Serve on buns. Makes 8 burgers.

Note: Burgers may be prepared and coated, then chilled until ready to bake.

Orange and Potato Salad

- 1 envelope onion salad dressing mix
- ¾ cup sour cream
- ¼ cup mayonnaise
- 6 cups sliced cooked potatoes
- 1 cup orange sections

Combine salad dressing mix, sour cream, and mayonnaise. Stir into potatoes along with the orange sections, mixing well. Serve on salad greens. Makes about 6 cups or 6 to 8 servings.

Jumbo Raisin Cookies

- 2 cups raisins
- 1 cup water
- 4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon double-acting baking powder
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 cup butter or shortening or ½ cup butter and ½ cup shortening
- 1½ cups sugar
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ½ cup chopped nuts

Bring raisins and water to a boil. Boil until the raisins are plump — about 3 minutes. Set aside to cool. (Do not drain.) Sift flour with baking powder, soda, salt, and spices.

Cream butter. Gradually blend in sugar, creaming well after each addition. Add eggs and vanilla; mix well. Stir in the raisins and any remaining water. Gradually add the flour mixture, blending thoroughly after each addition. Stir in the nuts.

Drop by tablespoonfuls, about 2 inches apart, onto greased baking sheets. Bake at 375 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes. Makes about 3½ dozen cookies.

Outdoor Grill Cooking Not Restricted Only to Meat

The cook who is accomplished at cooking meat on the outdoor grill will often be found running indoors at the last minute to add to the meal vegetables that have been cooked on the kitchen range. With a little know-how, the vegetables, too, can be cooked on the grill, sharing in the delicious charcoal flavor that makes the meat taste so good.

A fire of charcoal briquets that has been brought to the stage of a light gray ash is ideal for cooking vegetables as well as meat. You need to watch your timing with this kind of cookery, advises the Charcoal Briquet Institute. Timing varies according to the vegetable and the method of grilling, as you will see from the recipes that follow.

Mediterranean Vegetable Kabobs are a delicious vegetable course to serve with grilled meat. Fresh vegetables such as eggplant, zucchini, mushrooms, green pepper and small white onions, are marinated in lemon juice and salad oil herbed with basil. Then they are alternated on skewers and grilled for 10 to 15 minutes over the charcoal briquets. Cherry tomatoes are added just before the kabobs are finished cooking for color and flavor contrast.

YOU'LL FIND THESE Vegetable Kabobs perfectly delectable with steak, chicken, hamburgers or any grilled meat or fish.

Barbequed Potatoes are a nice filling addition to an outdoor dinner but these require about an hour to cook. So start them ahead on the grill or at the side of the charcoal briquet coals, roasting them until they are tender and turning them occasionally.

Corn is probably the most popular accompaniment to barbecued meat and chicken in outdoor cooking weather. Don't heat up your kitchen by boiling corn in a pot. Next time you're cooking out, wrap buttered, seasoned corn in foil and roast on the grill. That's corn in real old-fashioned American Indian style and it's just wonderful for outdoor meals.

vises starting your fire from one-half to one hour in advance of when you plan to cook to insure briquets at just the right, even heat for ideal grilling of meat and vegetables.

THE CHARCOAL Briquet Institute advises if you have any difficulty getting your fire started, try pre-soaking the charcoal briquets. Using a liquid starter, soak 8 to 10 charcoal briquets in a coffee can until they stop bubbling, usually from 20 to 30 minutes. Arrange them at the outer edge of a pyramid of briquets so that they will light faster than the rest and start the fire more quickly. After the fire has reached the gray ash stage, spread the briquets out about an inch apart, using long handled tongs. This will provide even cooking heat.

MEDITERRANEAN VEGETABLE KABOBS

- 1 medium eggplant, pared and cut in 1½-inch cubes
- 2 medium zucchini, cut in 1-inch pieces
- ½ pound mushrooms
- 1 green pepper, cut in 1½-inch squares
- 1 cup salad oil
- 1/3 cup lemon juice
- 1 clove garlic, sliced
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon sugar
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ½ teaspoon dried leaf basil
- 18 cherry tomatoes
- Grated Parmesan cheese

Place eggplant, zucchini, mushrooms, green pepper and onions in shallow dish. Mix together salad oil, lemon juice, garlic, salt, sugar, pepper and basil; pour over vegetables. Cover and marinate at room temperature for 2 or 3 hours. Remove vegetables from marinade and alternate pieces on 8 skewers. Sprinkle with salt and pepper.

Grill 10 to 15 minutes, turning occasionally and basting frequently with marinade. Just before vegetables are tender, add cherry tomatoes to ends of skewers. Continue grilling until all vegetables are tender and tomatoes are heated. Serve sprinkled with grated Parmesan cheese.

Yield: 6 servings.

BARBECUED POTATOES

Wrap potatoes in foil and roast on grill or at side of charcoal briquet coals until tender, 45 to 60 minutes, turning occasionally.

BARBECUED CORN

8 ears corn
½ cup soft butter or margarine salt
Pepper
Remove husks and silk from ears of corn. Place each ear on a piece of heavy-duty aluminum foil. Spread each with 1 tablespoon soft butter. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Wrap in foil, double wrapping if fire is very hot, or if corn is to be placed directly on coals. Roast 20 to 25 minutes, turning occasionally.

Pickles for Snacks

Here's a snack-time tip for mothers who want to promote nutritional foods. Allow youngsters access to chilled pickles as a snack food. Pickles retain all the vitamins of cucumbers and actually have a higher Vitamin A content than the parent vegetable.

Being naturally digestible, pickle snacks, both sweet and dill, are not likely to curb a youngster's appetite for supper, as do sugar-based snack foods.

Add Flair with Buns

Whether your family enjoys summertime campsite cooking or prefers backyard cookouts, you'll be interested in these campsite, backyard, and patio specials using versatile hamburger buns. With so little effort, you can create many new and tasty summer suppers with variety buns that will add flair to your family's cookout fun.

Just remember, whether you're in your own backyard, a spot in the woods, or on a sandy beach, the food smells better, tastes better, and appetites are bigger, so plan hearty meals.

The traditional hamburgers and hot dogs of cookouts are always fun, but add zest to summer living by experimenting with these old familiar favorites. You can enjoy the "eat out of hand" convenience of buns but still have the glamour of the Polynesian approach to hamburgers with the recipe suggested by the American Bakers Association. Croquettes of any type will taste even better served in a warm hamburger bun, and consider the possibilities of croquettes as a delightful new way to disguise the leftovers of the Sunday roast.

ONE IDEA THAT WILL be hearty enough for the hungriest is "Salmon Croquette Burgers." The recipe's a great idea for camping trips since canned salmon can be packed so easily. Even in the great outdoors, you can prepare a savory supper. Combine flaked salmon, eggs, and bread crumbs. Shape into patties. Coat sides with crumbs, and cook in hot oil until lightly browned. What a tasty summer supper — served with slices of tomato and lettuce slipped between a warm bun. These easy-to-eat burgers can be topped with mayonnaise or relish.

Another variety recipe using buns is "Grilled Burgers Tropical." A tantalizing sauce of brown sugar, pineapple juice, mustard, and spiced with horseradish is brushed over sizzling ground beef patties during grilling. These saucy burgers, served with sliced pineapple rings and pickle relish, will be a family favorite for sure.

SALMON CROQUETTE BURGERS

- 2 cans, (1 pound each) salmon, drained
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 1 cup dry bread crumbs
- 3 tablespoons oil
- 8 tomato slices
- 8 lettuce leaves
- 8 hamburger buns, warmed

Combine salmon, beaten eggs, and ¼ cup bread crumbs. Shape into 8 patties. Sprinkle both sides of patties with remaining crumbs. Heat oil. Cook patties slowly until lightly browned. Serve croquettes with tomato slice and lettuce in warmed buns. Top with other half. Serve with mayonnaise or relish. Makes 8 servings.

GRILLED BURGERS TROPICAL

- 2 pounds ground beef
- 2 tablespoons pineapple juice
- 3 tablespoons brown sugar
- firmly packed
- 1 teaspoon prepared horseradish
- ½ teaspoon dry mustard
- 8 slices pineapple
- 3 tablespoons pickle relish
- 8 hamburger buns warmed

Shape ground beef into 8 patties. Combine pineapple juice, brown sugar, horseradish and mustard. Place hamburger patties on outdoor grill over hot coals or under broiler. Brush top with pineapple marinade. Turn patties occasionally, brushing with marinade. Serve patties with slice of pineapple and relish in warmed buns. Makes 8 servings.

Stretching Food Dollars

Homemakers with many mouths to feed find that stretching their food dollars is a constant challenge. Small comfort to them that government economists state that 17 per cent of their present incomes buys more food than 20 per cent did only a decade ago.

Some hints on food selection and meal planning may be helpful. For instance, who really needs an expensive bacon and egg breakfast? Many nutritionists today feel that a lighter morning meal with cereal served as the main dish is more desirable in meeting the needs of modern living.

THE CEREAL MAIN dish breakfast is not only desirable nutritionally but economically as well. A bowlful of cereal such as corn flakes costs only pennies. It is quick to prepare and to serve. Even children can help themselves if family members do not eat together. These breakfasts can be easily varied by including different fruits and fruit juices, a choice of cereals, providing toaster pastries or rolls instead of toast. Cocoa as a beverage is a pleasant change on cooler mornings.

Adults as well as children need the benefits of protein in morning meals. The "cereal bowl" is an excellent example of the complementation of the protein in milk with that in cereal, adding up to grow and go power.

Little noted even by price conscious housewives is the fact that ready-to-eat cereals are packaged and sold on a nearly dry basis. Each cereal package is filled with nourishing food, practically moisture free. The cost per serving can be figured and compared by "dry" weight unlike many other foods. Another bonus for the diet conscious is that ready-to-eat cereals are nearly fat-free and contain no cholesterol.

Pennies will fill up family breakfast cereal bowls with the "crisp" ones made from the great grains . . . corn, wheat, rice and oats.

Lemon Taffy Chiffon Pie is a most delicious dessert treat to offer summer supper guests. The crust is made from crisp flaked coconut, the filling from unflavored gelatin and whipped cream spiced with fresh lemon juice and sweetened with unsulphured molasses.

This combination of ingredients is enough to make the pie a distinguished dessert any day, but on a sizzling summer day it's twice as welcome! And, to add to its several virtues, it's quite easy to prepare. The crust requires simply combining flaked coconut and melted butter — there's no baking involved. The smooth, airy-light filling uses unflavored gelatin, eggs, and whipped cream. Lemon juice and grated rind, added to the creamy, airy-light filling, make a refreshing, zesty contrast to the sweet, mellow richness of pure, unsulphured molasses.

AT SERVING TIME, the pie is garnished with whipped cream and nutmeg for a taffy-flavored delicacy that will add a cool, pretty note to your menus all summer long.

This island-style pie is perfectly in keeping with the source of molasses. The pure, natural product is a skillful, carefully aged blend of several varieties of molasses made from sugar cane grown in the sunny West Indies.

LEMON TAFFY CHIFFON PIE

- ¼ cup butter, melted
- 2 cups flaked coconut
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- ¼ cup sugar, divided
- 1/8 teaspoon salt
- 2/3 cup water
- 1/3 cup lemon juice
- ¼ cup unsulphured molasses
- 4 eggs, separated
- 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
- 1 cup heavy cream, whipped, divided
- Nutmeg

Combine melted butter and coconut. Press on bottom and sides of a 9-inch pie plate. Chill until firm. Mix together gelatin, cup of the sugar, and the salt in a saucepan. Beat together water, lemon juice, molasses and egg yolks; add to the gelatin mixture. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until gelatin is dissolved, about 4 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in lemon rind. Chill until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Gradually add remaining ¼ cup sugar and beat until very stiff. Fold in gelatin mixture and half the whipped cream. Turn into the chilled coconut shell and chill several hours until firm. Garnish with remaining whipped cream and sprinkle with nutmeg. Yield: One 9-inch pie.

Freezer to Oven Foods Aid Homemaker

Plan Ahead with Delicious Desserts

Everyone enjoys freshly baked fruit pies and tarts, but they take time to prepare. You'll be ahead of the game if you stock your freezer with these delicious desserts — either shells to be filled later with delicious berries or the traditional favorite, a two-crust pie with fruit filling ready to zip into the oven.

When you have a morning without plans, make up a double batch of your favorite pastry. Roll it out and cut it into small circles for tarts, or larger ones for single or double crust pies.

Small circles for tart shells may be stacked with matching circles of foil, overwrapped in foil and frozen in this convenient way. When needed, they take only a few minutes of thawing, then may be shaped by turning up foil and pastry all around and pinching to make a firm rim. Place them on a cookie sheet and bake in usual way.

Use foil pie plates for standard-size pastry shells and stack them, one on top of the other. Rhubarb, blueberry, cherry and other berry pies made with a top crust or a latticed crust, freeze beautifully. So do pecan, chiffon, prune and mince. Apple, peach and other pies made with fruits which discolor must have the addition of a preparation which prevents darkening. Custard and pumpkin pies do not freeze well.

Cut slits in the top crust of two-crust pies. Place all large shells and filled pies in the freezer until firm, then overwrap in foil and return to the freezer. They will keep three to four months.

Frozen pies go direct from the freezer to the oven and are baked at the usual temperature (400 degrees) and take 15 to 20 minutes longer than an unfrozen pie. Place them on a lower oven shelf to help brown the bottom crust.

Already baked pies may be frozen, but it takes as much time to thaw and freshen them in the oven as to bake from the frozen raw state. It is an advantage sometimes to bake small pecan and other tarts first, since they take little time to thaw.

Here is the standard pastry recipe and suggestions for filling:

STANDARD PASTRY

(3 2-crust, 9-inch pies or 6 11-inch circles OR 24 4-inch circles for tarts)
6 cups sifted all-purpose flour
4 teaspoons salt
2 cups shortening (part butter or margarine)
¾ cup cold water

Sift flour and salt together into a large mixing bowl. Add the shortening and cut in with 2 knives or a pastry blender. Sprinkle with the water, mixing with a fork until all the mixture is moistened. Gather the dough together in small amounts and press with the hands to form into 6 balls about 3 inches in diameter. Flatten the balls slightly, wrap in foil.

FRESH CHERRY FILLING

(fills 1 9-inch pie OR 5 3-inch tarts)
4 cups pitted fresh cherries
1-1/3 cups sugar
1/3 cup flour

1 teaspoon almond flavoring
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
Combine the cherries with the sugar, flour and flavoring. Turn into pie shell or tarts and dot with butter. Bake and serve with a topping of whipped cream.

Blueberry pie: use 4 cups blueberries, 1 cup sugar; omit almond flavoring.

LATTICE STRAWBERRY RHUBARB PIE

3 cups cut rhubarb
1 pint strawberries
1 1/4 cups sugar
4 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
freshly grated nutmeg

Roll out one ball of pastry and line a 9-inch pan. Let pastry extend over edge of pan ½ inch all around. Combine rhubarb with washed, hulled and sliced strawberries, sugar and flour. Mix lightly and turn into pastry lined plate. Dot with butter and sprinkle with nutmeg.

Moisten the outer rim of the crust; then roll another ball of pastry into ¼-inch strips and place over the fruit in lattice design. Press ends of strips to rim of crust; then turn up overhanging crust and make decorative edge with fingers. Place in freezer until firm, then wrap in foil, label and store in freezer.

PIES AND TARTS made ahead and stored in the freezer can go straight from the freezer into the oven. There's nothing like a fresh home-baked pie for dessert!

Double-Duty Casseroles

Homemakers concerned with the effect of inflation on their food budgets are learning to shop wisely, use leftovers and plan low-cost menus. Casseroles fit the bill — and they can be made in advance and stored in the freezer, thus saving time, too.

Make double the recipe of your favorite casserole dish, serve one the same day and freeze the other. That frozen one will come in mighty handy some day when you don't feel up to cooking, since it can go right from the freezer to the oven with little or no effort on your part.

It is important to use a shallow dish when freezing casseroles since it takes less time to thaw and reheat a rather thin layer of food. If you cannot spare the casserole dish you choose to use for the frozen food, line it with aluminum foil before you pour in the mixture. Cool and freeze it and when it is solid, just lift the frozen block of food from the dish, overwrap it with the foil, label and return to the freezer.

TO SERVE, RETURN the frozen food to the original casserole and heat in a 325-degree oven, allowing 50 minutes for 1-1/2 quarts of a meat or poultry and vegetable casserole or the macaroni, cheese and mushroom casserole illustrated. It is best to use frozen casseroles within 3 months.

A creamy rich macaroni combined with leftover ham, chicken or with mushrooms is always a favorite and not difficult to prepare.

CREAMY RICH MACARONI CASSEROLE (10 servings)

1 8-ounce pkg. elbow macaroni
1/2 cup butter or margarine
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1/2 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced OR 2 6-ounce cans mushrooms, drained and sliced.
4 tablespoons flour
3 cups milk, heated
3/4 pound American cheese, coarsely grated
1 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon each, paprika and pepper

Cook macaroni as package directs. Melt half the butter in a good sized aluminum skillet and saute mushrooms and onions quickly. Lift out and reserve. Add remaining butter to skillet, melt; add flour and stir and cook without browning for 3 minutes. Add hot milk, stir and cook until smooth and thickened.

Add 2-1/2 cups of the cheese and seasonings. Stir over low heat until thoroughly blended. Drain macaroni. Line two 1-1/2 quart casseroles with heavy duty foil. Arrange a layer of macaroni, onions, mushrooms and sauce in each (pimientos are a colorful substitute for the mushrooms). Repeat, topping second layer with the 1/2 cup cheese. Bake one casserole at 400 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes or until lightly browned.

Thoroughly cool and freeze the second. (Note: Leftover ham, chicken or tongue, cut into small cubes, is delicious in this casserole.)

Strawberry Cream Tarts Are A Time-Saver Treat

For the homemaker who doesn't have as much time as she'd like for making pastry dough "from scratch," here's a Strawberry Cream Tart made with Pie mix that looks just as home-baked as a pie can be. It features luscious fresh strawberries, vanilla pudding and tart shells.

STRAWBERRY CREAM TARTS

1 11-ounce pkg. pie crust mix
1 package vanilla pudding
1/2 cup heavy cream, whipped
1 quart fresh strawberries red currant jelly, melted
Prepare pastry following package directions and roll out 1/8 inch in thickness. Using a saucer or other round dish as a guide, cut circles of heavy duty aluminum foil. A 4-inch circle will make a 2-1/2 inch tart.

Cut matching circles of pastry that has been rolled to 1/8 inch thickness. Place pastry circles on top of foil circles. Prick all over with a fork if they are to be baked without filling, otherwise don't prick. With thumb and forefinger, turn up edge of foil and pastry 1-inch all around, and pinch at about 1-inch intervals, to hold edge up.

Place on a shallow pan or cookie sheet and bake unfilled tarts in a hot oven, 450 degrees, for 15 minutes, or until delicately brown.

Prepare vanilla pudding as label directs. Fold whipped cream into chilled pudding. Spoon pudding into tart shells. Top with strawberries. Brush or spoon melted jelly over berries. Makes 11 to 12 tarts.

by CHARLES E. FLYNN

Ginny Marmaduke is a remarkable person who has achieved the Utopia of most newspaper people — retirement after a rewarding career in one's dream home in a dream location.

To Ginny, that's a modern air-conditioned house, built of logs, on a knoll in Southern Illinois. The place is called "The Four Cedars," in honor of a quartet of venerable trees which are more than 100 years old.

She's had many honors in a varied career in metropolitan journalism and on radio and television, but the last thing I thought I'd be writing about Ginny is as champion pickle maker. But that she is, having won the blue ribbon at Du Quoin's famous State Fair last year. Now, she wants more worlds to conquer.

The recipe came from Mrs. William Sullivan, a neighbor living near The Four Cedars, who says it was handed down by a pioneer family of Perry County, Ill.

To make blue ribbon dill pickles, wash enough pickle-size cucumbers to pack 5 quarts. Let them drain dry.

Mix 1 quart cider vinegar, 3 quarts water and 3/4 cup of salt. Arrange cucumbers in each of the jars, packing not too tightly. Add several springs of fresh dill in each, along with a small bud of garlic and a piece of alum about the size of a pea.

Fill each cucumber jar with the hot mixture and let stand for 5 minutes. Empty the liquid and reheat again to a boil, then refill the jars.

This time seal jars tightly and store for one month to complete the pickling process. That the secret, so start making them and enter your own county fair contest.

But, better not show up at Du Quoin — the champion will be there.

PLANS HAVE been finalized for the second biennial Engineered Plumbing Exposition and Technical Seminar, to be held in Chicago Sept. 22-24. Sponsored by the American Society of Plumbing Engineers, the meeting is expected to draw over 1,000 plumbing engineers, architects, contractors and home builders.

State License Figures Down

A total of 1,168 new Illinois and out-of-state corporations were issued certificates of incorporation and authority during June according to figures released by Secretary of State Paul Powell.

The total represents a decrease of 32 from the 1,200 new corporations in June of last year, but an increase of 180 over the 980 new corporations licensed in June of 1968.

During the first six months of this year, 6,625 new corporations have been formed, or licensed, in Illinois. The 1970 total represents a decrease of 842 from the 7,267 new corporations for the same period of 1969. In the first six months of 1968 new corporations totaled 6,055, or 560 less than the 1970 figure.

The corporation division collected $11,618,923.71 in the first six months of 1970, representing a decrease of $1,814,023.40, as compared with the $13,432,947.11 collected in franchise taxes and fees in the same period in 1969.

Secretary Powell explained that a decrease in the minimum annual franchise tax from $100.00 to $25.00 has resulted in the decreased collections.

The division collected $5,690,912.35 in June, a decrease of $2,734,859 from the $8,425,771.35 total collected in June of 1969.

Pour Money Into Economy

The alcoholic beverage industry of Illinois poured nearly $434 million into the state's economy last year, according to figures released by Licensed Beverage Industries, Inc., research and public information organization of the distilled spirits industry.

The industry which employs more than 12,000 men, women in Illinois — reported payroll and earnings of $312.8 million for 1969, of which $261,341,000 were spent, largely within the state and its local communities.

Revenues paid by the industry to the state and local communities were expected to exceed the $121 million paid in 1968, the last year for which figures have been reported. During the period 1935-68, the industry has paid $1.5 billion to the state and $420 million to local units of government. Of these amounts, $1.06 billion were collected from the sales of distilled spirits alone.

A technical seminar, to be presented by authorities in the plumbing and related industries, will be presented in 11 sessions during the gathering. Among the nearly 85 exhibitors at this convention will be the Chicago Faucet Co., of Des Plaines.

THE LABOR relations meeting of the Northwest Industrial Council will be held at 2 p.m., Aug. 5, at Union Oil Co. in Palatine. Guest speaker will be Gerald Patterson, partner in the law firm of McDermott, Will & Emory and chairman of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce Labor Relations Committee. The council has also announced a golf outing and dinner, slated for Aug. 28 at the Itasca Country Club, Itasca. Cost for both dinner and golf is $14.

HOME BUILDERS Association of Lake County will hold a golf outing Aug. 21 at the McHenry Country Club, McHenry. Free refreshments and boat rides will be featured, reported co-chairmen Joe Klop and Joe Gausden. Cost for dinner and golf is $20; dinner only, $7. For reservations call 782-8857, by Aug. 18.

PLUMBING CONTRACTORS get more calls to unplug clogged drains than for any other service. How to keep drains open and what to do when one gets clogged are among the tips in the booklet, "Plumbing Care & Repair," available for 25 cents and a 6-cent stamp, from the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, 35 E. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill. 60601.

ARLINGTON PARK Towers in Arlington Heights will be the setting for the meeting of the following groups in the next few weeks: Phillips Petroleum, a two-day meeting concluding today;

Painting and Decorating Contractors of America, Aug. 2-4; Cushman Motors, Aug. 5-6; Legislative Council of Photogrammetry, Aug. 5-6; Vanda Beauty Counselors, Aug. 13-14; Illinois Chapter-Order of Demolay, Aug. 14-15; International Printing Pressmen and Assistants Union of North America, Aug. 17-19; Scheffelin Co., Aug. 19-21; Automotive Wholesaler of Illinois, Aug. 23-26; Studion Production Division, Helene Curtis, Aug. 24-26; American Hospital Supply, Aug. 26-28; Gibson Refrigerator Sales, Aug. 28-29; Parke Davis, Aug. 28; and Illinois League of Women Voters, Aug. 28.

WALGREEN CO. today has sales of $178,570,678 for the third quarter of 1970, ended June 30, a 9.9 per cent increase over last year's third quarter. Profits were $1,862,782, or 29 cents a share. These earnings, although behind the 42 cent a share of a year ago, show improvement over the previous 1970 quarter. Predicting continued profit improvement, Charles R. Walgreen Jr., board chairman, said, "For Walgreens' first nine months of fiscal 1970, sales were $558,511,385 — up 10.8 per cent. Profits were off 26.1 per cent. In the first nine months of fiscal 1970, Walgreen Co. opened 41 new units (of which five were replacements), including five discount department stores, four Walgreen Centers, 23 Walgreen Drug Stores, eight Corby's and one Robin Hood Restaurant.

TWENTY VISITORS from Japan, representing roofing and sheet metal industries there, recently visited the Lavin Roofing firm at 2239 Pratt, Elk Grove Village. The visit was part of a nationwide tour by the group, said Irving Durchslag, of Lavin Roofing.

Alexander Gives Parlor Presentations

Ron Alexander

Ron Alexander has been named director of "in-home" sales operations for Brangar Organization lake property. The announcement was made by Elmer Swanson Jr., vice president of marketing of the Union Camp land developer subsidiary.

The Brangar concern is currently selling "second home" sites at Apple Canyon Lake near Galena, and Port Antigua in the Florida Keys as well as vacant land in several suburban developments.

Alexander will perfect methods for "parlor presentation" of Lake properties enabling improved customer visualization.

Until recently Alexander was eastern division director of sales for Boise-Cascade. Prior to that he had been sales director at Lake Somerset and Lake Wildwood and had been on the sales staff at Lake Holiday.

An alumnus of Wayne State State University, Detroit, Alexander maintained for several years a Chicago advertising and public relations firm, Ron Alexander & Associates.

PREVIEWS Executive Home Search, A Nationwide Referral System

Don't Be Taken By Hoodwinkers

Better Business Bureau Chicago's executive vice president, Michael A. Callandro, recently discussed high pressure salesmen and others who do not represent legitimate business, including the following:

Many advertisements offer rare bargains in bulbs and nursery stock. The plants may be extremely small or they may not perform as advertised, said Callandro. He advised using caution in dealing with door-to-door salesmen for this type of goods, and to ask the salesman to put his claims in writing and sign his name before you sign a contract of purchase.

TRANSIENT roofers, the ones who say, "Just passing, and I noticed your roof needs fixing. I'm an experienced roofer and just happen to be in the neighborhood," may not be legitimate, according to Callandro. Find out if he is licensed, does he have a business address, and whether he actually has had roofing experience.

An itinerant furnace repairman may offer to put your furnace in good condition, and then may proceed to dismantle your furnace, finding many damaged parts or even breaking parts intentionally. He may want to sell you a new furnace, refusing to put yours back together, thinking of your safety. If you are in need of a new furnace BBB advises going to two or three reputable heating firms for estimates.

Humorous peddlers may also hoodwink home owners, said Callandro. A truck may pull up loaded with black "humus." The driver stops and tells you about a low price, but after you give him the go-ahead for the job, you find that it takes many more baskets of humus than he anticipated, in addition to never knowing whether the humus is any good or not.

Wheeling Plant Looks to Future

Reflecting the general slowdown in consumer buying as a result of the continuing downturn in the nation's economy, sales and earnings of TMA Co., Wheeling, declined in the third fiscal quarter and for the nine months ended May 31, reported Daniel J. Doman, president.

Sales for the three months ended May 31 totaled $1,000,538, compared with $1,875,479 in last year's third fiscal quarter. Year to date sales were $4,977,966 compared with $7,301,272 for last fiscal year's nine-month period.

The net loss for the third fiscal quarter was $456,892 and for the nine months ended May 31, 1970, the net operating loss was $692,021. This operating loss will be available to offset taxes on future earned income.

BOTH SALES AND earnings were adversely affected by the Chicago area trucking strike and lockout which started on April 13, 1970 and continued on through May 31, 1970, the end of TMA's third fiscal quarter.

Due to the operating losses, TMA was unable to meet the continuing listing requirements of the American Stock Exchange pertaining to earnings and net assets and the common stock and convertible subordinated debentures were formally delisted by the American Stock Exchange on June 1. The company is investigating the listing requirements of other stock exchanges and will try to get the common stock and debentures listed elsewhere.

TMA is concentrating most of its efforts on selling its merchandise to dealers in small towns with a large inside sales force of commissioned salesmen who use mail and the telephone to communicate with dealers.

Reelected President

John L. Bell Jr., of Barrington has been reelected president of the Dwarf Fruit Tree Assoc. It was announced recently by Dr. Robert F. Carlson of Michigan State University, secretary of the organization.

The Association, founded in 1956, is composed of more than 900 members throughout the United States, Canada, and many foreign countries. Its membership consists of horticulturists engaged in teaching and research, extension horticulturists providing liaison between farmers and universities, and the growers.

Bell is a graduate of Princeton University and served as a naval officer during the Korean conflict. He, with his father, owns and manages Bell's Mossley Hill Orchards located between Barrington and Lake Zurich.

The orchard is northern Illinois' only controlled atmosphere facility, a storage method for keeping freshly picked apples at a constant temperature of 33 degrees with almost all oxygen removed under vacuum — thus assuring the public fresh, juicy, crisp apples during the winter, spring and summer months.

stereo sets has been favorably received by those dealers who were able to receive merchandise, said Doman. The truck strike prevented the shipments of this new line to many dealers and also delayed the production of some models, he added.

Doman said the company anticipates a return to profitable operation in the next fiscal year which begins Sept. 1.

Brown Models Show the Forest

"If a person walks out of a model home or apartment and raves about the furniture and art pieces, the decorators have surely missed the point."

This statement came from Chicago-based decorator, Richard J. Brown, while discussing the model apartment homes of his new condominium development in Buffalo Grove, Cambridge On-The-Lake.

Brown said a good decorator treats a model quite differently than he would a private home or even a restaurant. "Actually," he said, "models should be done tastefully, but somewhat demurely. The object is to enhance and draw attention to the features of the models, not detract from them. And most importantly, you must allow people to visualize their own furniture and accessories in the rooms. An overly decorated or crowded room will distract them to the point where they cannot identify with it. In short, they must be able to forget the sofa we've used and imagine their own sofa in its place."

TO ILLUSTRATE his point, Brown cited the Regency, the largest of the Cambridge On-The-Lake apartment homes. He added that, "The style of this apartment home lends the visitor to see what's beyond the decor. The walls could have been filled with interesting things to look at, but the visitor may walk away without realizing how much wall space there is for his ideas, bold wall-paper in the living room might be great when you live there, but again, for our purposes, people might walk off not remembering that the living room is uncommonly large or even the fact that it has an attractive fireplace. To put it simply, you have to minimize the trees so they can see the forest."

Brown's decorating philosophy was carried throughout the Regency by Rita Brown, his wife and a decorator in her own right. The style is traditional. The apartment home opens into an octagonal foyer and features two spacious bedrooms plus a study.

The Regency can be seen daily from 10 a.m. until dark, along with the other model apartment homes at Cambridge On-The-Lake, located on Dundee Road.

Jan Rodriguez At Seminar

Jan Rodriguez, principal of the Gregory School in Mount Prospect, who was named a Fellow of the Institute for Development of Educational Activities, Inc., an affiliate of the Charles F. Kettering Foundation, recently attended the fifth annual seminar which was sponsored by I/D/E/A at Rockford College in Rockford, Ill.

Each year, 400 outstanding school administrators throughout the United States are selected to attend these professional workshops at four regional sites. The participants are chosen from thousands of educators who submit formal applications. Selection is based on their school program and evidence of their utilization of new educational techniques.

The theme for this year's program was "The Individual in a World of Change." A series of outstanding speakers spoke on the changing role of education in today's world. Particular emphasis was placed on the developing impact of environmental studies, independent study, the reading crisis, and new educational innovations being employed in British schools.

This professional development program for school administrators is unique in providing the participants an opportunity to hear recognized authorities and to discuss educational problems with their peers.

Take Funds From Spending Stream

Declaring that the United States stands on the threshold of the biggest real estate boom in history, Realtor Rich Port, La Grange, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, said the 1970s will be better than the '60s for those with the know-how.

He pointed out, however, that Realtors will need more sales this year, and next year still more, "as inflation continues to erode the bottom line on your statements."

Port added that while everyone is for reducing inflation, there is no sensible reason that the brunt of this should fall on the housing industry, as it has in the recent past. He declared that short-range solutions to the money problem are not the answers we need. "We must create — originate — a new modern method of financing, so that mortgage money is readily available for the transfer of existing property and the construction of new housing," he said.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board action in permitting the payment of higher interest rate for those willing to relinquish their withdrawing rights for two to five year periods may be helpful.

Emphasizing the need for a return to develop a means of increasing savings, not only as a source of capital for home financing, but to withdraw funds from the stream of spending, he added.

Emphasizing the need for a return to old-fashioned patriotism, Realtor Port enunciated a number of the things that are "right" with America, stating that in less than two centuries Americans changed a wilderness into the most prosperous area in the history of man.

Woulds Appointed Amsted Manager

Michael J. Woulds, a Schaumburg resident, has been appointed development manager for the AMSTED Research Laboratories, Bensenville, the corporate research center of AMSTED Industries.

This appointment was announced today by E. J. Zickelsoose, AMSTED's director of research. Woulds will be responsible for research into product and process development concerned with wire rope and powder metal parts.

Prior to joining AMSTED, he served as chief, alloy technical services for Martin Metals Division, Wheeling, Illinois, a subsidiary of Martin Marietta Corp.

Woulds holds an L.I.M. degree (equivalent to a B.S.) in metallurgy from Brunel College in London, England, and an A.I.M. degree (M.S.) from Battersea College, also in London.

He is the author of four published reports on metal alloys and is a member of the American Society of Metals, American Institute of Metallurgical Engineers, Institution of Metallurgists (England), Institute of Metals (England), and the American Management Association.

Gas Co. Is Fuming

Officials of Peoples Gas Co. has expressed indignation over published reports of statements recently made before the Illinois Commerce Commission on behalf of Commonwealth Edison Co.

A lawyer representing Edison was quoted as saying that a petition recently filed by Natural Gas Pipeline Co., a subsidiary of Peoples Gas, would have a "devastating effect on (Edison's) clean air program" and "could impair (Edison's) ability to furnish electrical power to customers."

"We do not like the idea of taking issue with a competitor in the public press," Remick McDowell, chairman of Peoples Gas, said, "but when Edison attempts to hold us responsible for its own inadequacies, we are forced to set the record straight."

"Peoples Gas Light and Coke Co. Peoples Gas subsidiary which distributes gas in the City of Chicago, has consistently through the years—including the current year—offered to supply Edison more gas than Edison has chosen to contract for. And curiously, as recently as May, Edison refused the delivery of approximately 15 million interruptible therms offered under the present contract when such service was available," said McDowell.

adding, "Peoples Gas Light and Coke has repeatedly assured Edison that it will live up to its commitments to Edison during the current fiscal year."

"The petition by Natural Gas Pipeline to the Federal Power Commission, to which Edison objects, has as its objective the fair and equitable rationing of available supplies of gas to present customers, in order to prevent severe misallocations in the winter months ahead. Only by massive injections of natural gas into underground storage reservoirs during the summer months, Natural Gas points out, can home owners and all-year-round commercial and industrial customers be protected during the winter months ahead—and the company is determined to protect its present customers."

"For several years now," McDowell stated, "we have been publicly warning that a gas supply problem was in the offing. What is more, we have been doing everything in our power to meet it."

"We have petitioned the Federal Power Commission to allow us to buy emergency supplies of gas in the southwest, offering to pay whatever price is necessary to obtain it. We are studying the feasibility of bringing natural gas down from the North Slope of Alaska, and from northern Canada."

"In addition, we have publicly stated on numerous occasions that natural gas alone cannot solve the air pollution problem. Alternative fuels and methods must be used, particularly by large consumers," he said.

Frait Attends Sales Meeting

William Frait

Sherwood Medical Industries, Inc. sales representative William Frait of Buffalo Grove, recently attended an international sales meeting for the company's medical sales groups, in St. Joseph, Mo.

He was one of numerous sales representatives and company officials who converged on the city of St. Joseph from points throughout the United States and abroad.

In addition to touring and viewing operations of Sherwood's manufacturing plant—the company's newest—in St. Joseph, he received briefings on new products and marketing plans to be implemented in the next several months.

The St. Joseph plant is the company's prime producer of "prepackaged procedure kits." These kits consist of all necessary medical supplies required for specific medical procedures performed on a patient by his physician or by a nurse in accordance with the physician's orders for the patient. These kits are disposable and are used only one time or for one patient and thus provide a safeguard against cross-infection of patients.

Bank Promotes 3 From Area

Three Northwest suburban men have been promoted to higher official positions at Continental Bank, Chicago.

Robert J. Kaminski, 117 Audubon Court, Hoffman Estates, and David G. Brewick, 2518 N. Chestnut, Arlington Heights, have been elected assistant cashiers in the operating and bond departments, respectively. Donald G. Utt, 640 E. Tahoe Trail, Palatine, was named assistant auditor in the operating department.

Kaminski is a graduate of the Bank Administration Institute. He joined the bank in 1950, has worked in the proof-reading and bookkeeping divisions, and now is manager of the document processing center.

Brewick earned a bachelor's degree from North Park College in Chicago and a master's from Northwestern University. He joined the bank in 1967 as a bond trainee.

Utt joined the bank in 1948, and was elected electronics office in the electronic installation computer division in 1966.

Snow Appointed

Appointment of William J. Snow as director of merchandising has been announced by Elmer Swanson Jr., vice president of marketing of The Branigan Organization, Inc.

Snow has been associated with the company since early in 1969. Formerly vice-president of Land Research Economists, Inc., a Phoenix consulting firm, Snow will create new merchandising ideas and techniques for the projects of the multi-million dollar land developer subsidiary of Union Camp. Among them are Apple Canyon Lake, near Galena; Port Antigua, on the Florida Keys; the Windings, near St. Charles; and various northwest suburban Branigan projects.

While in Arizona, Snow had also been sales manager of Orlandi and Associates in Scottsdale, where he maintained a home. A former Chicagoan, he had been advertising and public relations director of the Exchange National Bank here and of the Saxony Hotel in Miami, Fla. He also was associated with the Real Estate Research Corp.

Working Couples Advised on Taxes

Withholding has caused many taxpayers to wince when it is time to pay their taxes but the Internal Revenue Service is lending a hand to solve the problem says Commerce Clearing House, Chicago.

Families in which both the husband and wife work are more likely to be affected by underwithholding because the income tax withholding system is not geared to withhold the full amount of tax on the combined wages of a working couple. The possibility of underwithholding for married couples was increased by enactment of the new low-income allowance, CCH said.

The withholding system is designed so that each employee receives one low-income allowance. Thus, when both the husband and wife work, they automatically receive two allowances for withholding purposes even though they are entitled to only one allowance on their joint income tax return at the end of the year.

UNDERWITHOLDING is the result and, at the end of the year, a large tax bill for the difference between the withheld tax and the actual income tax is their sad lot.

To ease this unsettling experience, the IRS has published tax withholding tips for married couples in order to assist them in avoiding the pitfalls of underwithholding and its consequent big tax bill come April 15.

The tips — enroute to the nation's 4.5 million employers — consist chiefly of a series of tables showing the number of exemptions that should be claimed by each working spouse, depending upon the amount of earnings and the total number of exemptions the couple is entitled to claim.

CCH noted that the tables are based only on wages. Thus, if a husband or wife have other kinds of income, they may want to reduce their withholding exemptions below the number shown in the tables, or ask their employers to withhold a specific additional dollar amount. Also, they may find it advisable to do so if the couple's combined wages are over $23,000 or (b) if they expect to claim the standard deduction on a combined annual income of more than $10,000.

The IRS is requesting that employers post the tables on their bulletin boards or other conspicuous locations and that married employees be advised about the matter of possible underwithholding in company bulletins or other means of communication, CCH said.

Realty Market Recovering

Signs that the real estate market in the Chicago area is improving were recently reported by Baird & Warner, Inc., real estate firm with 27 offices in the city and suburbs.

Gross sales volume of the firm for the first half of 1970 is 13.8 per cent behind 1969 figures, but is ahead of the first quarter of the year, which was 28 per cent behind. Total number of transactions for the first half is off 9.3 per cent, compared with the 21.9 per cent dip in the first quarter.

"The turn-around was especially evident in June, which was 15 per cent ahead in gross dollar volume and 2 per cent ahead in sales of June, 1969," reported John L. Hall, senior vice president and general sales manager of the company.

"We're witnessing a gradual recovery of real estate activity as the year proceeds, which we hope will lead to 1970 being almost as good a year as 1969, if not better," Hall said.

GROSS DOLLAR volume of sales participated in by the company for the first six months of 1970 was $61,617,905, a 13.8 per cent decrease from the $71,502,839 reported for the same period a year ago. Total number of transactions was 1,353, a dip of 9.3 per cent from the 1,493 transactions a year ago.

Hall said that a close look at the figures reveal improvements in several major areas: Single-family home sales, which were 19.4 per cent behind in the first quarter, are now only 5.54 per cent behind for the full six months. "This reflects a general easing in the mortgage market as well as increased consumer confidence in the economy," Hall said.

Cooperative apartment sales, behind 69.5 per cent in the first quarter, are now only 44.4 per cent behind, again reflecting easier financing as well as improved marketability, according to Hall.

Commercial, industrial, and large (over 12 units) apartment building sales, now 20 per cent behind, compared with a 38.5 per cent lag in the first quarter.

Vacant parcels, including farms, now 23.7 per cent behind, compared with being 37.7 per cent behind in the first three months. "Sale of vacant land is usually a good indication of future development as well as bullishness about the upturn in real estate values," Hall said.

Tune In Better Picture

All American Life & Financial Corp., a diversified financial holding company, reported consolidated adjusted net income of $2,514,000 or 41.6 cents a share for the first six months of 1970 compared with $2,229,000 or 36.8 cents a share for the comparable period in 1969, a 12.8 per cent increase based on the 6,049,990 shares outstanding as of this date. The adjusted income is estimated in accordance with the formula of the Association of Insurance and Financial Analysts.

Consolidated net income for the six-month period in 1970 was $1,573,000 or 26 cents a share as opposed to $1,729,000 or 28.6 cents a share for the same period in 1969, a 9 per cent decrease. Net capital losses of $60,000 in 1970 compared with net capital gains of $22,000 in 1969 plus the substantial increased investment in new business as well as increased claims for the insurance subsidiary were largely responsible for the decrease in net earnings, according to the company.

Consolidated assets were $159,536,000 up 7.7 per cent over assets of $148,114,000 on June 30, 1969.

Stockholders' equity increased 2.4 per cent to $21,962,000 after setting aside $1,210,000 for the payment of cash dividends on July 24.

Gross revenues increased 10.8 per cent to $25,096,000 from $22,650,000 for the first six months of 1969.

All American Life & Casualty Co., the oldest and largest subsidiary, showed satisfactory growth. Adjusted net gains

Diane Sargol Gets PR Post

Diane Sargol

Diane Sargol, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald V. Sargol of Palatine, has been appointed Public Relations Officer, New England, for BOAC, according to T. Ivan Pyle, the Corporation's Public Relations manager, USA.

Miss Sargol, who is based in the carrier's USA head office in New York, joined BOAC two and one-half years ago as Public Relations assistant, Northern USA, based in Chicago.

A native Chicagoan, Miss Sargol received her bachelor of arts degree in sociology and journalism from Mundelein College, Chicago. While in school she spent holidays traveling and interning on local newspapers including the Herald, as well as doing free lance writing.

In her new position, she is responsible for BOAC's public relations work in New England as well as up-state New York, Long Island and Kennedy International Airport.

Miss Sargol spends her free time water skiing, swimming and traveling. She has studied foreign languages and photography since leaving college.

Olsen Joins CNA

Dennis W. Olsen, of 207 Cady Drive, Palatine, has joined the staff of the CNA/ insurance accident and health planning department. CNA/ insurance is the insurance arm of Chicago-based CNA Financial Corp., Chicago.

Olsen joined the actuarial department of CNA after graduation from Augustana College in 1962. Most recently he has served as section head in the liability-property-surety operations of the actuarial department.

In his new position, he will be responsible for developing information, data, and reports designed for planning purposes.

NOW UNDER CONSTRUCTION in Mount Prospect is a new L. Fish Furniture Co. store, at the intersection of Rand Road, Rt. 83 and Kensington.

The store is scheduled to open next fall. When completed, the store will have 50,000 square feet of space, with display areas for living room, dining room and bedroom furniture. Designated a "store for the home," the new facility will feature furniture in complete room settings.

Furniture Store Opens This Fall

L. Fish Furniture is slated to open two new stores next fall, one located at the intersection of Rand Road, Rt. 83 and Kensington in Mount Prospect, and the other in Indianapolis. This will bring the number of stores owned by the 120-year-old company to 18.

Now under construction, the Mount Prospect store is located on a 90,000 square foot site. When completed the store will cover approximately 50,000 square feet with display space for furniture, carpeting and appliances.

Scheduled to open shortly after the Mount Prospect store is the Victor Furniture Store in Indianapolis, a 40,000-square-foot facility to be located at 6166 N. Keystone. Victor is a division of the L.

Fish Furniture Co. The new building will represent the largest of the Victor stores.

BOTH OF THE new stores, designated "stores for the home," will have specialized display areas featuring living room, dining room and bedroom furniture in complete settings to emphasize styles and room arrangements.

This concept of "stores for the home" will educate the customer as well as enable him to find any item in a suitable brand, style and price range, according to the company.

L. Fish Furniture Co. has not announced further expansion plans for 1970, but plans to make several announcements next year. The company now has operations in Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Ohio.

Sale Depends On Realistic Price

Under normal conditions, a person who must sell his present home before moving into a new one has a problem.

Since no one wants to be stuck with owning two homes at one time, the Hoffman Rosner Corp. has come up with the Guardian Purchase Plan.

The plan is administered by John Whitehead, a veteran of 31 years in real estate selling, and is available to buyers at Hoffman Rosner's communities of High Point in Hoffman Estates; Indian Oaks in Bolingbrook, and Westlake in Bloomington.

DURING 1969, Whitehead assisted in the sale of 143 homes whose actual selling prices totaled $4,962,000. The homes sold, on the average, for within 2 per cent of his appraisals.

In reporting on the program, Whitehead noted that while homeowners are generally very aware of the problems involved in selling today, they are often unrealistic about the dollar value of their present home.

"Selling a home is a very personal matter to most people," he explained. "If the family has put time, effort, and money into their present dwelling, they often have an exaggerated idea of what it's worth to someone else. We try to give them realistic direction based on hard facts concerning the location, the condition of the dwelling, and the history of prior sales in the area."

Under the Hoffman Rosner plan, buyers select their home and construction starts immediately. The completion date for the new home determines the length of time allowed to sell the old home and gives the buyer time to arrange for a moving date.

IF THE BUYER can't sell the home within the specified period following advice given by Whitehead, he can select another Hoffman Rosner home for a later completion date or receive his earnest money as a full refund by terminating the agreement.

To determine a fair price for the present home, Whitehead recommends that the seller obtain an FHA appraisal. He also makes a personal visit to the home to furnish his own appraisal.

Also included in his counseling are recommendations on making the home attractive, advertising and promoting the property, and showing it properly to prospects. He will also suggest specified qualified brokers in a given area in some cases.

More information on the "Guardian Purchase Plan" is available from Whitehead at Hoffman Rosner Corp.'s main sales office in Hoffman Estates.

Aug. 1 Deadline On Truck License

The deadline for display of truck license plates has been set for midnight, Aug. 15, said Secretary of State Paul Powell.

It should also be noted that since license plates are mailed as third class matter, applications for plates must be in the Office of the Secretary of State no later than Aug. 1, in order for the plates to be received before the deadline.

Powell noted that truck license plates can still be purchased directly from the auto license facilities in the Centennial Building or at 9th and N. Grand in Springfield, or in Chicago at 5401 N. Elston Ave., 5301 W. Lexington, or 9901 MARTIN Luther King Jr. Dr.

COMPOSED OF 116 single-family residences attached to form units of four and eight homes, Fairfax Village has clusters of one and two-story dwellings. Landscaped courtyards, a lagoon and winding drives, are featured. Seven models are open and prices range from $49,800 to $54,500. Fairfax Village, located in the Plum Grove section of Rolling Meadows, is Albert Riley's third adult community.

Houses For Adults Only

Albert Riley announced today the opening of Fairfax Village, at Plum Grove in Rolling Meadows.

The adult community is located on West Frontage Road, one-half mile south of Kirchhoff Road and two miles north of the Northwest Tollway.

The new development comes on the heels of the Chicago-area builder's developments at Plum Grove and Winthrop Villages.

Fairfax Village will consist of a total of 116 single family homes designed as four-plexes and eight-plexes, varying in price from $49,800 to $54,500. The models are now on display. Featured are five one-story and two double-story floor plans.

Albert Riley's concept of an "adult community" is a small private world, created exclusively for adults. "Its residents are at the height of their earning level, no longer have small children, want to free themselves of the costly and time consuming maintenance of a home yet insist on complete privacy while retaining a single-family residence," said Riley.

RILEY IS THE DEVELOPER of the apartment complex, Kings Walk; the single-family home planned community of Creekside at Plum Grove; and Plum Grove countryside consisting of several hundred single family homes.

"The advantages of a Fairfax Village home are numerous," said Riley. "Private two-car garages with every home are standard. Home ownership also builds equity—as in any private dwelling. A Guarantee Title Insurance Policy to the land beneath the home is an asset—as opposed to just the air space of the condominium. Taxes are individual, rather than a joint taxation with neighbors. An additional advantage is ownership of an equal share of the common-ground, and this is covered by a Homeowners Association of which every buyer is a part."

A maintenance service program, budgeted at $48 a month, includes snow-plowing; landscaping; a maintained entrance and exterior lighting; street and drive repair; utility maintenance; insurance on "common areas;" fence maintenance; water; twice-weekly garbage removal; legal fees; and management.

Common walls, for privacy, are really two separate 4 inch partition walls separated by a layer of 1/2 inch rigid sound board and free air space. In addition, each separate wall is fully packed with 3 inch insulation batts and the outside surface sheathed with 5/8 inch firecode gypsum wallboard.

The Fairfax Village community is located in the Plum Grove area of Rolling Meadows.

A comprehensive program of "creative federal involvement" was recently proposed by the nation's railroads to meet "the crisis in the rail industry."

Calling for national policy that treats all forms of transportation evenly, the program was developed by America's Sound Transportation Review Organization (ASTRO), established last fall by the Association of American Railroads to make an exhaustive study of present problems and future transportation needs.

Recommended were updated laws and regulatory procedures that would free railroads from restraints of the past; financial help on rights-of-way and equipment; expanded federal research; and a rational approach to passenger service.

THE RECOMMENDATIONS were contained in a report released at a news conference by former Florida Sen. George A. Smathers, general counsel for ASTRO, and Thomas M. Goodfellow, AAR president.

"The crisis in the rail industry is that it is rapidly losing its ability to find the money it needs for growth," ASTRO said noting that the industry should spend the sum of $36 billion on capital improvements between now and 1980.

It rejected nationalization of the railroads as a solution. This "would entail enormous cost to the taxpayers," ASTRO said. It cited estimates that put the cost of acquiring railroad facilities alone as high as $60 billion.

In pledging industry cooperation "to assist the Penn Central and preserve an integrated rail network," Mr. Goodfellow told the news conference that the Penn Central's recent bankruptcy "has created a new sense of urgency and concern about the future of this nation's railroads."

"The problems now engulfing the Penn Central are not unique," he continued. "Other railroads also face grave difficulties."

THE AAR PRESIDENT endorsed the Department of Transportation's emergency legislation for guaranteed loans to railroads, but added that long-range solutions are needed.

To develop these solutions, Goodfellow said, the AAR last fall established ASTRO "to make an exhaustive study of present problems and future transportation needs."

The recent ASTRO report was adopted, which urged Congress to: establish a single transportation fund, to be used by all modes in furthering a balanced transportation system; eliminate state and local property taxes on railroad rights-of-way; expand use of road funds to eliminate highway-railway grade crossing hazards; guarantee up to $400 million annually in loans for improvements to railroad rights-of-way.

ASTRO URGED that railroads be assisted in acquiring needed locomotives and cars they're unable to provide on their own. It proposed that the government: guarantee loans for such purchases; advance the 20 per cent down payment required for the most advantageous financing and reimburse railroads for interest payments above 4 per cent; create a non-profit corporation to acquire a "free running" fleet of general purpose, unassigned freight cars; and restore the investment tax credit for railroad equipment.

It proposed creation of a single regulatory agency to oversee all modes of transportation. Under current law, the report said, several agencies are involved in transport regulation and "this unique diffusion of power solidly blocks any attempt to regulate transportation as the national integrated system it should be."

Other regulatory recommendations included: greater rate-making freedom so that railroads could lower rates to any level increasing earnings and be permitted to institute an automatic rate increase of up to 6 per cent annually; experimental elimination of minimum rate regulations; elimination of state regulation of rates; publication by all modes of rates on all commodities, except certain agricultural products; speeding up approvals to permit elimination of little-used branch lines that don't meet avoidable costs; expediting the merger process; revision of laws barring establishment of total transportation companies combining land, air and water service.

Recommended was a federal commitment of $100 million annually over the next 10 years for research into all phases of freight and passenger service.

Creation of a federally-chartered corporation to run intercity trains was recommended, and greater public sponsorship of programs to revitalize commuter services.

The study team was headed up by Executive Director Robert W. Blanchette, on leave from Penn Central. Other key members were Richard E. Briggs, senior policy analyst, and Dr. Burton N. Behling, AAR vice president - economics and finance.

Name Karst Assembly Foreman At Electric

Norbert Karst, 419 S. Hart, Palatine, has been promoted to foreman of bank assembly and wiring at Automatic Electric Co., Northlake. He was also appointed to the company's junior staff in March of this year.

The junior staff at Automatic has two main purposes. It provides training and experience in administration and management. It also serves to improve operating efficiency through recognition of problems and recommendation of solutions that can be put into effect by management.

Karst joined the telephone and communications equipment manufacturer in 1947 as an expediter. He then advanced to dispatcher, assistant foreman of the stockroom, foreman of receiving, foreman of Industrial Products Division packing and stores.

For the past six years he has been a director of the employees' credit union and is a director of the Strowger Clubs at Automatic Electric.

A graduate of Schurz High School, Chicago, he attended Northwestern University.

More Than Door Rattling

To combat the incidence of crimes against small businesses, the world's largest private security firm has announced the availability of an after-hours patrol and inspection service for merchants and store owners in the Northwest Suburban Area.

Pinkerton's Inc., whose area office is located at 3200 W. Main St. in Skokie, said the new service is designed especially for the business that only requires a limited degree of protection.

A. Maris Reinerts, manager of the local office, said "We are capable of patrolling any operation which does not require permanent guards. The patrol is not just another 'drive-by' or 'door-rattling' service. Our service includes a complete verified internal check by a professionally trained and supervised patrolman."

"THE MANAGER said the service generally operates between 6 p.m. and 6 a.m. during the work week. 'Every property is inspected at least once every three hours, or more often if the owner wishes,' he explained. The service is also available on weekends from 6 p.m.

Friday through 6 a.m. Monday, or during weekdays as well — 6 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Reinerts said Pinkerton's will make a survey to determine the crucial areas to be checked. Watchclock key stations are then installed at those locations. In the event the owner has a watchclock and

Stepelton Promoted

National Tea Co. has announced the elevation of Norman A. Stepelton to the newly created post of vice chairman of the board and the election of F. Bruce Krysiak as president. Krysiak is president of Loblaw Inc., Buffalo, N.Y., a National Tea Co. subsidiary.

Stepelton has been president of National Tea, the nation's fourth largest supermarket chain, since 1961, and is a veteran of 38 years service to the company.

George C. Metcalf, National's chairman, termed Stepelton "the architect of National Tea's growth and profit plan for the seventies and the pioneer developer of National's New Orleans styled supermarkets."

IN THE DECADE of Stepelton's presidency, after have served as corporate vice president and division manager of National's Chicago division, National Tea's sales increased 76.7 per cent from $855,840,888 in 1960 to $1,512,282,211 for the year ended March 28, 1970 — the highest sales in the company's history. The company's annual report showed that 1970 sales rose 26.8 per cent over 1969 sales of $1,192,627,575 and profits jumped 37.2 per cent to a 1970 high of $9,868,421 or $1.30 a share, compared with the 1969 net income mark of $7,193,880 or 92 cents a share.

Krysiak is a graduate of Cornell University and began his career with Loblaw Inc. in 1955. He has been president of Loblaw since 1967. Loblaw Inc. is a 160 supermarket chain operating in northwestern New York, western Pennsylvania, Ohio and in the Los Angeles area. National Tea purchased a 71.45 per cent interest in Loblaw Inc. on March 28, 1969.

During the 3 years of Krysiak's tenure as president, Loblaw's sales have risen 14.3 per cent and profits have increased 51.8 per cent. Sales in the year ended March 28, 1970 were $276,431,887 and profits were $2,817,452.

National Tea, with the 160 Loblaw Inc. supermarkets operates 954 supermarkets in 20 states.

At a meeting of the board of directors of National Tea Co., the regular quarterly dividend of 20 cents a share was declared payable Sept. 1 to shareholders of record Aug. 14.

related accessories, he can effect a reduction in the patrol service installation costs by using his own equipment.

The patrolman will verify his check of every crucial area on the watchclock. The service also includes a daily report, written by the patrolman, which provides specifics on any after-hours activities at the inspected property.

"Pinkerton's believes that the success of any security program rests with the quality of its supervision," Reinerts said. "Therefore, the patrolman assigned to the facility will be under constant supervision of a professional patrol supervisor."

The manager concluded, "Next to full-time guard service, this patrol is the most powerful psychological deterrent we know of. It is certain to make properties less attractive targets for today's growing number of potential intruders, both amateur and professionals."

Groundbreaking For Cedar Glen

Ground will be broken shortly for the new Cedar Glen subdivision located on Algonquin Road east of Arlington Heights Road in Arlington Heights, according to Ronald Weisner, president of Weisner Realty, Inc., Chicago area land brokers.

The land, consisting of 37 single-family lots was sold by an investment group to Roppolo & Prendergast Builders Inc. for over $400,000 through Weisner Realty, Inc. sole brokers, who negotiated the land sale for both parties.

The project will feature four model homes priced from approximately $43,000 to about $50,000. Models should be open for inspection in early fall.

TO BE OFFERED for sale are: four bedroom ranch, English Tudor style consisting of two baths, dining-room, family

Success Story Sessions Held

Local Realtors recently participated in six weekly training sessions conducted by Pioneer National Title Insurance Co., in "How to sell real estate successfully."

The classes were held at the office of Suburban and Industrial Real Estate, Keeneyville. Serving as moderator for the sessions was Dick Piper of Pioneer National Title Insurance.

Approximately 20 sales personnel participated in the training sessions, including personnel from Suburban and Industrial Real Estate; Freeman Realty, Bartlett; Glenbrook, Inc., Itasca; Manor House Realty, Itasca, and McMahon Real Estate, Hoffman Estates.

Mike Flood, residential manager for Suburban and Industrial Real Estate, said, "This is one way that Realtors and Pioneer National Title Insurance are combining their efforts to give both home buyers and sellers the best possible service."

Lancer Features Optional Garage

Lancer Corp. doesn't have anything against attached garages. In fact, each of the houses built in its Carlisle development in Schaumburg, comes equipped with one of single or two-car variety.

But in the case of the firm's companion project in Schaumburg, Benwick, where 185 units have been erected, it's a matter of economics. Here the sales tags range from $33,900 to $41,600 as compared with Carlisle's $44,300 to $52,900. To achieve the lower sales figure, it was necessary to pare costs.

Room sizes in Benwick became slightly smaller and some appointments were omitted, dropping costs . . . but not quite enough. It was then that the attached garage came under scrutiny. The builder decided to make the garage an optional feature, thus permitting a drop in base price of from $3,500 to $4,000.

THE REASONING WAS that although the post-World War II attached garage had contributed much to house silhouette, it has considerably more expensive foundation and exterior walls that become a continuation of the house proper. Also, building codes require the same performance standards of an attached garage as they do of the house itself.

Permitted the option, the majority of Benwick purchasers have foregone the integrated car shelter. Although some families are waiting before building a garage, many have gone ahead with detached facilities at savings of up to $2,000 for equal square foot area.

Al Bercher, Lancer sales manager, pointed out that the economics achieved aren't always pocketed, but are used for additional interior refurbishing.

According to Bercher, the most popular house in the two developments is a three bedroom brick ranch with full basement. It attracts the young family starting out and the older couple with grown children. In the latter instance, the additional sleeping provision encourages company as well as permitting creation of a library or den.

Four-bedroom homes are next in favor. All houses are delivered with carpeting installed and recreation rooms are finished and paneled. Natural stained woodwork is provided.

The Carlisle and Benwick developments are located off Roselle (Bloomington) and Plum Grove roads, respectively, and Weathersfield Way in Schaumburg.

EQUIPPED WITH an attached garage, this model home is in the Carlisle residential development by Lancer Corp. in Schaumburg. A garage is a standard feature in Carlisle, but in the companion project, Benwick, the garage is optional.

U.S. Savings Bonds, new Freedom Shares

One of the very best ways you can get a new baby started in life is by buying him or her a U.S. Savings Bond. And once you're started, keep on with it. As the baby grows, the Bonds you keep buying will grow, too. When the baby is ready for college, the Bonds will be ready to help pay for college.

Now—Higher Rates!

Savings Bonds now pay 4.25% when held to maturity—and Freedom Shares (sold in combination with E Bonds) pay a full 5%. The extra interest will be added as a bonus at maturity.

And now you can buy the Bond/Freedom Share combination any time—no monthly commitment necessary. Get the facts where you work or bank.

Automation at Work

Saving people work and keeping them comfortable has been Honeywell's business since 1885, and an illustration of its effectiveness is at its new operation in Arlington Heights.

Coupling computer technology with modular design techniques, the Honeywell Commercial Division plant at Rt. 53 and Dundee with 273,000 square feet of space, claims the company's first installation of its own Delta 2000 environmental control system.

While Honeywell personnel are at work assembling a line of temperature controls, building automation systems, fire and security devices, an electronic watchdog system is also at work. The Delta 2000 system integrates the control of 17 air conditioning systems in the plant and other facets of environmental control with a protection system.

THE HEART of this system is the master control center, where a guard checks on remote points in the building as the information is recorded. If there is any trouble recorded by the protection system, alarm lights go on, an annunciator buzzes and an automatic printer raps out the time and location of the trouble.

By relying on electronics rather than padlocks, the company figures it's getting better protection, said Robert W. Moe, vice president of operations for the division. "And the automatic adjustment of environmental conditions at remote points saves the time of walking around to adjust all the controls," he said. "The first integrated system of its kind, the Delta 2000 also represents a step toward solving the problem of data pollution, according to Moe.

Designed with flexibility in mind, the plant has, in addition to an office area, a production area divided into four product groups. Each of the groups has its own administrative control, assembly area, stock room, vending and service areas. This gives employees a feeling of identification with a particular area, according to Donald W. Donnelly, director of operations.

HONEYWELL EMPLOYEES may not stop, look and listen at every corner in the building, but they do watch out for carts, moving at the rate of 80 feet a minute, throughout the production areas. Distribution of materials is accomplished, using the carts on a tow line. The carts can be removed or put back on the tow line at six spurs in the plant. Waste is removed by loading it on the carts, and sending it to the back of the plant where it is crushed and loaded into trucks.

Shipping large amounts of equipment daily, Honeywell uses an automated, shrink-pack method for almost half its shipping volume, cutting down on packing time. Heavy plastic is wrapped around boxes, then shrunk and heat sealed.

The outlook for Honeywell products is good, said Moe. "We're a part of the construction industry," he said, "as a contractor in the temperature control systems for buildings. Each system, whether it's in a new or existing building is unique, since the equipment is flexible and expandable."

Many of the company's 600 employees in Arlington Heights transferred from other Honeywell operations in Morton Grove, Niles, Bellwood, and Lincolnwood, as well as Minneapolis, Minn. Honeywell operates a bus from the Chicago CTA terminal to the Arlington Heights plant to accommodate employees with a transportation problem.

SCANNING TWO television monitors, the guard at Honeywell Commercial Division in Arlington Heights, guard Edward Dawidszyk, of Park Ridge can patrol the entire plant without ever leaving his post. Also located in the master control center is a Delta control console which operates all the mechanical equipment in the building, managed by Harvey Stein of Skokie.

Plumbing Moves To the Outdoors

Outdoor living is fast becoming one of America's favorite summer pastimes. We eat, relax and entertain in our backyards, and barbeque equipment, comfortable chairs and table are becoming standard equipment on our lawns and patios.

All this is causing plumbing to move outdoors, the Illinois Association of Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Contractors said. The patio sink with hot and cold running water is an example. It gives kitchen convenience right in the yard. Sticky fingers can be washed, a glass of water is only an arm's reach away and dishes and cooking utensils can be washed on the spot.

Another major outdoor convenience is a drinking fountain. It should be installed at child level so youngsters can drink all the water they want while playing without the necessity of running in and out of the house, said the association.

Pasquale Marks Another Record

Robert L. Nelson of Robert L. Nelson, Real Estate has announced that Carl Pasquale has reached the Million Dollar Club, indicative of over $1 million in real estate sales during one year.

Pasquale achieved this goal during the first seven months of 1970. This marks the third year that Pasquale has been a million dollar salesman.

Hansen Gets Design Grant for Home

Richard T. Hansen, an architect who resides in Mount Prospect, has been given the design commission for a new two and one-half million dollar Nursing Home to be built in Park Ridge this fall.

Hansen has lived in Mount Prospect at 203 North Pine for the last ten years.

This is his 26th Nursing Home to be designed by his architectural firm bearing his name. The firm has offices in Chicago. Value of the nursing homes is in excess of $30 million.

Hansen was graduated from the University of Illinois School of Architecture in 1956, and formed his own firm a few years later after serving with several large area, architectural firms.

He was the architect for the Hannigan Office Plaza in Arlington Heights and has designed buildings for Salerno-McGowan Biscuit Co. in Niles and industrial building for General Foods and other companies, including United Wallpaper.

Gleason Named

Richard F. Gleason of 1830 N. Fernander Ave., Arlington Heights, has been named director of sales training, Business Machines Group, for Victor Computer Corp., Chicago.

Gleason had been adding machine-calculator training supervisor at the home office and eastern regions, Long Island, N.Y. branch manager, account executive, territory manager and salesman for Victor.

New York Life Boosts Romito

Larry D. Romito, 321 Sharon Lane, Schaumburg, has been appointed assistant manager of New York Life Insurance Co.'s State Street general office, according to Charles E. Dailey C.L.U., general manager.

Born in Sioux City, Iowa, Romito joined New York Life as an agent in Chicago in September, 1968.

Romito is a member of the company's Star Club. He graduated with a B.A. degree in English from the University of Illinois at Urbana in 1966.

Robinson Invited To Conference

George W. Robinson of 107 W. Berkley Drive, Arlington Heights, was recently invited to attend a Prudential Insurance Co.'s President's Club conference in Honolulu, Hawaii, at the Ilihai Hotel.

Robinson is a special agent in the company's North Shore agency.

Chosen for outstanding performance during 1969, the delegates participated in workshop sessions on such subjects as advanced underwriting and business insurance.

TOOL ENGINEER
Far north suburban machine shop needs engineer who knows what he is doing, and does it.
We machine gray iron castings, so the experience needed runs the gamut of metal working equipment: mills, drills, chuckers, broaches, lathes, reamers, etc. All of them need specialized jigs, fixtures, and tooling.
An appealing position particularly because it blends both tool design and equipment-process trouble shooting constituting the guts of real manufacturing engineering. Such characteristics as a degree; white shirt and tie; and fancy engineering terms are not important; as this position needs the "can do" factors of skill, ability and close follow up. If you "can do" you will enjoy an association with a top notch organization on the move with all the benefits due a contributing member of it.

Get the message? Drop a line to us stating contact information, a brief sketch of your background, and your salary expectations. Write Box K65, Paddock Publications.

Funds Authorized For Sewer Tests

Residents on Cabot Lane in Schaumburg who are concerned about periodic sanitary system backups in their homes received assistance from the Schaumburg village board Tuesday.

The village board authorized the spending of $2,000 for testing of the sanitary sewer system on Cabot to determine the causes of the sewer backup problem. Edwin Denman, Schaumburg public works director, said that about 600 feet of sewer pipe between Brewster Drive and Braintree Drive would be checked. A private firm will be hired by the village to assist with the testing.

Five hundred dollars was authorized to be spent for a smoke test which will reveal any illegal hookups to the sanitary sewer. This test will be performed by the village public works department.

An additional $1,500 will pay the cost of a television test, which is designed to find out if there are any cracks in the sewer pipe or separation of joints. A private firm will be engaged for this purpose. A television camera will be sent through the pipe to take pictures.

According to one Cabot Lane resident, there is between two and three feet of water at the intersection of Cabot and Falmouth every time it rains. He said this has occurred four times so far this year.

DENMAN SAID THE tests on the sanitary system would begin as soon as the materials were available.

Robert Peterson, of Suhr, Peterson, Peterson and Suhr, consulting engineers, said the sewer backup problem for Cabot Lane residents was apparently the result of either illegal connections to the sanitary system, or faulty construction in the first place. Testing the sewer system will pinpoint the problem.

Storm water is now getting into the sanitary system, Peterson told the board.

Residents on Cedar Court in Schaumburg's Timbercrest subdivision were also present at Tuesday's village board meeting to complain about water standing in the street after rains.

In response to this problem, the Schaumburg village board approved the spending of up to $3,000 for relaying a sewer in the cul-de-sac on Cedar Court, on the advice of Peterson.

This area is a low section that presently drains to the northwest into a swamp, Peterson said.

According to the consulting engineer, "During storms, water runs through the sewer to a hole at the edge of the swamp, and then overflows out of the hole and drains into the swamp. The best corrective action that can be taken is to relay the sewer between the inlet in the street and the swamp so that the sewer invert is above the ground level in the swamp."

"Our flood problems are small when compared to areas of the Salt Creek Watershed," said Mayor Robert Atcher. "But we are bent on correcting these problems as soon as possible."

Hoffman Parks Chosen By Knolls

'Yesterday' Tomorrow

Judy Holliday will star at Grant Wood School, 255 E. Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village tomorrow night at 7 p.m.

She's in the movie "Born Yesterday," tomorrow's feature in the movie series sponsored by the Elk Grove Park District. Admission price is 10 cents.

Members of Winston Knolls Home Owners Association voted overwhelmingly in favor of joining Hoffman Estates Park District, ending months of confusion over the lack of park and recreational facilities for the subdivision.

At Tuesday night's general meeting of the homeowners group, Conrad Kewin, of the park district study committee, said that in a residents poll, 124 households voted for disannexation from Palatine Rural Park District and annexation to Hoffman Estates District.

The poll showed only 11 households in favor of remaining in the inactive rural park district and an additional ten homeowners expressed preference for further investigation into possible formation of a separate park district.

In a written report prepared by members of the park study committee, who recommended joining Hoffman Estates district, Kewin and others in the group explained the investigation which led to their suggested solution.

The report stated that the committee of homeowners association members had met with the rural district, as well as Palatine Park District, Hoffman Estates Park District and village trustees and representatives of Centex-Winston, developer of their area.

The rural district had advised that there would be no objection to disannexation if that was found to be the desire of the residents.

PALATINE PARK District discouraged thoughts of an alliance and representatives also discovered the tax rate for that body substantially higher than that of Hoffman Estates Park District.

Involved also is an approximate 35 acre land donation pledged for park and recreation use by the builder.

Thoughts of forming an independent park district were virtually discarded by the group because of lack of funds and length of time necessary to activate such a program.

"Considering everything involved, the park committee feels that the most advantageous solution is to disannex from Palatine Rural Park District and annex to Hoffman Estates.

"This will give the residents an established, professional organization and provide immediate recreational facilities," the report said.

Following unanimous agreement to put wheels for disannexation from the rural district into motion, homeowners were shown a slide presentation by Mrs. Anne Schuerings, acting director of parks and recreation for Hoffman Estates.

Assisted by Bernard M. Bartosch, of the park board, Mrs. Schuerings traced the history and development of the park district and answered inquiries of the residents.

IN RESPONSE to their queries, she indicated that park development in Winston Knolls cannot begin until the area is part of Hoffman Estates park district and land set aside for recreation has been deeded to the district.

"We are prohibited by law from doing anything else but waiting until you join us," she told the homeowners, but assured them that as soon as the area joins the park district programs will be initiated in their neighborhood.

The disannexation must wait for action by trustees of the rural park district which meets quarterly, however, Kewin indicated that he had spoken with Francis Kelley, counsel for Palatine Rural Park District.

"Mr. Kelley assured me that they would call a special meeting if we decided to do this and to that board, he is God," Kewin commented.

Blackout Caused By Broken Line

A broken feeder line was the cause of the power blackout in Schaumburg Tuesday evening, according to a Commonwealth Edison spokesman. Power was off for about three hours in the village between 7:30 and 10:30 p.m. last night.

Schaumburg police said that some homes did have power, but that about 60 per cent of the residents were in darkness during the blackout period.

Pool Control Transfer Near

Hoffman Estates' community swimming pool on Grand Canyon Pkwy. is another step closer toward being put into the hands of the Hoffman Estates Park District.

At a joint meeting between the village board and park board Tuesday, Mayor Frederick Downey told park commissioners he can muster support from his trustees toward finalizing the transfer.

A formal proposal is to be given to the park commissioners at a joint meeting scheduled for Aug. 25. Basically, it is expected the park will assume the remainder of an $85,000 mortgage to be paid on the pool.

A law suit pending on a $17,000 bill for lockers at the pool was questioned by Park Board Pres. Fred Weaver. Information not available Tuesday concerning the suit will be investigated by the village and incorporated into the conditions by which pool liabilities will be transferred.

TRUSTEES BRUCE Lind, Edward Hennessy and Mrs. Virginia Hayter attended the meeting in addition to Downey and Administrative Assistant Daniel Larson.

Hennessy was the only person present who questioned the pool transfer saying people in the community wonder what they're getting for the tax monies they pay to the park district.

"I'm willing to let the park district take over the pool, I'm just reluctant," he said later.

Larson reviewed a park district engineering report on the pool, pointing out items the village has improved, including locker room facilities, the filtration system and wading pool improvements.

The 44 car parking lot the village recently completed at the pool was also mentioned.

AN AGREEMENT for joint maintenance of retention ponds in Hoffman Estates will also be prepared for the Aug. 25 meeting.

The village is interested only in having the ponds maintained at a three foot depth for water retention purposes. The park commissioners want them maintained at a 10 to 12 foot depth so they can be used for boating and fishing.

It was decided that a third party will be called in advance to determine how costs will be shared for retention pond dredging.

Other items of the retention pond maintenance agreement were worked out earlier by Larson and former park director Vaughn Black, and were agreeable to both village trustees and park commissioners present.

A take over of ball diamond maintenance at Chino Park was also discussed.

Downey said the transfer can not be discussed until the village resolves the municipal building question and gets the public works building up and operating.

A SITE FOR A new municipal building is expected to be announced in the near future. The public works building is now under construction behind the existing village hall, 161 Illinois Blvd., next to Chino Park.

Weaver also asked that water from village fire hydrants be used to spray ice skating areas in the village this winter.

A plan will be worked out so the park people can use the hydrants between 10 p.m. and 6 a.m., when water pressure demands are smallest.

Mrs. Hayter, public works chairman for the village, said she'd vote no on the proposal until a new well is sunk at the village's west end providing adequate water pressure for the multi-family developments located there.

Weaver said another alternative is to pump water from beneath ice on retention ponds and to use it for spraying the surface.

Approval for use of the hydrants has been attained from the Hoffman Estates Fire District. Village approval is all that is needed, Weaver added.

He said 40 days of skating can be planned at seven sites around the village including the five retention ponds, a Vogel Park site and one at Twinbrook School, provided a method to attain smooth ice can be secured.

Well Construction Underway Soon

Construction of a well and storage reservoir for the Knightsbridge subdivision in Schaumburg is expected to begin in about two weeks.

The Schaumburg village board approved a contract for $95,750 with the Knightsbridge developer, HFS Engineering and Construction, for installation of a well and storage tank at Tuesday's village board meeting. The village will purchase the well from the developer in a long-term arrangement.

Knightsbridge subdivision is located in a 40-acre tract west of Jones Road, a half-mile north of Higgins Road. It is north of the Churchill subdivision, which is also in Schaumburg. Both subdivisions border Hoffman Estates.

Schaumburg is expected to have sewer and water lines installed to this area as early as next spring.

At Tuesday's village board meeting in Schaumburg, Mayor Robert O. Atcher read a letter from Mayor Fred Downey of Hoffman Estates, stating that Hoffman Estates would no longer be able to provide water service for the Churchill subdivision beginning August, 1971.

Churchill subdivision in Schaumburg has 130 homes, and the Knightsbridge subdivision has 107 homes.

THE HOFFMAN ESTATES village board refused permission to hook on the village sewer lines to the Knightsbridge developer. Knightsbridge will be served by Schaumburg sewer lines once these are installed.

The first phase of the construction of Schaumburg's sewer and water lines for Knightsbridge and Churchill is now in progress. Eventually, these lines will be extended north from Roselle and Golf to the Zaremba apartment complex, and

Firms Locate In Park

Three more sites have been sold in the southern section of the 506-acre Industrial Park development in Schaumburg Township, making a total of 49 lots sold since its opening in September.

The $200 million park, planned by Bennett and Kahnweiler, industrial developers, includes sites for light industrial manufacturers and warehouses.

Two lots were sold to Perlman and Zemon, contractors, and the third lot was sold for offices of Elk Grove Engineering.

Neither company has submitted a building schedule to Bennett and Kahnweiler, so specific uses of the land has not yet been determined.

Land titles will not be given to the buyers until water and sewage facilities are installed to the satisfaction of the buyer.

Several Hanover Park residents have been concerned that their sewage treatment plant will be overloaded because the industrial park empties into it.

However, James Dana of Bennett and Kahnweiler said that by the time the sewage empties into the Hanover Park then west to the Churchill and Knightsbridge developments.

Two other wells will be constructed in the northwest corner of Schaumburg lat-area, it will have been already treated twice.

"We couldn't get a permit to attach to them (Hanover Park) without the permission of the Metropolitan Sanitary District, and they wouldn't give us a permit unless they were sure it would not overload," Dana said.

Schaumburg Plan Commissioner Robert Link said, "I don't think an industrial area could cause a problem like that."

When completed, taxes from the industrial park are expected to bring local school districts and other taxing bodies about $6 million a year.

The park, which is being fashioned after the successful Centex Industrial Park in Elk Grove Village, is only one of 718 industrial parks developed by Bennett and Kahnweiler.

The Elgin-O'Hare expressway will run through the center of the park, and is expected to be completed by 1973.

The park is also 10 minutes from the Milwaukee Road piggy-back ramp at Bensenville and in close proximity to the Chicago and North Western R.R. ramp at Proviso.

Draft Board Offices Across The Street

Selective Service Boards 101, 102, and 103 are now located at 1920 Waukegan Road, Glenview, not 1921 Waukegan as was previously reported.

Award Roof Bid, Provisionally

A $2100 contract to provide new roofing for the large barn under renovation at Iga B. Voegel Park and Community Recreation Center, was provisionally awarded to West Suburban Roofing Co. this week.

During a special park board meeting Monday, commissioners officially took action regarding the roofing bid subject to approval of specifications by Holland, Steed and Schapanski, Deerfield architects in charge of the project.

In related action, park board members shifted the roofing work to the supervision of Pritscher and Erbach, Inc., general contractors for barn work.

The barn is being prepared for use as a multi-purpose recreation center and will house many programs and instructional activities sponsored by the park district.

The upper level of the barn will be used extensively by the Guild Players, a local theatrical group, for dramatic productions and rehearsals.

The building is located on the 10-acre park site acquired by the park district last September for a total of $150,000.

The property, located at Higgins and Jones roads, was the first land purchased by the park district. Previous parcels had been donated by Hoffman-Rosner Corp., original developer of Hoffman Estates.

All land on the 10-acre park is buildable as opposed to the marginal lands donated by Hoffman-Rosner which can be used primarily for passive recreational activities.

The other existing structure on the land is a 37-year old 14 room stone residence which has been transformed into air-conditioned office space for the park district.

Barn renovation completion is expected early this fall.

Mayor Explains New Government

Residents living in Winston Knolls subdivision were invited to submit resumes for appointment to openings on local governmental boards and commissions this week.

Speaking before an overflow crowd of

Hennessy Raps

Hoffman Estates Jaycees Carnival, held last week in a local shopping center, brought sharp criticism and suggestions for future selectivity from at least one village (Harpur) Monday.

Trustee Edward J. Hennessy, who introduced the carnival subject toward the end of this week's village board meeting, said that an excessive amount of gambling seemed to be in progress when he visited the event.

"In fact, it looked like a miniature Las Vegas with quite a few hippy-dippy looking characters ambling around in one spot," Hennessy asserted.

"Those are our young people that you are talking about, Mr. Hennessy," sharply retorted Trustee Mrs. Virginia Hayter. "Don't you know that you can't legislate aesthetics," she asked in obvious annoyance.

Although Mrs. Hayter was quick to explain that prices charged at the carnival were "beyond the limits of my pocketbook" and said that she had issued a firm "no" to her own children's requests to attend, she indicated that she was offended at her fellow trustees' description of some attending the carnival.

Hennessy explained that he felt that the carnival appeared to bring "an unsavory looking element into the village."

"I am suggesting that we take a good hard look at any future carnivals before we approve them," he concluded.

Mayor Frederick E. Downey, over whose objections trustees granted the Jaycees permission to hold the carnival for a second successive year, noted that he had "expressed views regarding carnivals previously."

Sewer Work Bids Awarded

The Schaumburg village board Tuesday awarded a contract for $112,000 to Rossetti Construction Co., Rolling Meadows, for installation of a sewer system along Plum Grove Road in the village. The firm was the low bidder.

The Plum Grove sewer is intended to bypass the village's Timbercrest sewage treatment plant and carry sewage to the Metropolitan Sanitary District interceptor at Higgins and Plum Grove Road. The Timbercrest plant is now operating at full capacity.

The Metropolitan Sanitary District had earlier filed a suit against Schaumburg for allegedly polluting the stream which the village's Timbercrest sewage treatment plant uses. However, the MSD dropped this legal suit in June when a permit for installation of the Plum Grove sewer was approved.

When the MSD has its Salt Creek sewage treatment plant in operation, the Timbercrest plant in Schaumburg will no longer be needed.

Other bids received for the Plum Grove sewer project were: Moia Sewerage Construction, $114,206; Donald R. Teegan Co., $114,712; Scully, Hunter, and Scully, $127,087; George D. Hardin, Inc., $134,233; and Bari Sewer and Water Construction, $143,927.

Bids for the Plum Grove sewer project were opened Monday.

The Plum Grove sewer will be a force main and gravity system, according to Edwin Denhar, Schaumburg public works director. The force main portion will be about one mile long.

The village board rejected a bid of $10,500 from the Rossetti firm for modifying a lift station in the village, since it will be cheaper to receive direct bids for this job, Denhar told the village board.

Winston Knolls Home Owners Association members Tuesday night, Mayor Frederick E. Downey familiarized residents of the new subdivision with Hoffman Estates village governmental structure.

"Due to people moving from the community we often have openings on these boards and commissions," the mayor explained, inviting interested persons to apply for consideration.

"In fact, it often seems that one of my major tasks as village president is keeping these groups up to strength," Downey said.

He said that village officials are presently awaiting official tally figures from the federal census.

He said that part of state income tax funds channeled back to the village were used to provide a second garbage pickup during summer months.

In discussing the village operation with Winston Knolls residents, Downey said that between 50 and 60 full time persons are employed by the village.

In other business this week, the homeowners association decided to direct its community relations' committee to study several zoning matters currently pending.

The newly formed homeowners association will hold general meetings the fourth Monday of each month, according to Bob Johns, president of the group.

From September through May of each year, the monthly meetings will be held at Hunting Ridge School, Palatine.

Summer meeting arrangements will be made according to space available, Johns indicated in announcing tentative plans to hold the August membership meeting at Harper College.

Teen Vote Alters Pattern?

by ED MURNANE
(A News Analysis)

Substantial changes in voting patterns in the Northwest suburbs may result if 18, 19 and 20-year-olds are allowed to vote in future elections.

Although court tests have not yet upheld the constitutionality of the new voting laws, tomorrow is the first day for the younger citizens to register for the franchise.

If the courts uphold the expanded voting franchise, which was passed by Congress and signed by President Nixon, the new voters will be eligible to vote in federal, state and local elections beginning Jan. 1, 1971.

Based on U. S. census figures for 1960, the 18 to 21 group will represent less than 10 per cent of the voting population nationwide. In Illinois, 7.3 per cent of the voting population would be under 21.

However, if the younger voters show a more concerned attitude toward the franchise than do their elders, the 7.3 per cent in Illinois could be increased to as much as 30 per cent of the total votes cast.

In the four Northwest suburban townships of Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg, for example, the new voting laws could send as many as 16,000 new voters to the polls — if they register.

THAT FIGURE is based on the number of graduates from three high schools in Palatine-Schaumburg Dist. 211, six high schools in Dist. 214, and St. Viator and Sacred Heart High Schools, since 1967.

Most students who graduated in 1967 will become 21 years old this year and the 1970 high school classes consisted of students who will reach their 18th birthdays this year.

Based on the past voting performances of their parents, the younger people could definitely change the outcome of elections in this area if they bother to register and vote.

That's a question that won't be answered until the first election is held. Voters between 21 and 25, who have had the franchise all along, have one of the poorest voting records, indicating that

A young Robin Hood takes aim at the sky.

'Survival Kits' Program Begins

A program to educate newcomers in the Northwest suburban area about health and safety services was launched here yesterday by Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

The program includes the visits by 35 local representatives to homes of new families in the area. Each family will be given a special kind of survival kit containing health and safety information geared to local resources that can be called on in emergencies.

The survival kits will be distributed to residents in Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village, Prospect Heights, Palatine and Rolling Meadows.

"We're distributing the kits to new residents first," said Miss Eleanor Brennan, a member of the company's community health department, "because it is people who are on the move who have the most trouble finding medical information when they get into a new community, so we're trying to help them."

THE KITS, WHICH will also be available at the company's local office at 420 Lee St., Des Plaines, includes information on where to contact a physician or obtain an ambulance in case of emergency, what to do in case of accidental poisoning, where to get first aid training, and how to insure blood credit for one year.

They also contain a safety guide for teen-age babysitters, instruction for mouth-to-mouth rescue breathing, an emergency medical information card, a first aid wall chart and a picture primer on health and safety standards.

According to Miss Brennan all the information was prepared by Metropolitan Life in cooperation with the Chicago Medical Society for Cook County.

"The Cook County Medical Association," explained Miss Brennan, "was our source of approach to the area because they're well aware of all the medical facilities which are available to people. The company is constantly involved with national medical associations because the company has been involved with medical emergency programs for many years."

Miss Brennan said, "people should review the materials and then put the various cards, guides and illustrations in the parts of the house where they would be used the most. For instance, she said, "the first aid card should be pasted to the medicine cabinet and the list of emergency phone numbers should be kept near the phone."

Parks From Centex-Winston?

A pledge to further assist in providing sorely needed recreational land and facilities in Winston Knolls subdivision might be obtained from Centex-Winston Corp. prior to annexation approval of an additional 350 adjoining acres.

The suggestion, proffered by Conrad Kewin, a resident of the subdivision located north of Algonquin Road and west of Elm Rd., came during a meeting of Winston Knolls Home Owners Association this week.

The builder recently informed Mayor Frederick E. Downey of his desire to discuss the proposed annexation and promised that it single family homes with only marginal zoning for commercial areas to serve residents living nearby.

Kewin told Downey that he feels that the builder involved is extremely community minded and has a reputation for maintaining good governmental relationships.

"Perhaps this would be a way of providing a swimming pool for this area of the village," Kewin said.

The annexation proposal has been referred to members of the village plan commission for study and public hearings.

the novelty of voting is considered just that — a novelty and not a responsibility.

But the figures showing poor turnouts by the 21 to 25 group are based on elections held during the 1960s, before the flurry of campus disorders and before the increased involvement in political campaigns by young people began.

If the new involvement by college-age students is indicative of civic concern, then the 18 to 21 group could have a substantially better voting record than their elders and could dramatically affect the outcome of future elections.

IN LAST YEAR'S 13th Congressional District Republican primary election, for example, only 29,000 voters cast ballots in the four Northwest suburban townships — despite the fact that the election to fill the vacant congressional seat was one of the most widely publicized elections in years.

Eight Republican candidates crisscrossed the area for five months during the summer and early fall and newspapers and radio and television stations gave more coverage to the race than they do for anything but major state and national races.

Yet only 20 per cent of the voters went to the polls and the race was determined by a slim margin of 2,100 votes.

Had 16,000 additional voters been eligible and only 20 per cent voted, there would have been 3,200 more votes cast — enough to change the outcome.

And since the younger voters probably would have been less conservative than their elders, chances are good that they would not have supported conservative Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th, who won the Republican nomination in the primary.

Crane, incidentally, opposed the new voting age.

An even greater potential for changing the outcome of an election would have existed in last year's Third District Constitutional Convention primary in which 16 candidates sought the four nominations for delegate seats at the convention.

FEWER THAN 10,000 voters turned out for that election in the four townships.

If the 18, 19 and 20 year olds had been able to vote, they possibly could have cast more votes than their elders did and, since there were several Con-Con candidates in their 20s and early 30s, the results may have been substantially different.

The key to the influence that will be wielded by the new voters is the number who register. If the younger voters are as interested in voting as President Nixon said they were when he signed the law, then election results may be determined by 18, 19 and 20-year-olds.

But in some areas, there is likely to be a backlash effect by the older voters. Conservatives generally do not favor a lower voting age and the prospect of giving teenagers a voice in electing public officials may be the spark the older voters need to improve their own voting performance.

Results of the new voting law, if it is upheld, probably won't be fully realized until at least 1972. The law takes effect in January and the only elections in 1971 will be for local officials and school board members — lowest on the interest totem pole.

But 1972 a Presidential election will take place, as well as races for the United States Senate, Congress and governor of Illinois. That's when the young voters' influence will be felt and the results should be, if nothing else, enlightening.

Students Tour Offices

Nearly 200 political science students from Conant High School toured the offices of the village hall, fire department and police station yesterday to learn about the functions and business of local government.

Although classes ended Friday, the field trip was part of the summer school curriculum.

Five instructors, Village Trustee Virginia Rayter and Village Clerk Virginia Netter accompanied the junior and senior students to explain the different functions of local government.

Available department heads also spoke to the students about activities of their departments.

"We were trying to give them an overall look at the village," said Mrs. Netter. She said instructors distributed booklets explaining the functions of various departments and jobs of local government officials.

"The students were rather shocked at the amount of work it takes to run a village," Mrs. Netter said. She added that they were also amazed at the poor condition of the buildings.

During the 3-hour tour, the students were also allowed to ask questions of department heads and fire and police chiefs.

Brooks: Future Of Sidewalk Dim

The future of the Sidewalk Academy in Rolling Meadows is dim, according to the man who has helped bring speakers to the lecture series.

In an indictment of the city, yesterday Clyde Brooks said the "overwhelming apathy and indifference" of the community to the series may mean it will be moved to another location. Brooks, who heads Educational Laboratories in Elk Grove is also a manpower director in the county Office of Economic Opportunity.

Brooks said the decision to move the academy will be made on the basis of the attendance. He did not say where the academy might be moved. The present location is Sacred Heart of Mary High School at 2800 Central Rd.

"I feel the concept," of the academy, "to promote community education is desirable," Brooks said. "We have speakers that will appeal to the ultra-right, liberals and moderates."

"But for some reason," he continued, "the community has not seen fit to support this concept of community education."

Attendance at two of the first three sessions was less than 50 people. Over 100 people showed up to hear representatives of the Black Panther party.

Brooks said that there has been a "noticeable absence of ministers, of educators and of civic organization representatives."

BROOKS THEN leveled a blast at Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland J. Meyer saying he refused to be involved in the academy because he felt that criminals were participating in the series. This is not the case, Brooks said.

Meyer's comments constituted "program slander that is not in the best interests of a free and open society," Brooks said.

"I just can't see how people can be so indifferent and draw conclusions based on mis-information," said Brooks.

The purpose of the academy, he said, is to provide opposing points of view so people can "make up their own minds about positions they want to take."

Brooks said he knew what to expect from the people he called the "ultra right" but was depressed "with the liberal who professes so many things in rhetorical terms, but who is absent from activities designed to help man understand his fellow man."

"If the community does not want to support this type of program, there are other communities that want it," he said.

The academy, he said, is now in debt. "We had hoped to raise money for a drug abuse program for the young people," Brooks said. "Lord knows, we need it out here."

The lack of interest in the Sidewalk Academy, he said, may be part of a larger "mental health" problem in the Northwest suburban area.

THIS PROBLEM is illustrated by the attitude of many people toward low income housing in the area, the attitudes of people who speak different languages, have different skin color and different religion, he said.

Part of the problem may be seen in what Brooks called the "increase in the number of alcoholics" and increasing "drug dependency."

Brooks said people may be staying away from the academy because they feel "threatened." These "insecure" people, he said, are afraid that "some of the speakers represent an illness that can be communicated."

Tonight's speaker, the Rev. George Clements, Brooks described as a "dynamic personality, the kind of Christian we need more of in society."

Rev. Clements was the kind of "activist Jesus Christ was all about," Brooks said.

He will be speaking on "Jesus Christ, the Revolutionary." The program starts at 8 p.m. Admission is $1.50 for students and $2 for adults.

Two Local Youths Arrested In Riot

Two Elk Grove Village youths were arrested by Chicago police Monday after a riot in Grant Park during a free rock concert sponsored by the Chicago Park District.

Reed J. Roark, 18, 1225 Cypress Lane and Steve P. Quick, 18, 941 W. Higgins Road were both arrested and charged with disorderly conduct.

The two youths were among 165 people, including 11 women and 40 juveniles arrested in Chicago.

Consumer Fraud Office Set Here

A branch office of the Illinois Attorney General's Bureau of Consumer Fraud and Protection is scheduled to open in Elk Grove Village Aug. 15.

The office, manned by local volunteers, will be serving all residents in villages surrounding Elk Grove to Schaumburg and Niles where other offices are located.

Situated in the conference room of the village hall, directly behind the police station on 666 Landmeier Road, the office will be open from 9 a.m. to noon each Saturday.

This is a tentative scheduling according to Tom King, one of the volunteers, until the demand for services in the area is determined.

Other volunteers include Mrs. Jeanne Seldin, Mrs. Pat Peacock and Miss Kirsten Reeder.

"This is a volunteer effort between the state's attorney's bureau and the village," Village Pres Jack Pahl said.

WILLIAM KUTZA, director of the branch office, will help the volunteers in responding to complaints when necessary, he said, but would not work out of the Elk Grove office.

"The rationale behind the branch office is that local people know the consumer," he said. "They shop at the same stores and may have the same complaints."

Any type of complaints will be handled at the office, but Kutza cautioned that the customer contact the company with his problem before coming to the consumer fraud office.

"Many people are afraid to contact the company when the company may always offer a refund on bad merchandise according to policy," he said.

"There are a myriad of ways the consumer can get cheated. You name the complaint and we've had it," he said.

Pahl indicated that most complaints in Elk Grove involved door-to-door salesmen, and sales involving air conditioners.

COMPLAINT FORMS will be available at the village hall during the week for people who want to fill them out and bring them in on Saturday mornings.

Pamphlets will be available at the office with tips on how to avoid fraud. One is entitled, "20 Ways Not to be Gyped," and the other is "Your Protection Against Fraudulent Sales, Advertising and Loans."

The office will accept insurance complaints but will not handle them through the fraud office. They will be forwarded to the Illinois insurance director, according to Kutza.

The mobile unit will also be available to consumers for complaints, Kutza said. He explained that upon prior request the unit can be available any time to supplement the service of the local office.

The Elk Grove office is the only group operating on a volunteer basis, Kutza said. He added, "As far as our office is concerned we hope this will be a model arrangement."

Police Talks Are Stalelated

Negotiations have stalelated in the Wheeling police sick in, and Illinois State Police remain on duty in the village. No major crimes have been reported since the "sick-in" by 15 Wheeling Policemen began last Friday.

Village officials have announced that talks with the policemen through the police chief will resume as soon as the 15 men "comply with the law" by returning to work.

Sgt. Gene Wolf, Wheeling chapter president of the Cook County Police Assn., said Tuesday that as far as the police are concerned "everything in this world is negotiable."

Wolf said that "channels of communication are in fact tightly closed" at the present time.

The Wheeling Jaycees sent a statement to the board asking that legal actions against the policemen be dropped. The Jaycees urged policemen to return to work immediately if the board dropped the suit against them. The called for public meetings to resolve issues with arbitration or mediation after a 10-day period.

Although the village had a court injunction issued Monday against the 15 "sick" policemen, none of the policemen has been served with a copy of it. The injunction ordered the policemen to either report back to work immediately or to a doctor in the Buffalo Grove Medical Center by 2 p.m. Tuesday. The policemen did not comply with the court order.

CCPA activities in other suburbs include the settlement of a sick-in in Skokie. In Waukegan 61 patrolmen included in a sick-in there were suspended. In Des Plaines city officials were re-examining an ordinance recognizing the CCPA as a bargaining agent for that city's patrolmen in view of the current strikes in Wheeling and Waukegan. In Palatine, policemen were scheduled to vote on CCPA membership yesterday but the vote was held up by the absence of election examiners.

1,100 Acres—Now Come The People

People living in Elk Grove Village east of Rt. 53 will be noticing neighbors soon west of the highway.

Families will begin moving into the Centex homes in the next couple of weeks, according to Bob Winkle, Centex sales manager.

The first phase of the development was to have been completed by the end of 1970 but construction has been delayed, due to several strikes in the area, Winkle said.

The first phase will probably be finished in March, but people will be able to move in August at the rate of three to five families a month, Winkle said.

The development, immediately adjacent to the south fence of the WGN property includes 1,100 acres of land zoned residential. This first section of 105 acres includes 312 lots and land for a school, church and park.

More than 30 homes in the area have been sold, Winkle said.

HE SAID THE schedule for people moving in would hopefully increase now that the strikes affecting construction are over. Winkle named the heavy equipment, cement, trucking, countertop, and millworkers strikes as the ones which caused the two month delay.

"We're getting up a head of steam again now that they're over," he said. He added that the streets were being poured.

The streets in the subdivision have been named after American astronauts, with the main entrance named White Trail and three arterials designed Glenn, Grissom and White.

A COCKNEY accent is easy to get rid of with the help of a marble or two. "Henry Higgins," (Louie Rofrano) at left, and "Col. Pickering," (Jim Hand), help "Eliza"

(Katie Hearn) learn how to speak with a cultured British accent in this scene from "My Fair Lady."

'My Fair Lady' Opens Tonight

The curtain will rise at 8 p.m. this evening on "My Fair Lady" at Wheeling High School.

The musical comedy about a "Cockney" flower girl who is successfully transformed into a member of British high society, will also be presented Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m.

More than 100 students in the WHS

summer drama class are presenting the Lerner and Lowe musical. The sponsor of the production is the WHS Community Scholarship Foundation. Proceeds will be used to provide scholarships to deserving WHS graduates who wish to continue their education.

The leading roles include Katie Hearn

as Eliza Doolittle, Louie Rofrano as Henry Higgins, Jim Hand as Col. Pickering and David Lark as Alfie Doolittle.

The musical is under the direction of WHS English teacher Eric Lidh.

It is based on "Pygmalion," a play by George Bernard Shaw. Tickets will be available at the door.

Zone Board OKs Trailer Park

A recommendation to rezone about 40 acres of land for a mobile home park was made Tuesday by the Wheeling Zoning Board of Appeals, despite strong opposition from Dist. 21 school Supt. Kenneth Gill.

On a 3-2 vote, the board voted to recommend the rezoning of property adjacent to the Addolorata Villa Home on Rte. 83 for a mobile home park.

The recommendation will be forwarded to the village board, the group that will make the final decision on the rezoning.

The proposal was to rezone land now zoned I-3, light industrial district zoning, and I-4, heavy industrial district zoning, to PD-4, planned development zoning with a special use permit to allow the mobile homes.

Frank Wofek, Al Martin and Zoning Board Chairman Douglas Cargill voted in favor of the zoning. Members Alvin Nelson and Ed Stepicka voted against it.

THE REQUEST for the rezoning was made by attorney James Thomson, who represents the Servite Sisters, Inc., owners of the property. However, although the petition is in the Sister's name, Thompson actually represents the potential buyers of the property who plan to establish a trailer park if the zoning is granted.

The potential purchasers are members of a bank trust and have not been disclosed.

In explaining the request for rezoning, Thompson said, "The sisters feel they can get the best return for their money by selling the land for use as a trailer park."

"It will provide housing for the elderly, small families of medium income, the Villa staff — people who want to live in Wheeling without purchasing homes in the $25,000-$30,000 price range."

He promised that the regulations put in force in the trailer park "will conform or be even more restrictive than the trailer ordinance," passed last week by the village board.

THOMPSON ADMITTED, however, that Illinois law prohibits elderly persons from living in mobile homes.

He promised that the potential buyers of the property would negotiate with Gill about the impact the park would have on the school district if and when zoning was granted.

Following Thompson's remarks, Gill addressed the board and said that he was "quite upset" about the proposed trailer park.

"Several things are bothering me," he said. "I thought that the land would be developed by the sisters for elderly persons. Now I see that under current legislation the elderly can't live in mobile homes."

He said that the big problem of the district is providing adequate classroom space and noted that trailers are not taxed as real estate; hence, the school district would get no tax benefit from the mobile homes.

"State and federal aid are not adequate. They have increased, but inflation has caused the cost of educating a child to increase more rapidly. I'm not at all sure that PD-4 is the best use for that property."

Cargill said, "I would like to see that when negotiations get further along a school site is involved."

Draft Board Offices Across The Street

Selective Service Boards 101, 102, and 103 are now located at 1820 Waukegan Road, Glenview, not 1921 Waukegan, as was previously reported.

Attended Youth Music Program

A young violinist, Douglas Sampson, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Sampson 866 Fletcher Dr. is attending the Illinois Summer Youth Music program at the Champaign-Urbana campus of the university.

Sampson's two-week stay at the camp began Monday. He received a gift of $25 from the Over 50 Club to attend the camp.

Sampson is a student at London Junior High School.

Negotiations have stalemated in the Wheeling police sick-in, and Illinois State Police remain on duty in the village. No major crimes have been reported since the "sick-in" by 15 Wheeling Policemen began last Friday.

Last night at Herald deadline, 21 persons were waiting in the Wheeling council chambers for the village board to come out of executive session. Among the members of the audience who waited for board action were wives of ten Wheeling policemen.

The board went immediately into executive session at the beginning of the meeting at 7 p.m. last night. A letter from the Wheeling Jaycees was distributed to the board members but not read aloud.

Village officials have announced that talks with the policemen through the police chief will resume as soon as the 15 men "comply with the law" by returning to work.

Sgt. Gene Wolf, Wheeling chapter president of the Cook County Police Assn., said Tuesday that as far as the police are concerned "everything in this world is negotiable."

Wolf said that "channels of communication are in fact tightly closed" at the present time.

The Wheeling Jaycees sent a statement to the board asking that legal actions against the policemen be dropped. The Jaycees urged policemen to return to work immediately if the board dropped the suit against them. The call for public meetings to resolve issues with arbitration or mediation after a 10-day period.

Although the village had a court injunction issued Monday against the 15 "sick" policemen, none of the policemen has been served with a copy of it. The injunction ordered the policemen to either report back to work immediately or to a doctor in the Buffalo Grove Medical Center by 2 p.m. Tuesday. The policemen did not comply with the court order.

CCPA activities in other suburbs include the settlement of a sick-in in Skokie. In Waukegan 61 patrolmen involved in a sick-in there were suspended.

In Des Plaines, city officials were re-examining an ordinance recognizing the CCPA as a bargaining agent for that city's patrolmen in view of the current strikes in Wheeling and Waukegan.

In Palatine, policemen were scheduled to vote on CCPA membership yesterday but the vote was held up by the absence of election examiners.

Jaycees Want Cop Suit Withdrawal

Jaycee Police Letter Text

The following is a text of a letter Wheeling Jaycees are sending to village officials and circulating as a petition through the village.

"In view of existing circumstances, we, as concerned citizens, feel the village board must take the first step and rescind the legal actions which have been taken.

"The police must then return to work immediately.

"Public meetings must be held to resolve the issues. These meetings must be open in their entirety to the citizens of Wheeling.

"If either of the parties involved will not conform to these requests, it will be assumed that either or both are not operating in the best interest of the community which they serve.

"If, after a 10-day period, these issues are not resolved they must be turned over to outside mediation or arbitration."

The Jaycees also urged local citizens to write letters to the village board expressing their opinions and to attend meetings of the board. They called on other community civic organizations to take an interest in solving the police crisis and to take a public stand on the issues.

The Jaycees had also invited a representative of the village to attend their meeting. However, they received a telegram from Village Atty. Paul Hamer explaining that because of the pending legal action none of the village officials would be able to attend.

In answer to Jaycees' questions Wolf said Wheeling police have been trying to establish a professional structure for the department for the last four or five years. Wolf said stumbling blocks in completing that task have included the repeated turnover in village managers and the newness of many of the village trustees.

Wolf told the Jaycees that the existing grievance procedure "effectively closes the doors of communication between village employees and the decision makers" at the village board level.

He said that the village board has refused to recognize the CCPA as a bargaining agent for the policemen based on an opinion by Hamer. Because the village lacks state statutory authority to bargain collectively with employee organizations a contract with the CCPA would be illegal, Hamer says.

The CCPA contends villages do have the legal right to recognize the association, Wolf said, citing a law which allows villages to deal with their employees.

WHEN ASKED if collective bargaining for the police would be unfair to other village employees, Wolf told the Jaycees that state law gives all municipal firemen "the right to force the village to binding arbitration and the right to join a union." Wheeling's firemen have never taken such action, however.

Wolf told the Jaycees that "everything we have asked for is negotiable." However, negotiations between the village and the police stopped when the village board issued a statement Monday saying talks would resume only when the police "obey the law" by returning to work.

When asked if the police would return to work without any action by the village board, Wolf would only say that, because of the injunctions issued against the policemen, "there are legal reasons now why this course of action (the continuing sick-in) must be pursued.

Village Cited As Polluter

Wheeling has received a warning notice from the Cook County Air Pollution Control Bureau for the dust and dirt pollution from an unpaved roadways on Wheeling Road (Railroad Avenue).

The road, located south of Dundee Road and west of the Soo Line R. R. tracks, runs south through the village's industrial district. The road's name changes from Railroad Avenue just south of Dundee Road to Wheeling Road farther south.

The notice, issued July 22, charges that the village is responsible for "dirt and other types of air pollution blown by the wind and or vehicle traffic over unsurfaced roadways." The warning notice ordered the village to answer the charges within seven days and to correct the situation immediately.

If the violation of county pollution ordinances is not corrected, a $500 fine or a six-month prison sentence for the responsible person, or both could be levied. The notice contends the road is in violation of a county ordinance which required all roads be treated to "minimize atmospheric pollutions on nuisance to other property."

Monday, Wheeling's Village board directed Larry Oppenheimer, director of public works, to write to the county explaining that the village plans to close the road within six to eight months when the new Wheeling Road extension is completed.

Oppenheimer said yesterday he had written to the air pollution control bureau of the village's plans. He has not yet received a reply.

Police Negotiations Are Stalemated

4 a.m. Liquor Law Pondered By Trustees

A new class of liquor licenses allowing 4 a.m. closing hours will be considered soon by the Wheeling Village Board.

Following a committee meeting Monday, the board directed Village Atty. Paul Hamer to draw up an ordinance providing for a new class of licenses allowing 4 a.m. closings on Saturdays and Sundays instead of the current 3 a.m. time.

Fees for the new license class would be set at $1,850 per year.

The new licenses would be limited to restaurants which have a seating capacity of at least 200 at tables primarily used for the service of food. Barroom seating would be excluded from the count.

Only four or five of 19 current license holders could meet the requirements for the new license class, trustees said.

The total number of licenses in the village would remain at 19 however, with no new licenses available for new businesses, trustees said.

The new license class was considered by the board after the Union Hotel requested a later closing hour.

Sanitarians Close Pool

Village and county sanitarians have temporarily closed the swimming pool at the Berkshire Truce Apartments on Dundee Road in Buffalo Grove because of malfunctioning chlorinating equipment.

According to Don Schindler, Buffalo Grove's sanitarian, "Due to some malfunctioning of equipment they had an imbalance of chlorine in the pool, creating quite a bit of cloudiness in the water. For safety factors, the pool was closed until such time as the equipment is completely operable and the condition of the water clears up."

"The apartment manager was extremely cooperative in the matter," said Schindler. He said he, along with a Cook County sanitarian inspected the pool after tenants had complained about the pool.

"The safety factor involved is that if someone went to the bottom of the pool and was drowning, no one could see him," Schindler said.

"After the pool appears to meet the standards as set down in county health codes, we will inspect the pool before re-opening it," he added.

Manager Post Is Not Filled

Virgil Barnett, who officially resigned from his position as Mount Prospect Village Mgr. Tuesday, will leave his post sometime next month. No plans have been made yet to replace him.

Barnett took office Sept. 1 of last year, following the resignation of Robert F. Moore who served as village manager during the administration of former village president, Daniel Congreve.

Barnett served as a private consultant in municipal development for the community of Wood River, Ill., the Southwestern Illinois Metropolitan Area Plan Commission and Southern Illinois University prior to accepting the post in Mount Prospect.

He is also the former village manager of Wood River, an industrial town just north of East St. Louis, where he served from 1965 to 1968. He also served as the city manager of Eaton, Ohio and the administrative assistant to the mayor of Glenview.

Barnett, 41, earned a master's degree in public administration and political science from Southern Illinois University. He also served four years with the U.S. Air Force, two of them overseas during the Korean War, as a communications specialist for an air transport command.

Entire Town Project Told

CHICAGO UPI — A joint venture to create a new town in Lake County, Ill., at a cost of $250 million was announced Monday by developers of the project.

A spokesman said the venture is being undertaken by Sears, Roebuck and Co., Mafco, Inc., a subsidiary of Marshall Field & Co., and Urban Investment and Development Co., a subsidiary of Aetna Life and Casualty.

The site for New Century Town is located 30 miles north of Chicago, and construction is scheduled to begin next year, the spokesman said.

The project will be built in two stages. The first stage will be a commercial center and will require about 18 months to construct.

Sears and Field's will have major stores in the center when it opens. Leasing agent for the center will be Draper and Kramer, Inc.

The second stage will include a regional town center, residential neighborhoods, schools, recreation area and research development centers.

The town is expected to provide facilities for a population of 15,000 to 18,000.

TASTE MINE — Popsicles and ice cream cups are the perfect way to end a sizzling afternoon in July after

'Survival Kits' Program Begins

A program to educate newcomers in the Northwest suburban area about health and safety services was launched here yesterday by Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

The program includes the visits by 35 local representatives to homes of new families in the area. Each family will be given a special kind of survival kit containing health and safety information geared to local resources that can be called on in emergencies.

The survival kits will be distributed to residents in Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village, Prospect Heights, Palatine and Rolling Meadows.

"We're distributing the kits to new residents first," said Miss Eleanor Brennan, a member of the company's community health department, "because it is people who are on the move who have the most trouble finding medical information when they get into a new community, so we're trying to help them."

THE KITS, WHICH will also be available at the company's local office at 420 Lee St., Des Plaines, includes information on where to contact a physician or obtain an ambulance in case of emergency, what to do in case of accidental poisoning, where to get first aid training, and how to insure blood credit for one year.

They also contain a safety guide for teen-age babysitters, instruction for mouth-to-mouth rescue breathing, an emergency medical information card, a first aid wall chart and a picture primer on health and safety standards.

According to Miss Brennan all the information was prepared by Metropolitan Life in cooperation with the Chicago Medical Society for Cook County.

"The Cook County Medical Association," explained Miss Brennan, "was our source of approach to the area because they're well aware of all the medical facilities which are available to people. The company is constantly involved with national medical associations because the company has been involved with medical emergency programs for many years."

Miss Brennan said, "people should review the materials and then put the various cards, guides and illustrations in the parts of the house where they would be used the most. For instance, she said, "the first aid card should be posted to the medicine cabinet and the list of emergency phone numbers should be kept near the phone."

Miss Brennan said she is confident the program will be well accepted by residents. "We've started the program in other areas and the people have been very happy with it. We've gotten many letters and phone calls thanking us."

The kit should be distributed to all newcomers within the next three to five months. After that the kits will be given to other Des Plaines area residents.

Veterans' Vane

Q — My only income is $200 a month military retirement benefit based on longevity. I am without dependents and, due to a non-service incurred disability, I am totally disabled and permanently bedridden. Am I eligible for VA pension benefits?

A — If you waive your entire retirement benefit, you may be eligible for a tax-free VA disability pension of $210 a month, which includes an aid and attendance benefit. Contact your nearest VA office.

Q — I am a veteran rated 100 per cent for service-connected disabilities incurred during peacetime. Am I eligible for out-patient treatment of ailments not related to military service?

A — No. You are not eligible unless you had some wartime service.

Q — I am attending school under the G.I. Bill. What must I do to qualify for the increased educational allowances under the recent amendment to the G.I. Bill?

A — No action is required on your part. The VA will automatically see that you receive the increased payments.

Q — I am 65 years old and plan to retire soon. Can I convert my National Service Life Insurance to the new Modified Life Plan?

A — No. The Modified Life Plan insurance is not available after six months have passed since your 60th birthday.

Q — I am a Vietnam veteran who plans to start a small business. May I use the G.I. loan for this purpose?

A — No, G.I. business loans are not available to Vietnam veterans. However, you might try the Small Business Administration.

Exchange Students Coming

A girl from Colombia, South America, and a boy from Mexico will be foreign exchange students at Wheeling High School during the 1970-71 school year.

Kathy Keene of Wheeling a 1970 WHS graduate, will be a foreign exchange student in Argentina during the coming year.

Amparo Rodriguez, 17, from Cucupa, Colombia, is scheduled to arrive in the United States on Aug. 3 under the American Field Service (AFS) foreign exchange program. She will live with Wheeling Police Chief M.O. Horcher and his wife and six daughters.

Horcher said he and his family are "tickled pink about hosting Amparo during the year."

Horcher said his daughter, Patty, urged him to apply to participate in the AFS program. Patty will be a senior at WHS this fall, as will Amparo.

Horcher noted that no one in his family is able to speak Spanish. "We'll have to do some fast learning," he said.

Joaquin Frias, 15, from Mexico, will be the Wheeling Rotary Club's foreign exchange student.

THE BOY WILL live with several local families while he attends WHS during the year. Joaquin's host families have not yet been determined.

Kathy will also be sponsored by the Wheeling Rotary Club during her year's stay in Argentina.

She was originally scheduled to be a foreign exchange student under the AFS program, but AFS was unable to find a host family for her. Therefore the Rotary Club picked up her sponsorship.

Kathy will spend a year attending high school in Cinco Saltos, located in the southern part of Argentina.

She will live with Nora Vecchi and her family. Nora attended WHS this past year and lived with Kathy's family under the Rotary-sponsored foreign exchange program.

Kathy said she will probably leave for Argentina at the end of August.

She said the trip would be "a once in a lifetime experience."

"I'll miss my family, but this will make up for it," Kathy said. "I want to get to know the country and the people of Argentina."

Kathy said she has had seven years of instruction in Spanish and plans to major in Spanish in college.

"So this will really help me," she said.

Sidewalk Series To Move?

The future of the Sidewalk Academy in Rolling Meadows is dim, according to the man who has helped bring speakers to the lecture series.

In an indictment of the city, yesterday Clyde Brooks said the "overwhelming apathy and indifference" of the community to the series may mean it will be moved to another location. Brooks, who heads Educational Laboratories in Elk Grove is also a manpower director in the county Office of Economic Opportunity.

Brooks said the decision to move the academy will be made on the basis of the attendance. He did not say where the academy might be moved. The present location is Sacred Heart of Mary High School at 2800 Central Rd.

"I feel the concept," of the academy, "to promote community education is desirable," Brooks said. "We have speakers that will appeal to the ultra-right, liberals and moderates."

"But for some reason," he continued, "the community has not seen fit to support this concept of community education."

Attendance at two of the first three sessions was less than 50 people. Over 100 people showed up to hear representatives of the Black Panther party.

Brooks said that there has been a "noticeable absence of ministers, of educators and of civic organization representatives."

BROOKS THEN leveled a blast at Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland J. Meyer saying he refused to be involved in the academy because he felt that criminals were participating in the series. This is not the case, Brooks said.

Meyer's comments constituted "program slander that is not in the best interests of a free and open society," Brooks said.

"I just can't see how people can be so indifferent and draw conclusions based on mis-information," said Brooks.

The purpose of the academy, he said, is to provide opposing points of view so people can "make up their own minds about positions they want to take."

Brooks said he knew what to expect from the people he called the "ultra right" but was depressed "with the liberal who professes so many things in rhetorical terms, but who is absent from activities designed to help man understand his fellow man."

"If the community does not want to support this type of program, there are other communities that want it," he said.

The academy, he said, is now in debt. "We had hoped to raise money for a drug abuse program for the young people," Brooks said. "Lord knows, we need it out here."

The lack of interest in the Sidewalk Academy, he said, may be part of a larger "mental health" problem in the Northwest suburban area.

THIS PROBLEM IS illustrated by the attitude of many people toward low income housing in the area, the attitudes of people who speak different languages, have different skin color and different religion, he said.

Part of the problem may be seen in what Brooks called the "increase in the number of alcoholics" and increasing "drug dependency."

Brooks said people may be staying away from the academy because they feel "threatened." These "insecure" people, he said, are afraid that "some of the speakers represent an illness that can be communicated."

Tonight's speaker, the Rev. George Clements, Brooks described as a "dynamic personality, the kind of Christian we need more of in society."

Rev. Clements was the kind of "activist Jesus Christ was all about," Brooks said.

He will be speaking on "Jesus Christ, the Revolutionary." The program starts at 8 p.m. Admission is $1.50 for students and $2 for adults.

Consumer Fraud Office Set Here

A branch office of the Illinois Attorney General's Bureau of Consumer Fraud and Protection is scheduled to open in Elk Grove Village Aug. 15.

The office, manned by local volunteers, will be serving all residents in villages surrounding Elk Grove to Schaumburg and Niles where other offices are located.

Situated in the conference room of the village hall, directly behind the police station on 666 Landmeier Road, the office will be open from 9 a.m. to noon each Saturday.

This is a tentative scheduling according to Tom King, one of the volunteers, until the demand for services in the area is determined.

Other volunteers include Mrs. Jeanne Seidman, Mrs. Pat Peacock and Miss Kirsten Reeder.

"This is a volunteer effort between the state's attorney's bureau and the village," Village Pres. Jack Pahl said.

WILLIAM KUTZA, director of the branch office, will help the volunteers in responding to complaints when necessary, he said, but would not work out of the Elk Grove office.

"The rationale behind the branch office is that local people know the consumer," he said. "They shop at the same stores and may have the same complaints."

Any type of complaints will be handled at the office, but Kutza cautioned that the customer contact the company with his problem before coming to the consumer fraud office.

"Many people are afraid to contact the company when the company may always offer a refund on bad merchandise according to policy," he said.

"There are a myriad of ways the consumer can get cheated. You name the complaint and we've had it," he said.

Pahl indicated that most complaints in Elk Grove involved door-to-door salesmen, and sales involving air conditioners.

COMPLAINT FORMS will be available at the village hall during the week for people who want to fill them out and bring them in on Saturday mornings.

Pamphlets will be available at the office with tips on how to avoid fraud. One is entitled, "20 Ways Not to be Gyped," and the other is "Your Protection Against Fraudulent Sales, Advertising and Loans."

The office will accept insurance complaints but will not handle them through the fraud office. They will be forwarded to the Illinois insurance director, according to Kutza.

The mobile unit will also be available to consumers for complaints, Kutza said. He explained that upon prior request the unit can be available any time to supplement the service of the local office.

The Elk Grove office is the only group operating on a volunteer basis, Kutza said. He added, "As far as our office is concerned we hope this will be a model arrangement."

18-Year-Olds May Change Vote Patterns

by ED MURNANE

(A News Analysis)

Substantial changes in voting patterns in the Northwest suburbs may result if 18, 19 and 20-year-olds are allowed to vote in future elections.

Although court tests have not yet upheld the constitutionality of the new voting laws, tomorrow is the first day for the younger citizens to register for the franchise.

If the courts uphold the expanded voting franchise, which was passed by Congress and signed by President Nixon, the new voters will be eligible to vote in federal, state and local elections beginning Jan. 1, 1971.

Based on U. S. census figures for 1960, the 18 to 21 group will represent less than 10 per cent of the voting population nationwide. In Illinois, 7.3 per cent of the voting population would be under 21.

However, if the younger voters show a more concerned attitude toward the franchise than do their elders, the 7.3 per cent in Illinois could be increased to as much as 30 per cent of the total votes cast.

In the four Northwest suburban townships of Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg, for example, the new voting laws could send as many as 16,000 new voters to the polls — if they register.

THAT FIGURE is based on the number of graduates from three high schools in Palatine-Schaumburg Dist. 211, six high schools in Dist. 214, and St. Viator and Sacred Heart High Schools, since 1967.

Most students who graduated in 1967 will become 21 years old this year and the 1970 high school classes consisted of students who will reach their 18th birthdays this year.

Based on the past voting performances of their parents, the younger people could definitely change the outcome of elections in this area if they bother to register and vote.

That's a question that won't be answered until the first election is held. Voters between 21 and 25, who have had the franchise all along, have one of the poorest voting records, indicating that the novelty of voting is considered just that — a novelty and not a responsibility.

But the figures showing poor turnouts by the 21 to 25 group are based on elections held during the 1960s, before the flurry of campus disorders and before the increased involvement in political campaigns by young people began.

If the new involvement by college-age students is indicative of civic concern, then the 18 to 21 group could have a substantially better voting record than their elders and could dramatically affect the outcome of future elections.

IN LAST YEAR'S 13th Congressional District Republican primary election, for example, only 29,000 voters cast ballots in the four Northwest suburban townships — despite the fact that the election to fill the vacant congressional seat was one of the most widely publicized elections in years.

Eight Republican candidates crisscrossed the area for five months during the summer and early fall and newspapers and radio and television stations gave more coverage to the race than they do for anything but major state and national races.

Yet only 20 per cent of the voters went to the polls and the race was determined by a slim margin of 2,100 votes.

Had 16,000 additional voters been eligible and only 20 per cent voted, there would have been 3,200 more votes cast — enough to change the outcome.

And since the younger voters probably would have been less conservative than their elders, chances are good that they would not have supported conservative Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th, who won the Republican nomination in the primary.

Crane, incidentally, opposed the new voting age.

An even greater potential for changing the outcome of an election would have existed in last year's Third District Constitutional Convention primary in which 16 candidates sought the four nominations for delegate seats at the convention.

FEWER THAN 10,000 voters turned out for that election in the four townships.

If the 18, 19 and 20 year olds had been able to vote, they possibly could have cast more votes than their elders did and, since there were several Con-Con candidates in their 20s and early 30s, the results may have been substantially different.

The key to the influence that will be wielded by the new voters is the number who register. If the younger voters are as interested in voting as President Nixon said they were when he signed the law, then election results may be determined by 18, 19 and 20-year-olds.

But in some areas, there is likely to be a backlash effect by the older voters. Conservatives generally do not favor a lower voting age and the prospect of giving teenagers a voice in electing public officials may be the spark the older voters need to improve their own voting performance.

Results of the new voting law, if it is upheld, probably won't be fully realized until at least 1972. The law takes effect in January and the only elections in 1971 will be for local officials and school board members — lowest on the interest totem pole.

But 1972 a Presidential election will take place, as well as races for the United States Senate, Congress and governor of Illinois. That's when the young voters' influence will be felt and the results should be, if nothing else, enlightening.

High Performance 'Bagel'?

by J RICHARD JOHNSON
CHICAGO (UPI) —If an auto mechanic wants to check your bonnet, ladies, don't show him your new hat. He just wants to look under the hood of your auto.

And when he talks to you men about your pot, don't be insulted. He's really referring to the car's carburetor.

These and other bewildering expressions are used by members of the automotive world, according to Zolzie S Frank, president of Z. Frank, Inc., Chicago, an auto sales firm.

"For example," Frank said, "where's the best place to go for a cream puff, a bagel or a beeper?"

"Certainly not to a restaurant —at least not if you want to keep your car running smoothly."

Frank said the object is to turn a "bagel" (a poorly maintained car) into a "cream puff" (a clean car), and a "hot set up" (a high performance auto), one that will satisfy even a "beeper" (a complaining customer).

And speaking of customers, "baldies" aren't hairless drivers, Frank said. They're badly worn tires.

A "wind mill" refers to the radiator fan, and the "deck lid" is the lid of the trunk.

"Don't be afraid of a wrecker," Frank said. "A tow truck can often be a welcome sight."

In addition to the above phrases and words, a list of auto mechanic terminology would include:

Mill, high performance engine; 4, 6 or 8 banger, 4, 6 or 8 cylinder engine; sins, tires; pots, pistons; cons, connecting rods; four on the floor, fourspeed transmission; post, positraction rear axle; clock, speedometer; spritzers, windshield washer.

Also: air, air conditioning; music, radio, heat, heater; heat riser, manifold heat control valve; quad, four-barrel carburetor; pumper, car that consumes oil.

OWL...Alimony Payments 'Absurd'

by CAROLYN A BOWERS
NEW YORK (UPI) —"Send us $1 to help get your ex-wife a job. Or a husband. This is the kind of unmarried, childless ex-wife who believes her ex-husband is obligated to support her for the rest of her life."

These words are part of a brochure distributed by a citizen's group to "rehabilitate" former wives. The organization is called the Other Woman, Ltd. (OWL), founded in August 1969 "to make alimony socially unacceptable by demonstrating its absurdity."

Behind it all is the belief of its founders: two men and two women in advertising that divorced men should be free financially to remarry. The name, Other Woman Ltd. referred to single girls dating divorced men, women married to divorced men and women who wanted to date divorced men. All faced the same problem —financial limitations because of the men's alimony payments.

Most of the founders felt that alimony was of special interest to the advertising community since "probably 20 per cent of all men are divorced and paying alimony," and John Zeigler, one of the organizers.

OWL grew out of a New School for Social Research summer workshop: "Social Change Through Issue Advertising." Zeigler —divorced and paying alimony —was a workshop teacher.

The question of alimony came up, and an ad was done to educate the public about the injustices of a little known problem —alimony," said Deborah Zeigler, an OWL member and John Zeigler's second wife.

Campaign strategy included the circulation of leaflets and brochures with registration forms, headed by, "I agree with your aim to get ex-wives self-supporting and remarried."

The forms also included check boxes for $1 reprints of the ad, a request for help in getting an ex-wife a job or a husband and contributions for $10 to $99.99, with $100 or more guaranteeing charter membership in OWL.

The group —men and women —held informal meetings. Penny Thompson, a divorcee who refused alimony payments, was elected president.

As time passed the women decided they wanted to meet separately. "While they were opposed to alimony, they wanted to address the problems of why women felt entitled to and needed it," Mrs. Zeigler said.

From this developed a workshop, "Alternative Life Styles for Women," dedicated to the elimination of alimony through self-development.

Workshop leaders were Mrs. Zeigler, a training consultant formerly with the New York Youth Services Agency, and Mrs. Thompson, also a training consultant and a former assistant director of the Addiction Services Agency's school program.

MRS. ZEIGLER, in an interview, said "The payment of alimony to an ex-wife is the continuation of a contract after it has been legally terminated. It is the only legal contract that's binding in this way. It is very degrading in that the woman depends on a source of income that is not lovingly given or given for the wrong reason, such as a tax break.

"At the workshop, we try to redirect women and keep them from feeling they have to receive alimony in order to eat or that they get some type of gratification from punishing a man they no longer care for. We try to show them that they can use the energy for themselves."

"Women have fears about being someone other than a wife and mother, and we encourage them to develop their whole selves. We ask each woman to outline what she thinks are some goals for herself and use a problem solving technique to see how she can realize those goals."

Mrs. Zeigler said the workshop is conducted through role-playing situations, with the women using each other as resources. She cited the example of one woman who wanted a job. She already knew what kind of job she wanted, but her weakness was the interview in which she failed to sell her abilities.

At the workshop, through "feedback" from the other women and practice at "the scary thing" she overcame her fears and was able to get the job, Mrs. Zeigler said.

She said although the workshop was started initially for women receiving alimony, it now is open to any woman who has problems making plans for her personal life —be it the elimination of alimony, a career choice, friendships with other women, a relationship with a man or men.

And what about the men? The ladies politely asked them to get out.

So the males formed Men's Liberation, Inc., with John Zeigler as president.

"One of our chief goals is to bury the myth of male supremacy by using the alimony issue as an example," Zeigler said. "We want to show that the negative force in alimony is not the female, but the male —the male judges, legislators, lawyers and men paying alimony keep it as a way of demeaning women."

Neither group lobbies politically against alimony. Although most OWL activity is in New York, it will provide information to anyone interested in forming a similar organization in other cities or states.

'My Fair Lady' Opens Tonight

The curtain will rise at 8 p.m. this evening on "My Fair Lady" at Wheeling High School.

The musical comedy about a "Cockney" flower girl who is successfully transformed into a member of British high society, will also be presented Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m.

More than 100 students in the WHS

summer drama class are presenting the Lerner and Lowe musical. The sponsor of the production is the WHS Community Scholarship Foundation. Proceeds will be used to provide scholarships to deserving WHS graduates who wish to continue their education.

The leading roles include Katie Hearn

as Eliza Doolittle, Louise Rofrano as Henry Higgins, Jim Hand as Col. Pickering and David Lark as Alfie Doolittle.

The musical is under the direction of WHS English teacher Eric Lidh.

It is based on "Pygmalion," a play by George Bernard Shaw. Tickets will be available at the door.

Village, Park Aid Meeting Tonight

Officials from the village and the Buffalo Grove Park District will meet tonight in an attempt to settle the question of village financial aid to the park district.

The question of whether the aid was in the form of a gift or a loan, came up at a park district meeting last week. Apparently village trustees and some of the park commissioners expected the park district to reimburse the village for the park bills it has paid since May 1.

However, one park commissioner, Sherwood Zwirn, objected to any park funds being used to repay the village for park bills the village has paid, charging it would be illegal.

Following the park meeting last week, (attended by Village Pres. Don Thompson and two trustees), Thompson sent letters to the park district and the Buffalo Grove Volunteer Fire Dept. notifying them that all financial aid from the village would be cut off pending the outcome of tonight's meeting.

The fire department receives about $7,000 a year for civil defense purposes. In dealing with the matter of financial aid to the park district, the two groups will discuss the legality of a loan to the park district. Also to be considered is whether the village can even pay park district bills without expecting to be reimbursed.

clude my ability to act in any other fashion."

Both the village attorney, Richard Raysa, and the park district attorney, John M. Sullivan, have been looking into the matter.

Said Sullivan last week, "There are provisions which will provide for financial aid for the beginning of a new municipality's (in this case the park district's) operations. What the village did, in my opinion, was legal."

Sullivan said he was also looking into the legality of the park district's paying back funds to the village. No funds have actually been paid back yet, nor has an official agreement for the reimbursement been made.

What prompted tonight's meeting on the matter was a financial statement from the park district that listed $2,612 as "due to the village of Buffalo Grove."

ZWIRN CHALLENGED the debt that was listed. He contended that it would be illegal for the park district to borrow money from the village and repay it, and that the park board had never officially entered into the agreement.

Zwirn, who is head of the district's financial committee, said he considered the money a gift to the recreation program operated by the park district for the community.

The fire department is involved in the matter because of the $7,000 aid it receives and also because of the financial arrangement under which the village is now paying off a loan on a fire truck.

Under that agreement the fire department will lease the truck under a lease-purchase agreement. Lease payments will not start until next year, however. Originally the village had planned to pay for the truck itself, not with tax funds, but with donations from developers. The fire department will not have to reimburse the village for any builders' donations spent on the truck.

Fire Chief Wayne Winter said he did not plan to be at tonight's meeting. "I really don't know why Thompson sent us a letter (cutting off village aid.) The village doesn't pay bills under the fire department name. The only bills (besides the truck payments) they have been paying is for the (fire department) radio system, which they own. It's under civil defense, and we use it with that in mind. This is how the village has helped the fire department — by buying things for civil defense purposes."

Church Fund Auction Slated

An auction, hayrides and carnival booths will be part of the sixth annual St. Mary's Church Summertime Festival, scheduled for this Sunday.

The festival will last from 2 to 7 p.m. at the church grounds on Buffalo Grove Road. In case of rain, the event will be held indoors.

The auction portion is expected to last about 1½ hours. Among the items to be auctioned off are an old brass Navy lantern, an antique brass pot and figurines and statues. In all, about 75 items will be up for bids. The items were donated by members of the church.

A hayride and children's games will also be included in the event. Food and beverages will be available throughout the afternoon. Accordionist Eddie Schum will provide musical entertainment during the festival.

Another feature of Sunday's event will be a sale of items by women of the church. The sale will include stuffed animals, doll clothes, and decorated hand mirrors.

The project is sponsored by the St. Mary's Women's Club. Ten club members have been involved in the planning for the festival.

ALMOST 70 VOLUNTEERS from the church will be involved in staging the event Sunday.

Proceeds from the event will be used for church purposes by the club.

Condemnation Suit Under Way

Selection of jurors for the trial involving the School Dist. 96 condemnation suit against the building firm Levitt and Sons, Inc., began yesterday.

By late yesterday morning, four jurors had been selected to serve on the jury. A total of 12 jurors must be selected before the trial can begin.

The trial will involve determining the price of 15 acres of land in the Lake County part of Buffalo Grove's Strathmore subdivision.

Last February, Dist. 96 condemned the land, which it hopes to use for a 1,500 pupil school. Levitt, owners of the land, offered to sell 10 acres of the land to the district for $25,000 an acre. The district maintains that the land is worth only about $3,000 or $5,000 an acre.

Once the jury determines how much money the land is worth, the district will decide whether or not it will pay that price.

Tuesday, lawyers representing Dist. 96 and Levitt spent several hours in pretrial negotiations.

Zone Board OKs Trailer Park

A recommendation to rezone about 49 acres of land for a mobile home park was made Tuesday by the Wheeling Zoning Board of Appeals, despite strong opposition from Dist. 21 school Supt. Kenneth Gill.

On a 3-2 vote, the board voted to recommend the rezoning of property adjacent to the Adolorata Villa Home on Rte. 83 for a mobile home park.

The recommendation will be forwarded to the village board, the group that will make the final decision on the rezoning.

The proposal was to rezone land now zoned I-3, light industrial district zoning, and I-4, heavy industrial district zoning, to PD-4, planned development zoning with a special use permit to allow the mobile homes.

Frank Wojek, Al Martin and Zoning Board Chairman Douglas Cargill voted in favor of the zoning. Members Alvin Nelson and Ed Slepicksa voted against it.

THE REQUEST for the rezoning was made by attorney James Thompson, who represents the Servite Sisters, Inc., owners of the property. However, although the petition is in the Sister's name, Thompson actually represents the potential buyers of the property who plan to establish a trailer park if the zoning is granted.

The potential purchasers are members of a bank trust and have not been disclosed.

In explaining the request for rezoning, Thompson said, "The sisters feel they can get the best return for their money by selling the land for use as a trailer park."

"It will provide housing for the elderly, small families of medium income, the Villa staff — people who want to live in Wheeling without purchasing homes in the $25,000-$30,000 price range."

He promised that the regulations put in force in the trailer park "will conform or be even more restrictive than the trailer ordinance," passed last week by the village board.

THOMPSON ADMITTED, however, that Illinois law prohibits elderly persons from living in mobile homes.

He promised that the potential buyers of the property would negotiate with Gill about the impact the park would have on the school district if and when zoning was granted.

Following Thompson's remarks, Gill addressed the board and said that he was "quite upset" about the proposed trailer park.

"Several things are bothering me," he said. "I thought that the land would be developed by the sisters for elderly persons. Now I see that under current legislation the elderly can't live in mobile homes."

He said that the big problem of the district is providing adequate classroom space and noted that trailers are not taxed as real estate; hence, the school district would get no tax benefit from the mobile homes.

"State and federal aid are not adequate. They have increased, but inflation has caused the cost of educating a child to increase more rapidly. I'm not at all sure that PD-4 is the best use for that property."

Cargill said, "I would like to see that when negotiations get further along a school site is involved."

Draft Board Offices Across The Street

Selective Service Boards 101, 102, and 103 are now located at 1920 Waukegan Road, Glenview, not 1921 Waukegan, as was previously reported.

Attended Youth Music Program

A young violinist, Douglas Sampson, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Sampson 886 Fletcher Dr. is attending the Illinois Summer Youth Music program at the Champaign-Urbana campus of the university.

Sampson's two-week stay at the camp began Monday. He received a gift of $25 from the Over 50 Club to attend the camp.

Sampson is a student at London Junior High School.

Negotiations have stalemated in the Wheeling police sick-in, and Illinois State Police remain on duty in the village. No major crimes have been reported since the "sick-in" by 15 Wheeling Policemen began last Friday.

Last night at Herald deadline, 21 persons were waiting in the Wheeling council chambers for the village board to come out of executive session. Among the members of the audience who waited for board action were wives of ten Wheeling policemen.

The board went immediately into executive session at the beginning of the meeting at 7 p.m. last night. A letter from the Wheeling Jaycees was distributed to the board members but not read aloud.

Village officials have announced that talks with the policemen through the police chief will resume as soon as the 15 men "comply with the law" by returning to work.

Sgt. Gene Wolf, Wheeling chapter president of the Cook County Police Assn., said Tuesday that as far as the police are concerned "everything in this world is negotiable."

Wolf said that "channels of communication are in fact tightly closed" at the present time.

The Wheeling Jaycees sent a statement to the board asking that legal actions against the policemen be dropped. The Jaycees urged policemen to return to work immediately if the board dropped the suit against them. The call for public meetings to resolve issues with arbitration or mediation after a 10-day period.

Although the village had a court injunction issued Monday against the 15 "sick" policemen, none of the policemen has been served with a copy of it. The injunction ordered the policemen to either report back to work immediately or to a doctor in the Buffalo Grove Medical Center by 2 p.m. Tuesday. The policemen did not comply with the court order.

CCPA activities in other suburbs include the settlement of a sick-in in Skokie. In Waukegan 61 patrolmen involved in a sick-in there were suspended.

In Des Plaines, city officials were re-examining an ordinance recognizing the CCPA as a bargaining agent for that city's patrolmen in view of the current strikes in Wheeling and Waukegan.

In Palatine, policemen were scheduled to vote on CCPA membership yesterday but the vote was held up by the absence of election examiners.

Police Negotiations Are Stalemated

4 a.m. Liquor Law Pondered By Trustees

A new class of liquor licenses allowing 4 a.m. closing hours will be considered soon by the Wheeling Village Board.

Following a committee meeting Monday, the board directed Village Atty. Paul Hamer to draw up an ordinance providing for a new class of licenses allowing 4 a.m. closings on Saturdays and Sundays instead of the current 3 a.m. time.

Fees for the new license class would be set at $1,850 per year.

The new licenses would be limited to restaurants which have a seating capacity of at least 200 at tables primarily used for the service of food. Barroom seating would be excluded from the count.

Only four or five of 19 current license holders could meet the requirements for the new license class, trustees said.

The total number of licenses in the village would remain at 19 however, with 15 new licenses available for new businesses, trustees said.

The new license class was considered by the board after the Union Hotel requested a later closing hour.

Sanitarians Close Pool

Village and county sanitarians have temporarily closed the swimming pool at the Berkshire Trace Apartments on Dundee Road in Buffalo Grove because of malfunctioning chlorinating equipment.

According to Don Schindler, Buffalo Grove's sanitarian, "Due to some malfunctioning of equipment they had an imbalance of chlorine in the pool, creating quite a bit of cloudiness in the water. For safety factors, the pool was closed until such time as the equipment is completely operable and the condition of the water clears up."

"The apartment manager was extremely cooperative in the matter," said Schindler. He said he, along with a Cook County sanitarian inspected the pool after tenants had complained about the pool.

"The safety factor involved is that if someone went to the bottom of the pool and was drowning, no one could see him," Schindler said.

"After the pool appears to meet the standards as set down in county health codes, we will inspect the pool before re-opening it," he added.

Manager Post Is Not Filled

Virgil Barnett, who officially resigned from his position as Mount Prospect Village Mgr. Tuesday, will leave his post sometime next month. No plans have been made yet to replace him.

Barnett took office Sept. 1 of last year, following the resignation of Robert F. Moore who served as village manager during the administration of former village president, Daniel Congreve.

Barnett served as a private consultant in municipal development for the community of Wood River, Ill., the Southwestern Illinois Metropolitan Area Plan Commission and Southern Illinois University prior to accepting the post in Mount Prospect.

He is also the former village manager of Wood River, an industrial town just north of East St. Louis, where he served from 1965 to 1968. He also served as the city manager of Eaton, Ohio and the administrative assistant to the mayor of Glenview.

Barnett, 41, earned a master's degree in public administration and political science from Southern Illinois University. He also served four years with the U.S. Air Force, two of them overseas during the Korean War, as a communications specialist for an air transport command.

Entire Town Project Told

CHICAGO UPI — A joint venture to create a new town in Lake County, Ill., at a cost of $250 million was announced Monday by developers of the project.

A spokesman said the venture is being undertaken by Sears, Roebuck and Co.; Malco, Inc., a subsidiary of Marshall Field & Co.; and Urban Investment and Development Co., a subsidiary of Aetna Life and Casualty.

The site for New Century Town is located 30 miles north of Chicago, and construction is scheduled to begin next year, the spokesman said.

The project will be built in two stages. The first stage will be a commercial center and will require about 18 months to construct.

Sears and Field's will have major stores in the center when it opens. Leasing agent for the center will be Draper and Kramer, Inc.

The second stage will include a regional town center, residential neighborhoods, schools, recreation area and research development centers.

The town is expected to provide facilities for a population of 15,000 to 18,000.

'Survival Kits' Program Begins

A program to educate newcomers in the Northwest suburban area about health and safety services was launched here yesterday by Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

The program includes the visits by 35 local representatives to homes of new families in the area. Each family will be given a special kind of survival kit containing health and safety information geared to local resources that can be called on in emergencies.

The survival kits will be distributed to residents in Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village, Prospect Heights, Palatine and Rolling Meadows.

"We're distributing the kits to new residents first," said Miss Eleanor Brennan, a member of the company's community health department, "because it is people who are on the move who have the most trouble finding medical information when they get into a new community, so we're trying to help them."

THE KITS, WHICH will also be available at the company's local office at 420 Lee St., Des Plaines, includes information on where to contact a physician or obtain an ambulance in case of emergency, what to do in case of accidental poisoning, where to get first aid training, and how to insure blood credit for one year.

They also contain a safety guide for teen-age babysitters, instruction for mouth-to-mouth rescue breathing, an emergency medical information card, a first aid wall chart and a picture primer on health and safety standards.

According to Miss Brennan all the information was prepared by Metropolitan Life in cooperation with the Chicago Medical Society for Cook County.

"The Cook County Medical Association," explained Miss Brennan, "was our source of approach to the area because they're well aware of all the medical facilities which are available to people. The company is constantly involved with national medical associations because the company has been involved with medical emergency programs for many years."

Miss Brennan said, "people should review the materials and then put the various cards, guides and illustrations in the parts of the house where they would be used the most. For instance, she said, "the first aid card should be pasted to the medicine cabinet and the list of emergency phone numbers should be kept near the phone."

Miss Brennan said she is confident the program will be well accepted by residents. "We've started the program in other areas and the people have been very happy with it. We've gotten many letters and phone calls thanking us."

The kit should be distributed to all newcomers within the next three to five months. After that the kits will be given to other Des Plaines area residents.

Veterans' Vane

Q — My only income is $200 a month military retirement benefit based on longevity. I am without dependents and, due to a non-service incurred disability, I am totally disabled and permanently bedridden. Am I eligible for VA pension benefits?

A — If you waive your entire retirement benefit, you may be eligible for a tax-free VA disability pension of $210 a month, which includes an aid and attendance benefit. Contact your nearest VA office.

Q — I am a veteran rated 100 per cent for service-connected disabilities incurred during peacetime. Am I eligible for out-patient treatment of ailments not related to military service?

A — No. You are not eligible unless you had some wartime service.

Q — I am attending school under the G.I. Bill. What must I do to qualify for the increased educational allowances under the recent amendment to the G.I. Bill?

A — No action is required on your part. The VA will automatically see that you receive the increased payments.

Q — I am 65 years old and plan to retire soon. Can I convert my National Service Life Insurance to the new Modified Life Plan?

A — No. The Modified Life Plan insurance is not available after six months have passed since your 60th birthday.

Q — I am a Vietnam veteran who plans to start a small business. May I use the G.I. loan for this purpose?

A — No, G.I. business loans are not available to Vietnam veterans. However, you might try the Small Business Administration.

Exchange Students Coming

A girl from Colombia, South America, and a boy from Mexico will be foreign exchange students at Wheeling High School during the 1970-71 school year.

Kathy Keene of Wheeling a 1970 WHS graduate, will be a foreign exchange student in Argentina during the coming year.

Amparo Rodriguez, 17, from Cucupa, Colombia, is scheduled to arrive in the United States on Aug. 3 under the American Field Service (AFS) foreign exchange program. She will live with Wheeling Police Chief M.O. Horcher and his wife and six daughters.

Horcher said he and his family are "tickled pink about hosting Amparo during the year."

Horcher said his daughter, Patty, urged him to apply to participate in the AFS program. Patty will be a senior at WHS this fall, as will Amparo.

Horcher noted that no one in his family is able to speak Spanish. "We'll have to do some fast learning," he said.

Joaquin Frias, 15, from Mexico, will be the Wheeling Rotary Club's foreign exchange student.

THE BOY WILL live with several local families while he attends WHS during the year. Joaquin's host families have not yet been determined.

Kathy will also be sponsored by the Wheeling Rotary Club during her year's stay in Argentina.

She was originally scheduled to be a foreign exchange student under the AFS program, but AFS was unable to find a host family for her. Therefore the Rotary Club picked up her sponsorship.

Kathy will spend a year attending high school in Cinco Saltos, located in the southern part of Argentina.

She will live with Nora Vecchi and her family. Nora attended WHS this past year and lived with Kathy's family under the Rotary-sponsored foreign exchange program.

Kathy said she will probably leave for Argentina at the end of August.

She said the trip would be "a once in a lifetime experience."

"I'll miss my family, but this will make up for it," Kathy said. "I want to get to know the country and the people of Argentina."

Kathy said she has had seven years of instruction in Spanish and plans to major in Spanish in college.

"So this will really help me," she said.

Sidewalk Series To Move?

The future of the Sidewalk Academy in Rolling Meadows is dim, according to the man who has helped bring speakers to the lecture series.

In an indictment of the city, yesterday Clyde Brooks said the "overwhelming apathy and indifference" of the community to the series may mean it will be moved to another location. Brooks, who heads Educational Laboratories in Elk Grove is also a manpower director in the county Office of Economic Opportunity.

Brooks said the decision to move the academy will be made on the basis of the attendance. He did not say where the academy might be moved. The present location is Sacred Heart of Mary High School at 2800 Central Rd.

"I feel the concept," of the academy, "to promote community education is desirable," Brooks said. "We have speakers that will appeal to the ultra-right, liberals and moderates."

"But for some reason," he continued, "the community has not seen fit to support this concept of community education."

Attendance at two of the first three sessions was less than 50 people. Over 100 people showed up to hear representatives of the Black Panther party.

Brooks said that there has been a "noticeable absence of ministers, of educators and of civic organization representatives."

BROOKS THEN leveled a blast at Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland J. Meyer saying he refused to be involved in the academy because he felt that criminals were participating in the series. This is not the case, Brooks said.

Meyer's comments constituted "program slander that is not in the best interests of a free and open society," Brooks said.

"I just can't see how people can be so indifferent and draw conclusions based on mis-information," said Brooks.

The purpose of the academy, he said, is to provide opposing points of view so people can "make up their own minds about positions they want to take."

Brooks said he knew what to expect from the people he called the "ultra right" but was depressed "with the liberal who professes so many things in rhetorical terms, but who is absent from activities designed to help man understand his fellow man."

"If the community does not want to support this type of program, there are other communities that want it," he said.

The academy, he said, is now in debt. "We had hoped to raise money for a drug abuse program for the young people," Brooks said. "Lord knows, we need it out here."

The lack of interest in the Sidewalk Academy, he said, may be part of a larger "mental health" problem in the Northwest suburban area.

THIS PROBLEM IS illustrated by the attitude of many people toward low income housing in the area, the attitudes of people who speak different languages, have different skin color and different religion, he said.

Part of the problem may be seen in what Brooks called the "increase in the number of alcoholics" and increasing "drug dependency."

Brooks said people may be staying away from the academy because they feel "threatened." These "insecure" people, he said, are afraid that "some of the speakers represent an illness that can be communicated."

Tonight's speaker, the Rev. George Clements, Brooks described as a "dynamic personality, the kind of Christian we need more of in society."

Rev. Clements was the kind of "activist Jesus Christ was all about," Brooks said.

He will be speaking on "Jesus Christ, the Revolutionary." The program starts at 8 p.m. Admission is $1.50 for students and $2 for adults.

Consumer Fraud Office Set Here

A branch office of the Illinois Attorney General's Bureau of Consumer Fraud and Protection is scheduled to open in Elk Grove Village Aug. 15.

The office, manned by local volunteers, will be serving all residents in villages surrounding Elk Grove to Schaumburg and Niles where other offices are located.

Situated in the conference room of the village hall, directly behind the police station on 666 Landmeier Road, the office will be open from 9 a.m. to noon each Saturday.

This is a tentative scheduling according to Tom King, one of the volunteers, until the demand for services in the area is determined.

Other volunteers include Mrs. Jeanne Seidlein, Mrs. Pat Peacock and Miss Kirsten Reeder.

"This is a volunteer effort between the state's attorney's bureau and the village," Village Pres. Jack Pahl said.

WILLIAM KUTZA, director of the branch office, will help the volunteers in responding to complaints when necessary, he said, but would not work out of the Elk Grove office.

"The rationale behind the branch office is that local people know the consumer," he said. "They shop at the same stores and may have the same complaints."

Any type of complaints will be handled at the office, but Kutza cautioned that the customer contact the company with his problem before coming to the consumer fraud office.

"Many people are afraid to contact the company when the company may always offer a refund on bad merchandise according to policy," he said.

"There are a myriad of ways the consumer can get cheated. You name the complaint and we've had it," he said.

Pahl indicated that most complaints in Elk Grove involved door-to-door salesmen, and sales involving air conditioners.

COMPLAINT FORMS will be available at the village hall during the week for people who want to fill them out and bring them in on Saturday mornings.

Pamphlets will be available at the office with tips on how to avoid fraud. One is entitled, "20 Ways Not to be Gyped," and the other is "Your Protection Against Fraudulent Sales, Advertising and Loans."

The office will accept insurance complaints but will not handle them through the fraud office. They will be forwarded to the Illinois insurance director, according to Kutza.

The mobile unit will also be available to consumers for complaints, Kutza said. He explained that upon prior request the unit can be available any time to supplement the service of the local office.

The Elk Grove office is the only group operating on a volunteer basis, Kutza said. He added, "As far as our office is concerned we hope this will be a model arrangement."

18-Year-Olds May Change Vote Patterns

by ED MURNANE
(A News Analysis)

Substantial changes in voting patterns in the Northwest suburbs may result if 18, 19 and 20-year-olds are allowed to vote in future elections.

Although court tests have not yet upheld the constitutionality of the new voting laws, tomorrow is the first day for the younger citizens to register for the franchise.

If the courts uphold, the expanded voting franchise, which was passed by Congress and signed by President Nixon, the new voters will be eligible to vote in federal, state and local elections beginning Jan. 1, 1971.

Based on U.S. census figures for 1960, the 18 to 21 group will represent less than 10 per cent of the voting population nationwide. In Illinois, 7.3 per cent of the voting population would be under 21.

However, if the younger voters show a more concerned attitude toward the franchise than do their elders, the 7.3 per cent in Illinois could be increased to as much as 30 per cent of the total votes cast.

In the four Northwest suburban townships of Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg, for example, the new voting laws could send as many as 16,000 new voters to the polls — if they register.

THAT FIGURE is based on the number of graduates from three high schools in Palatine-Schaumburg Dist. 211, six high schools in Dist. 214, and St. Viator and Sacred Heart High Schools, since 1967.

Most students who graduated in 1967 will become 21 years old this year and the 1970 high school classes consisted of students who will reach their 18th birthdays this year.

Based on the past voting performances of their parents, the younger people could definitely change the outcome of elections in this area if they bother to register and vote.

That's a question that won't be answered until the first election is held. Voters between 21 and 25, who have had the franchise all along, have one of the poorest voting records, indicating that the novelty of voting is considered just that — a novelty and not a responsibility.

But the figures showing poor turnout by the 21 to 25 group are based on elections held during the 1960s, before the increased involvement in political campaigns by young people began.

If the new involvement by college-age students is indicative of civic concern, then the 18 to 21 group could have a substantially better voting record than their elders and could dramatically affect the outcome of future elections.

IN LAST YEAR'S 13th Congressional District Republican primary election, for example, only 28,000 voters cast ballots in the four Northwest suburban townships — despite the fact that the election to fill the vacant congressional seat was one of the most widely publicized elections in years.

Eight Republican candidates crisscrossed the area for five months during the summer and early fall and newspapers and radio and television stations gave more coverage to the race than they do for anything but major state and national races.

Yet only 20 per cent of the voters went to the polls and the race was determined by a slim margin of 2,100 votes.

Had 16,000 additional voters been eligible and only 20 per cent voted, there would have been 3,200 more votes cast — enough to change the outcome.

And since the younger voters probably would have been less conservative than their elders, chances are good that they would not have supported conservative Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th, who won the Republican nomination in the primary.

Crane, incidentally, opposed the new voting age.

An even greater potential for changing the outcome of an election would have existed in last year's Third District Constitutional Convention primary in which 16 candidates sought the four nominations for delegate seats at the convention.

FEWER THAN 10,000 voters turned out for that election in the four townships.

If the 18, 19 and 20 year olds had been able to vote, they possibly could have cast more votes than their elders did and, since there were several Con-Con candidates in their 20s and early 30s, the results may have been substantially different.

The key to the influence that will be wielded by the new voters is the number who register. If the younger voters are as interested in voting as President Nixon said they were when he signed the law, then election results may be determined by 18, 19 and 20-year-olds.

But in some areas, there is likely to be a backlash effect by the older voters. Conservatives generally do not favor a lower voting age and the prospect of giving teenagers a voice in electing public officials may be the spark the older voters need to improve their own voting performance.

Results of the new voting law, if it is upheld, probably won't be fully realized until at least 1972. The law takes effect in January and the only elections in 1971 will be for local officials and school board members — lowest on the interest totem pole.

But 1972 a Presidential election will take place, as well as races for the United States Senate, Congress and governor of Illinois. That's when the young voters' influence will be felt and the results should be, if nothing else, enlightening.

Senior Fireman: 'We're The Best'

by BETSY BROOKER

Almost 30 years of fire fighting have made Jimmy Mantas the longest standing and senior member of the Forest River Fire Department.

Mantas was an active participant in 1942 when the Forest River Civil Defense team, the forerunner of the volunteer fire department, was formed.

"I was an active participant in 1942 when the Forest River Civil Defense Team, the forerunner of the volunteer fire department, was formed.

"I was in the process of moving into the Forest River subdivision, south of Foundry Road and west of River Road, when I saw a couple of guys across the street repairing an Army surplus fire-truck. They asked me over for a beer, and I joined up. I have been at it ever since."

In a deep, resonant voice, the old fire fighting buff described the days when Prospect Heights and Mount Prospect were still in early stages of development.

"IT WAS mostly farm land then. Forest River was the only subdivision around. We covered 150 homes with our one fire truck."

"Today we have five pieces of equipment and protect approximately 2,000 homes in Prospect Heights and unincorporated Mount Prospect," said Mantas.

Mantas moved to the Chicago area from his birth place in Nebraska. He came to Forest River as a shoemaker and later gave up this occupation to become a taxi cab driver in Mount Prospect.

Although fire fighting was only a sideline activity for Mantas, it was not less significant. "I wouldn't trade my experience on the fire department for a million dollars," said the husky, 60-year-old fireman.

"You work with a special breed of men on a volunteer department. You can't beat the fellowship there. As far as I am concerned, I don't have an enemy on the department."

The career of a fire fighter is not depressing according to Mantas. "Someone else's grief is not a good memory. But when you get called, you do your best. That is all you can say about it."

Mantas' advice for new men coming into the department is, "go into it wholeheartedly or not at all."

THE POPULAR IMAGE of a fireman leading a dangerous, tragedy ridden life doesn't follow true in Mantas' case.

"I've never gotten a scratch in all my years of fire fighting," said Mantas. "And the department has never had a major injury during those years."

The most spectacular incident during Mantas' active membership in the department occurred in 1967 during the big blizzard. "We got a call from a woman in the Fairview Gardens area who was ready to have her baby. We couldn't get through the high snow to take her to a hospital, so we put flares around her home to direct a helicopter. She was flown to Holy Family Hospital and had a safe delivery."

The biggest fire Mantas has ever fought occurred in the early 1960's in Des Plaines. "The Ballard Inn was on fire and there wasn't enough water to fight it. We brought over our 1,000 gallon tanker to assist, but the building was completely lost."

"My happiest moment while on the department was when I saw our $75,000 fire house completed in 1967. We had to put up with makeshift places to house our fire trucks for many years before then."

"NOW, I THINK our little department is next to none as far as good departments in small communities go," said Mantas.

Although Mantas is no longer an active member in the department he will not be leaving. Tuesday evening, at a dinner in his honor, he was awarded a plaque and a life time membership on the department.

In explaining his retirement, Mantas said, "I just can't get up and run for those 3 a.m. fire calls like I used to."

LIFETIME MEMBERSHIP in the Forest River Fire Department, serving portions of Prospect Heights and unincorporated Mount Prospect, was awarded to Jimmy Mantas (left) by Fire Chief Charles Nick at an honorary dinner Tuesday. Mantas was one of the original members of the department and has served for 27 years.

Playground To Be Finished By Fall

Playground equipment will be installed at Prospect Heights Dist. 23 Muir School before school opens this fall, reported Supt. Edward Grodsky.

Representatives from the Muir PTA attended the last school board meeting to urge the members to install the equipment as soon as possible.

Representatives of the Muir PTA, and the Prospect Heights Woman's Club met with Prospect Heights Park Director Ronald Greenberg, Grodsky, and School Business Manager James Hendren recently to discuss installation of playground equipment.

The Woman's Club has donated $550 and the PTA $300 to purchase equipment for the school. At the meeting they selected equipment to be purchased with these funds. An 8-ft. slide, a six unit swing, tether ball, horizontal bar, small basketball and a jungle gym have been ordered from the Burke Equipment Co.

According to Muir Principal James Fink, the equipment will be installed in back of the school on the east side by the school district with the assistance of the park district.

If it is later necessary to move the equipment because an addition is added to the school or because the park district has other plans for the site, the equipment can be moved. It will be installed with a sleeve construction so that it can be pulled out of rods in the ground.

Target Message

Ask your kids to explain 'Eve of Destruction' to you.

Park Dist. Orders Warming Tickets

An order has been made by the Prospect Heights Park District for 1,000 warming tickets to be issued to residents violating traffic and parking regulations on park property.

These citations will be forwarded to the Cook County Sheriff's office in the form of a complaint. The county police will take all necessary punitive actions.

Water Ballet Show Set

"Around the World in 80 Days" will be the theme of the Prospect Heights Park District water ballet show on Aug. 19.

Approximately 25 girls, between the ages of 7 and 16, are enrolled in the class. They will wear national costumes for the show performance.

According to Park Director Ronald Greenberg, residents may still join the water ballet swim class. The fee for lessons is $1.50.

Barnett Explains His Resignation

Village Mgr. Virgil Barnett, in a letter of resignation addressed to the village board, said he is leaving because the council-manager form of government in Mount Prospect exists "in name only."

Barnett, who unofficially announced his resignation last week, delivered copies of the letter to trustees at a special board meeting Tuesday.

No date has been set yet, but the village manager is expected to leave his post sometime next month.

In the letter Barnett said, "You are aware the council-manager form of municipal government was conceived as a means of instituting business practices as an integral part of local government, and to provide general coordination and direction of public service by an appointed manager who serves as the chief executive officer."

But when it came to final authority for village administrative matters, Barnett said his department heads were required to answer not only to him, but to the mayor and trustees on the various village board committees.

"HAVING CONSIDERED for some time now the village board's attitudes, as reflected in the manner in which it makes use of the governmental system, I have come to believe the system exists here in name only," said Barnett.

"Although it is always difficult in fine-line cases to separate policy from administration, I have felt there has been little sincere effort in Mount Prospect to divorce the village board and its committee from administrative matters of even the most routine nature."

"On the other hand, in certain cases which will have a lasting effect on this community, the administrative role of the village manager was completely bypassed."

Barnett said the situation he described became more frequent and his role in local government more obscure with each passing week he was village manager.

"Responsibility for carrying out the administrative functions of the village rests with the manager."

"Unclear lines of responsibility are a direct cause of delay, and in some cases, duplication of efforts. Many administrative assignments which should be handled as a matter of course, when directed to committee, are placed in a state of limbo for months. Citizens seeking action from their village often equate the delay with the ineptness of the administrative staff. This situation has all too often caused the village to appear unresponsive and unconcerned for its citizens," he said.

BARNETT SAID the council-manager form of government when operating effectively, is the most responsive form for the people.

But he added that Mount Prospect cannot afford to operate as a $3.5 million business without direct lines of authority and control. "This is a serious problem that if not controlled, will seriously hamper the ability of this government to perform even minor functions," he said.

Obstacles Barnett listed which have made it impossible for him to carry out his role as village manager are 1) lack of administrative control, 2) unclear lines of authority and 3) lack of an administrative assistant.

"Because I do not believe that my staying another year, or longer, would cause any change in the nature of the board's views toward village government, and because I do not wish to be part of a system which can only weaken an attempt to establish a good supportive council-manager system for Mount Prospect, I wish to officially resign from the position of village manager.

"Before people of this community lose faith in their government, it would be only just for the board to permit the next manager to have full reign on the administrative front."

"If his actions, or the results of his actions, are not acceptable to the board, then he should be fired — that too, is a part of the plan. The people of this community have a right to experience the kind of government they have chosen," said Barnett.

Manager Post Is Not Filled

Virgil Barnett, who officially resigned from his position as Mount Prospect Village Mgr. Tuesday, will leave his post sometime next month. No plans have been made yet to replace him.

Barnett took office Sept. 1 of last year, following the resignation of Robert F. Moore who served as village manager during the administration of former village president, Daniel Congreve.

Barnett served as a private consultant in municipal development for the community of Wood River, Ill., the Southwestern Illinois Metropolitan Area Plan Commission and Southern Illinois University prior to accepting the post in Mount Prospect.

He is also the former village manager of Wood River, an industrial town just north of East St. Louis, where he served from 1965 to 1968. He also served as the city manager of Eaton, Ohio and the administrative assistant to the mayor of Glencoe.

'Pot Luck' Dinner Set

The Mount Prospect Extensioners will sponsor a pot luck supper Aug. 1 at 6:30 p.m. in the recreation room of Community Presbyterian Church, 407 N. Main St.

Each person must bring one serving dish to pass around plus his own table setting which includes plate and silverware.

Mrs. Elizabeth Meyer of the Extensioners will provide suggestions for serving dishes. For further information, contact her at 255-3169.

Two films on Hawaii will be shown the evening. The films will be shown in an advance for the Third Hawaiian Holiday, a three-week tour of Hawaii for members of the Extensioners and Northwest Area Senior Citizens.

The tour, which will depart Chicago Oct. 3 and return Oct. 18, is open to all senior citizens in the area. The cost of the Third Hawaiian Holiday is $578 plus $19.85 tax per person. This price is based on a double-occupancy hotel accommodations.

Single accommodations will be available but the cost of the trip will be $673 plus $25.10 tax per person for these accommodations.

The cost of the trip includes round-trip air transportation, sightseeing tours and transportation and hotel accommodations. The services of a tour escort will also be provided.

Reservations plus a $75 deposit must be made as soon as possible. For further information and reservations, contact Mrs. Meyer, who will be coordinating the tour for members of the Extensioners.

The two films on Hawaii will be shown at the pot luck supper Aug. 1 compliments of the Mount Prospect Public Library.

Consumer Bureau To Open

A branch office of the Illinois Attorney General's Bureau of Consumer Fraud and Protection is scheduled to open in Elk Grove Village Aug. 15.

The office, manned by local volunteers, will be serving all residents in villages surrounding Elk Grove to Schaumburg and Niles where other offices are located.

Situated in the conference room of the village hall, directly behind the police station on 688 Landmeier Road, the office will be open from 9 a.m. to noon each Saturday.

This is a tentative scheduling according to Tom King, one of the volunteers, until the demand for services in the area is determined.

Other volunteers include Mrs. Jeanne Seidman, Mrs. Pat Peacock and Miss Kirsten Reeder.

"This is a volunteer effort between the state's attorney's bureau and the village," Village Pres. Jack Pahl said.

WILLIAM KUTZA, director of the branch office, will help the volunteers in responding to complaints when necessary, he said, but would not work out of the Elk Grove office.

"The rationale behind the branch office is that local people know the consumer," he said. "They shop at the same stores and may have the same complaints."

Any type of complaints will be handled at the office, but Kutza cautioned that the customer contact the company with his problem before coming to the consumer fraud office.

"Many people are afraid to contact the company when the company may always offer a refund on bad merchandise according to policy," he said.

"There are a myriad of ways the consumer can get cheated. You name the complaint and we've had it," he said.

Pool Director Can Reach Teenagers With Programs

by DAVE PALERMO

Sam Geati, dripping wet in his brown swimming trunks, walked into the shelter at Lions Park where he works as a pool director for the Mount Prospect Park District.

A small fellow, about five feet, six inches tall, Sam has a muscular frame and a tan face which tends to hide the fact that he's 32-years-old and the father of four children.

In a way, Sam's youthful looks and mannerisms are a blessing to park district commissioners who have long been faced with a nagging inability to reach teenagers with effective programs.

When the community center at Lions Park is completed, Sam will leave his current position and become the center director, the lone full-time employee in the building.

The basement of the community center will be turned over to youngsters who, in the words of the commissioners, "can do with it what they may."

Although Geati will be responsible for all programs in the community center, his chief concern will be making the "teen center" a success.

"The kids, with our direction, will decide how the room will be used," he said. "They'll also be involved with discipline and I hope to have a board of youngsters to set down the rules and decide how the place will be run. I think they'd be very strict if they're on their own."

"The responsibility of running the place would have to be on their shoulders. They would do a better job of handling the place than having a zillion policemen around all the time."

"We're in the business of supplying the opportunity," he added. "If they don't take advantage of the responsibility, there's nothing we can do about it."

Geati, who lives at 128 St. Armand Road in Wheeling, worked three summers for the Buffalo Grove Park District before joining the Mount Prospect Park District staff in June.

A 1961 graduate of Northern Illinois University, Geati earned a bachelor's in physical education into a teaching position with the Deerfield school system. From 1962 to 1966 he also worked with the Glenview Park District.

He called working with the Buffalo Grove Park District "a real baptism."

"I was spending more hours with the parks on a yearly basis than teaching school," he said. "And I was making less money."

The community center will include three small rooms which Geati hopes to use for individual sports such as weightlifting, gymnastics, judo and wrestling. He hopes to use the gymnasium for sports such as basketball, volleyball and floor hockey.

When there are no organized programs in the rooms, he said they will be open for free play and low-organized games.

But Geati is a young man with young ideas, and the teen center is top on his priority list.

"There are a lot of things that have to be worked out," he said. "If it goes well, we'll broaden it and if it doesn't... well... it doesn't."

Entire Town Project Told

CHICAGO UPI — A joint venture to create a new town in Lake County, Ill., at a cost of $250 million was announced Monday by developers of the project.

A spokesman said the venture is being undertaken by Sears, Roebuck and Co.; Macco, Inc., a subsidiary of Marshall Field & Co.; and Urban Investment and Development Co., a subsidiary of Aetna Life and Casualty.

The site for New Century Town is located 30 miles north of Chicago, and construction is scheduled to begin next year, the spokesman said.

The project will be built in two stages. The first stage will be a commercial center and will require about 18 months to construct.

Sears and Field's will have major stores in the center when it opens. Leasing agent for the center will be Draper and Kramer, Inc.

The second stage will include a regional town center, residential neighborhoods, schools, recreation area and research development centers.

Sidewalk Series To Move?

The future of the Sidewalk Academy in Rolling Meadows is dim, according to the man who has helped bring speakers to the lecture series.

In an indictment of the city, yesterday Clyde Brooks said the "overwhelming apathy and indifference" of the community to the series may mean it will be moved to another location. Brooks, who heads Educational Laboratories in Elk Grove is also a manpower director in the county Office of Economic Opportunity.

Brooks said the decision to move the academy will be made on the basis of the attendance. He did not say where the academy might be moved. The present location is Sacred Heart of Mary High School at 2800 Central Rd.

"I feel the concept" of the academy, "to promote community education is desirable," Brooks said. "We have speakers that will appeal to the ultra-right, liberals and moderates."

"But for some reason," he continued, "the community has not seen fit to support this concept of community education."

Attendance at two of the first three sessions was less than 50 people. Over 100 people showed up to hear representatives of the Black Panther party.

Brooks said that there has been a "noticeable absence of ministers, of educators and of civic organization representatives."

BROOKS THEN leveled a blast at Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland J. Meyer saying he refused to be involved in the academy because he felt that criminals were participating in the series. This is not the case, Brooks said.

Meyer's comments constituted "program slander that is not in the best interests of a free and open society," Brooks said.

"I just can't see how people can be so indifferent and draw conclusions based on mis-information," said Brooks.

The purpose of the academy, he said, is to provide opposing points of view so people can "make up their own minds about positions they want to take."

Brooks said he knew what to expect from the people he called the "ultra right" but was depressed "with the liberal who professes so many things in rhetorical terms, but who is absent from activities designed to help man understand his fellow man."

"If the community does not want to support this type of program, there are other communities that want it," he said.

The academy, he said, is now in debt. "We had hoped to raise money for a drug abuse program for the young people," Brooks said. "Lord knows, we need it out here."

The lack of interest in the Sidewalk Academy, he said, may be part of a larger "mental health" problem in the Northwest suburban area.

THIS PROBLEM is illustrated by the attitude of many people toward low income housing in the area, the attitudes of people who speak different languages, have different skin color and different religion, he said.

Part of the problem may be seen in what Brooks called the "increase in the number of alcoholics" and increasing "drug dependency."

Brooks said people may be staying away from the academy because they feel "threatened." These "insecure" people, he said, are afraid that "some of the speakers represent an illness that can be communicated."

Tonight's speaker, the Rev. George Clements, Brooks described as a "dynamic personality, the kind of Christian we need more of in society."

Rev. Clements was the kind of "activist Jesus Christ was all about," Brooks said.

He will be speaking on "Jesus Christ, the Revolutionary." The program starts at 8 p.m. Admission is $1.50 for students and $2 for adults.

Cop Negotiations Reach Stalemate

Negotiations have stalemated in the Wheeling police sick-in, and Illinois State Police remains on duty in the village. No major crimes have been reported since the "sick-in" by 15 Wheeling Policemen began last Friday.

Last night at Herald deadline, 21 persons were waiting in the Wheeling council chambers for the village board to come out of executive session. Among the members of the audience who waited for board action were wives of ten Wheeling policemen.

The board went immediately into executive session at the beginning of the meeting at 7 p.m. last night. A letter from the Wheeling Jaycees was distributed to the board members but not read aloud.

Village officials have announced that talks with the policemen through the police chief will resume as soon as the 15 men "comply with the law" by returning to work.

Sgt. Gene Wolf, Wheeling chapter president of the Cook County Police Assn., said Tuesday that as far as the police are concerned "everything in this world is negotiable."

Wolf said that "channels of communication are in fact tightly closed" at the present time.

The Wheeling Jaycees sent a statement to the board asking that legal actions against the policemen be dropped. The Jaycees urged policemen to return to work immediately if the board dropped the suit against them. The called for public meetings to resolve issues with arbitration or mediation after a 10-day period.

Although the village had a court injunction issued Monday against the 15 "sick" policemen, none of the policemen has been served with a copy of it. The injunction ordered the policemen to either report back to work immediately or to a doctor in the Buffalo Grove Medical Center by 2 p.m. Tuesday. The policemen did not comply with the court order.

CCPA activities in other suburbs include the settlement of a sick-in in Skokie. In Waukegan 61 patrolmen involved in a sick-in there were suspended. In Des Plaines, city officials were re-examining an ordinance recognizing the CCPA as a bargaining agent for that city's patrolmen in view of the current strikes in Wheeling and Waukegan.

In Palatine, policemen were scheduled to vote on CCPA membership yesterday but the vote was held up by the absence of election examiners.

'Survival Kits' Launched

A program to educate newcomers in the Northwest suburban area about health and safety services was launched here yesterday by Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

The program includes the visits by 35 local representatives to homes of new families in the area. Each family will be given a special kind of survival kit containing health and safety information geared to local resources that can be called on in emergencies.

The survival kits will be distributed to residents in Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village, Prospect Heights, Palatine and Rolling Meadows.

"We're distributing the kits to new residents first," said Miss Eleanor Brennan, a member of the company's community health department, "because it is people who are on the move who have the most trouble finding medical information when they get into a new community, so we're trying to help them."

THE KITS, WHICH will also be available at the company's local office at 420 Lee St., Des Plaines, includes information on where to contact a physician or obtain an ambulance in case of emergency, what to do in case of accidental poisoning, where to get first aid training, and how to insure blood credit for one year.

They also contain a safety guide for teen-age babysitters, instruction for mouth-to-mouth rescue breathing, an emergency medical information card, a first aid wall chart and a picture primer on health and safety standards.

According to Miss Brennan all the information was prepared by Metropolitan Life in cooperation with the Chicago Medical Society for Cook County.

"The Cook County Medical Association," explained Miss Brennan, "was our source of approach to the area because they're well aware of all the medical facilities which are available to people. The company is constantly involved with national medical associations because the company has been involved with medical emergency programs for many years."

Miss Brennan said, "people should review the materials and then put the various cards, guides and illustrations in the parts of the house where they would be used the most. For instance, she said, "the first aid card should be pasted to the medicine cabinet and the list of emergency phone numbers should be kept near the phone."

Miss Brennan said she is confident the program will be well accepted by residents. "We've started the program in other areas and the people have been very happy with it. We've gotten many letters and phone calls thanking us."

The kit should be distributed to all newcomers within the next three to five months. After that the kits will be given to other Des Plaines area residents.

Residents Irked By Road Detour

Not too many people are happy about the fact Mount Prospect Road is being detoured during construction and the traffic is being rerouted four blocks on S. Albert Street, between Lincoln Street and Central Road.

Village Mgr. Virgil Barnett and Chief of Police Newell Esmond both have received numerous calls from residents along those four blocks complaining about the increased traffic down Albert Street.

Barnett and Esmond both toured the area and, although admitting the detour was somewhat difficult for motorists to negotiate, didn't think there was a serious problem.

"About a dozen of us who live on the block have called the chief of police and the village manager seeking some help in controlling the traffic," said Mrs. Janice Brietze, of 319 S. Albert St.

"We haven't received any satisfaction from them at all," she added. "The amount of traffic using Albert Street is too much for residential streets and we're worried about the safety of our children."

Esmond said there has been no blockage of traffic while he was in the area and added that he felt motorists would begin using George and Edwards Streets and take some of the congestion from Albert Street.

"Responsibility for carrying out the administrative functions of the village rests with the manager."

"Unclear lines of responsibility are a direct cause of delay, and in some cases, duplication of efforts. Many administrative assignments which should be handled as a matter of course, when directed to committee, are placed in a state of limbo for months. Citizens seeking action from their village often equate the delay with the ineptness of the administrative staff. This situation has all too often caused the village to appear unresponsive and unconcerned for its citizens," he said.

BARNETT SAID the council-manager form of government when operating effectively, is the most responsive form for the people.

But he added that Mount Prospect cannot afford to operate as a $3.5 million business without direct lines of authority and control. "This is a serious problem that if not controlled, will seriously ham-

Two Local Youths Arrested In Riot

Two Elk Grove Village youths were arrested by Chicago police Monday after a riot in Grant Park during a free rock concert sponsored by the Chicago Park District.

Reed J. Roark, 18, 1225 Cypress Lane and Steve P. Quick, 18, 941 W. Higgins Road were both arrested and charged with disorderly conduct.

The two youths were among 165 people, including 11 women and 40 juveniles arrested in Chicago.

Robber Receives 15-Year Sentence

Allison W. Hoffman, 32, was sentenced by Judge Edward Plusderk to serve 15 to 30 years in the Illinois State Penitentiary after a jury trial in Cook County Criminal Court Wednesday found him guilty of armed robbery of a Mount Prospect jewelry store Feb. 20, 1969.

A co-defendant in the robbery pleaded guilty in August and was sentenced to Illinois State Penitentiary for five to six years.

The two men, armed with revolvers, tied up two employees in the store as well as another man who entered the store after the robbery began.

The men ripped out a telephone in the store before emptying a safe, show cases and cash register of a large amount of rings, diamonds and currency, which they placed in a cardboard box.

The owner of the store, Mount Prospect Jewelers Shop, 108 S. Main, LaVerne Funk, would not disclose how much was taken in the robbery.

$4 Million Funding Ordinance OK'd

by GERRY DeZONNA

A $4 million appropriations ordinance for the 1970-71 fiscal year was approved by the Mount Prospect Village Board by a 4 to 1 vote Tuesday.

Trustee Donald Furst cast the only dissenting vote when additional appropriations boosted the ordinance slightly over the $4 million mark. Furst said the new ordinance violated "good marketing principles," since an ordinance slightly under $4 million will appeal more to residents.

"Yes, you have a point there, but then again, I take pride in telling everyone I come from a $4 million village," Trustee Daniel Ahern added.

The first draft of the appropriations ordinance, submitted to the board July 21, limited village spending for the new fiscal year at $3,963,211. Additional appropriations for the General Corporate Fund and Waterworks and Sewerage Fund pushed the ordinance over $4 million.

Trustees appropriated an additional $30,000 to the Waterworks and Sewerage Fund for the construction of water mains this year, and appropriations for six new "projects" were added to the General Corporate Fund.

THE BOARD appropriated $1,000 for an historical society, $1,000 for senior citizens, $1,000 for Weller Creek easements, $3,500 for the Northwest Municipal Conference transportation study, $9,000 for the lawsuit against the expansion of O'Hare Airport and $1,300 for interviewing new candidates for the position of village manager.

A request for an increase in the amount of money appropriated for the Mount Prospect Public Library for the 1970-71 fiscal year was denied by the Mount Prospect Village Board Tuesday.

Gilbert Liebenow, chairman of the library board, told trustees the library will need more than an appropriation for $172,000 for the new fiscal year. "Our appropriations request represents less than an eight per cent increase over last year's amount, while increases in the appropriations for the village range between 10 and 35 per cent," Liebenow said.

The appropriations were added to the General Corporate Fund following a

"There's more to living in a village than providing just the functions necessary to everyday living. I can't equate the library with such necessary functions as fire and police protection, but there are more services than just these that must be considered," he said.

"The library contacts more people in the community than any other organization in the village, and the library staff has more direct contact with residents than anyone else. An increase in the appropriation is a question of our ability to operate functions necessary to the library," Liebenow said.

Mayor Robert Teichert suggested an approximate $6,000 increase in the library appropriation in an effort "to bury the hatchet" between the library board and village trustees.

Teichert suggested the board honor the library's appropriation request for $178,000, but the motion was defeated by a 3 to 2 vote. Village trustees are still critical of the library board's approval of an addition to the library last year, when funds had not been appropriated for the addition.

Trustees charged the library board with "knowingly spending money not budgeted for by the village" and with "fiscal irresponsibility."

problem, especially when you've allowed a 10 per cent cushion in the appropriations ordinance.

"If you don't appropriate any money for the senior citizens in this community, then you're admitting these people as a special group who live in the village have no place in this community," Grittani said.

Although village trustees told Grittani no funds will be available this year for the senior citizens, Mayor Robert Teichert suggested a "token appropriation" was added to the ordinance as a matter of policy.

"I don't think the money will be available this year but by appropriating funds for the senior citizens, we will be establishing a policy and recognizing these residents as a special group with special interests that need to be fulfilled by the community," Teichert explained.

"I THINK WE SHOULD include an appropriation for the senior citizens as well as for an historical society in the village. Also as a matter of village policy, we should recognize our other commitments by appropriating money for them as well," he said.

Appropriations for the six "projects" were added to the General Corporate Fund and accounted for the $16,800 increase. The $30,000 appropriation added to the Waterworks and Sewerage Fund plus the increase in the General Corporate Fund increased the appropriations ordinance from $3,963,211 to $4,010,011 for the 1970-71 fiscal year.

The village tax rate levied in September will be based on the 1970-71 appropriations ordinance.

Draft Board Offices Across The Street

Selective Service Boards 101, 102, and 103 are now located at 1920 Waukegan Road, Glenview, not 1921 Waukegan, as was previously reported.

18-Year-Olds May Change Vote Patterns

by ED MURNANE
(A News Analysis)

Substantial changes in voting patterns in the Northwest suburbs may result if 18, 19 and 20-year-olds are allowed to vote in future elections.

Although court tests have not yet upheld the constitutionality of the new voting laws, tomorrow is the first day for the younger citizens to register for the franchise.

If the courts uphold the expanded voting franchise, which was passed by Congress and signed by President Nixon, the new voters will be eligible to vote in federal, state and local elections beginning Jan. 1, 1971.

Based on U. S. census figures for 1960, the 18 to 21 group will represent less than 10 per cent of the voting population nationwide. In Illinois, 7.3 per cent of the voting population would be under 21.

However, if the younger voters show a more concerned attitude toward the franchise than do their elders, the 7.3 per cent in Illinois could be increased to as much as 30 per cent of the total votes cast.

In the four Northwest suburban townships of Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg, for example, the new voting laws could send as many as 16,000 new voters to the polls — if they register.

THAT FIGURE is based on the number of graduates from three high schools in Palatine-Schaumburg Dist. 211, six high schools in Dist. 214, and St. Viator and Sacred Heart High Schools, since 1967.

Most students who graduated in 1967 will become 21 years old this year and the 1970 high school classes consisted of students who will reach their 18th birthdays this year.

Based on the past voting performances of their parents, the younger people could definitely change the outcome of elections in this area if they bother to register and vote.

That's a question that won't be answered until the first election is held. Voters between 21 and 25, who have had the franchise all along, have one of the poorest voting records, indicating that the novelty of voting is considered just that — a novelty and not a responsibility.

But the figures showing poor turnouts by the 21 to 25 group are based on elections held during the 1960s, before the flurry of campus disorders and before the increased involvement in political campaigns by young people began.

If the new involvement by college-age students is indicative of civic concern, then the 18 to 21 group could have a substantially better voting record than their elders and could dramatically affect the outcome of future elections.

IN LAST YEAR'S 13th Congressional District Republican primary election, for example, only 29,000 voters cast ballots in the four Northwest suburban townships — despite the fact that the election to fill the vacant congressional seat was one of the most widely publicized elections in years.

Eight Republican candidates crisscrossed the area for five months during the summer and early fall and newspapers and radio and television stations gave more coverage to the race than they do for anything but major state and national races.

Yet only 20 per cent of the voters went to the polls and the race was determined by a slim margin of 2,100 votes.

Had 16,000 additional voters been eligible and only 20 per cent voted, there would have been 3,200 more votes cast — enough to change the outcome.

And since the younger voters probably would have been less conservative than their elders, chances are good that they would not have supported conservative Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th, who won the Republican nomination in the primary.

Crane, incidentally, opposed the new voting age.

An even greater potential for changing the outcome of an election would have existed in last year's Third District Constitutional Convention primary in which 16 candidates sought the four nominations for delegate seats at the convention.

FEWER THAN 10,000 voters turned out for that election in the four townships.

If the 18, 19 and 20 year olds had been able to vote, they possibly could have cast more votes than their elders did and, since there were several Con-Con candidates in their 20s and early 30s, the results may have been substantially different.

The key to the influence that will be wielded by the new voters is the number who register. If the younger voters are as interested in voting as President Nixon said they were when he signed the law, then election results may be determined by 18, 19 and 20-year-olds.

But in some areas, there is likely to be a backlash effect by the older voters. Conservatives generally do not favor a lower voting age and the prospect of giving teenagers a voice in electing public officials may be the spark the older voters need to improve their own voting performance.

Results of the new voting law, if it is upheld, probably won't be fully realized until at least 1972. The law takes effect in January and the only elections in 1971 will be for local officials and school board members — lowest on the interest totem pole.

But 1972 a Presidential election will take place, as well as races for the United States Senate, Congress and governor of Illinois. That's when the young voters' influence will be felt and the results should be, if nothing else, enlightening.

'Pot Luck' Dinner Set

The Mount Prospect Extensioners will sponsor a pot luck supper Aug. 1 at 6:30 p.m. in the recreation room of Community Presbyterian Church, 407 N. Main St.

Each person must bring one serving dish to pass around plus his own table setting which includes plate and silverware.

Mrs. Elizabeth Meyer of the Extensioners will provide suggestions for serving dishes. For further information, contact her at 255-3169.

Two films on Hawaii will highlight the evening. The films will be shown as an advance for the Third Hawaiian Holiday, a three-week tour of Hawaii for members of the Extensioners and Northwest Area Senior Citizens.

The tour, which will depart Chicago Oct. 3 and return Oct. 18, is open to all senior citizens in the area. The cost of the Third Hawaiian Holiday is $578 plus $10 tax per person. This price is based on double-occupancy hotel accommodations.

Single accommodations will be available but the cost of the trip will be $673 plus $25 tax per person for these accommodations.

The cost of the trip includes round-trip air transportation, sightseeing tours and transportation and hotel accommodations. The services of a tour escort will also be provided.

Reservations plus a $75 deposit must be made as soon as possible. For further information and reservations, contact Mrs. Meyer, who will be coordinating the tour for members of the Extensioners.

The two films on Hawaii will be shown at the pot luck supper Aug. 1 compliments of the Mount Prospect Public Library.

Pool Director Can Reach Teenagers With Programs

by DAVE PALERMO

Sam Geati, dripping wet in his brown swimming trunks, walked into the shelter at Lions Park where he works as a pool director for the Mount Prospect Park District.

A small fellow, about five feet, six inches tall, Sam has a muscular frame and a tan face which tends to hide the fact that he's 32-years-old and the father of four children.

In a way, Sam's youthful looks and mannerisms are a blessing to park district commissioners who have long been faced with a nagging inability to reach teenagers with effective programs.

When the community center at Lions Park is completed, Sam will leave his

Sam Geati

"I was spending more hours with the parks on a yearly basis than teaching school," he said. "And I was making less money."

The community center will include three small rooms which Geati hopes to use for individual sports such as weightlifting, gymnastics, judo and wrestling. He hopes to use the gymnasium for sports such as basketball, volleyball and floor hockey.

When there are no organized programs in the rooms, he said they will be open for free play and low-organized games.

But Geati is a young man with young ideas, and the teen center is top on his priority list.

"There are a lot of things that have to be worked out," he said. "If it goes well, we'll broaden it and if it doesn't... well... it doesn't."

Consumer Bureau To Open

A branch office of the Illinois Attorney General's Bureau of Consumer Fraud and Protection is scheduled to open in Elk Grove Village Aug. 15.

The office, manned by local volunteers, will be serving all residents in villages surrounding Elk Grove to Schaumburg and Niles where other offices are located.

Situated in the conference room of the village hall, directly behind the police station on 666 Landmeier Road, the office will be open from 9 a.m. to noon each Saturday.

This is a tentative scheduling according to Tom King, one of the volunteers, until the demand for services in the area is determined.

Other volunteers include Mrs. Jeanne Seidlin, Mrs. Pat Peacock and Miss Kirsten Reeder.

"This is a volunteer effort between the state's attorney's bureau and the village," Village Pres. Jack Pahl said.

WILLIAM KUTZA, director of the branch office, will help the volunteers in responding to complaints when necessary, he said, but would not work out of the Elk Grove office.

"The rationale behind the branch office is that local people know the consumer," he said. "They shop at the same stores and may have the same complaints."

Any type of complaints will be handled at the office, but Kutza cautioned that the customer contact the company with his problem before coming to the consumer fraud office.

"Many people are afraid to contact the company when the company may always offer a refund on bad merchandise according to policy," he said.

"There are a myriad of ways the consumer can get cheated. You name the complaint and we've had it," he said.

Pahl indicated that most complaints in Elk Grove involved door-to-door salesmen, and sales involving air conditioners.

COMPLAINT FORMS will be available at the village hall during the week for people who want to fill them out and bring them in on Saturday mornings.

Pamphlets will be available at the office with tips on how to avoid fraud. One is entitled, "20 Ways Not to be Gypped," and the other is "Your Protection Against Fraudulent Sales, Advertising and Loans."

The office will accept insurance complaints but will not handle them through the fraud office. They will be forwarded to the Illinois insurance director, according to Kutza.

The mobile unit will also be available to consumers for complaints, Kutza said. He explained that upon prior request the unit can be available any time to supplement the service of the local office.

The Elk Grove office is the only group operating on a volunteer basis, Kutza said. He added, "As far as our office is concerned we hope this will be a model arrangement."

Sidewalk Series To Move?

The future of the Sidewalk Academy in Rolling Meadows is dim, according to the man who has helped bring speakers to the lecture series.

In an indictment of the city, yesterday Clyde Brooks said the "overwhelming apathy and indifference" of the community to the series may mean it will be moved to another location. Brooks, who heads Educational Laboratories in Elk Grove is also a manpower director in the county Office of Economic Opportunity.

Brooks said the decision to move the academy will be made on the basis of the attendance. He did not say where the academy might be moved. The present location is Sacred Heart of Mary High School at 2800 Central Rd.

"I feel the concept," of the academy, "to promote community education is desirable," Brooks said. "We have speakers that will appeal to the ultra-right, liberals and moderates."

"But for some reason," he continued, "the community has not seen fit to support this concept of community education."

Attendance at two of the first three sessions was less than 50 people. Over 100 people showed up to hear representatives of the Black Panther party.

Brooks said that there has been a "noticeable absence of ministers, of educators and of civic organization representatives."

BROOKS THEN leveled a blast at Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland J. Meyer saying he refused to be involved in the academy because he felt that criminals were participating in the series. This is not the case, Brooks said.

Meyer's comments constituted "program slander that is not in the best interests of a free and open society," Brooks said.

"I just can't see how people can be so indifferent and draw conclusions based on mis-information," said Brooks.

The purpose of the academy, he said, is to provide opposing points of view so people can "make up their own minds about positions they want to take."

Brooks said he knew what to expect from the people he called the "ultra right" but was depressed "with the liberal who professes so many things in rhetorical terms, but who is absent from activities designed to help man understand his fellow man."

"If the community does not want to support this type of program, there are other communities that want it," he said.

The academy, he said, is now in debt. "We had hoped to raise money for a drug abuse program for the young people," Brooks said. "Lord knows, we need it out here."

The lack of interest in the Sidewalk Academy, he said, may be part of a larger "mental health" problem in the Northwest suburban area.

THIS PROBLEM is illustrated by the attitude of many people toward low income housing in the area, the attitudes of people who speak different languages, have different skin color and different religion, he said.

Part of the problem may be seen in what Brooks called the "increase in the number of alcoholics" and increasing "drug dependency."

Brooks said people may be staying away from the academy because they feel "threatened." These "insecure" people, he said, are afraid that "some of the speakers represent an illness that can be communicated."

Tonight's speaker, the Rev. George Clements, Brooks described as a "dynamic personality, the kind of Christian we need more of in society."

Rev. Clements was the kind of "active Jesus Christ was all about," Brooks said.

He will be speaking on "Jesus Christ, the Revolutionary." The program starts at 8 p.m. Admission is $1.50 for students and $2 for adults.

TODAY COLUMN To The Editor

'On A Clear Day You Can See Nowhere'

To The Editor:

I hope this letter comes directly to the attention of both the Arlington Heights public and the careless owners of the Dunton Street exit parking lot, located between Harris' Pharmacy and Svoboda's store. The exit to this so-called "parking lot" is a study in how to ruin your car (and yourself as well) without Really Trying.

For one thing, all the parked cars lined up along Dunton Street make it impossible to see any of the other cars that might be whizzing by—until it's too late, that is. (On a Clear Day—if that day is a Saturday in downtown Arlington Heights, you can see nowhere, man.) So one can't take one's own sweet time and piddle around in the middle of the road, waiting to make a clean break into traffic, right? Thus, in order to escape from this parking lot, one has to either proceed very cautiously (and perhaps wait nearly forever) or pull out fairly fast—which also has its unfortunate consequences.

What unfortunate consequences? The gap between the parking lot and the street below is considerable: pulling out quickly means conking the underside of one's car against the too-steep parking lot surface. I know. I did this myself, with the result of a drooping muffler that will never be quite the same.

Why, therefore, wasn't the incline between the exit and the street (Dunton) made much more gradual? A couple buckets of cement and a little elbow grease on the part of the owners of this parking lot would have gone a long way toward modifying the Mount Everest-like features of this exit area. Repairs, anyone?

In the meantime, the patrons of Dunton Court should be warned: park elsewhere. Or risk life and limb by pulling out s-l-o-w-l-y. Or do what I did: pull out at a necessary, normal rate of speed and listen to the underside of our car get knocked right into the middle of next week.

TIPTOE THROUGH THE . . . A workman for McDermott Amusements walks through the scaffolding at the municipal parking lot just east of Veil Street. The lot is being transformed into a wonderland for children as part of this week's Sidewalk Days beginning today.

'Old Man'; Never Seen

by MURRAY DUBIN

Morris Silverman is an old man in a child's game.

Since 1921, the 65-year-old Chicago bachelor has been going in circles and getting paid for it. The taciturn employee of McDermott Amusements runs, sets up and operates merry-go-rounds. Today he'll operate a merry-go-round for Sidewalk Days.

Yesterday afternoon, Silverman was tired. He took a worn, black purse out of the pair of pants he wore under his work pants and carefully counted the pennies inside.

He took a handful of change into his greasy palm and asked a blonde-haired boy who couldn't keep his eyes off the horse in the merry-go-round to get him a beef sandwich.

He took a swig of water from a gallon milk bottle and said, "I'll never retire. 'What would I do? You get lazy just staying around the house.'"

The perspiring Silverman said he started working the merry-go-rounds when he was 15 and swore he could run them in his sleep. He added that it only took two and a half hours to set up the one on Veil and Wing.

Silverman's merry-go-round was a typically colorful affair, with long-legged, striding horses waiting for their youthful riders and for Silverman to turn the crank that would make the wooden horses alive.

Silverman said he liked kids and they presented no problem. But his job was something else.

The green hatted worker, covered with sweat and swipes of dirt and grease, had only one comment for his job. Tight lipped, he said, "It's a job."

He'd like to quit the amusement business and go out on a farm, somewhere in the country. Not to relax or stop working. Just to sleep late, get up and pick the vegetables or fruit and then take it easy.

Tomorrow is the first of three Sidewalk Days. There will be amusements, sales, dancers, a musical revue, a pie eating contest and a dog show. Thousands of people will be involved in the three days of festivities.

And you can be sure that no one will notice an old man with a green hat who starts the merry-go-round with a crank.

Will Teen Vote Alter Pattern?

by ED MURNANE
(A News Analysis)

Substantial changes in voting patterns in the Northwest suburbs may result if 18, 19 and 20-year-olds are allowed to vote in future elections.

Although court tests have not yet upheld the constitutionality of the new voting laws, tomorrow is the first day for the younger citizens to register for the franchise.

If the courts uphold the expanded voting franchise, which was passed by Congress and signed by President Nixon, the new voters will be eligible to vote in federal, state and local elections beginning Jan. 1, 1971.

Based on U. S. census figures for 1960, the 18 to 21 group will represent less than 10 per cent of the voting population nationwide. In Illinois, 7.3 per cent of the voting population would be under 21.

However, if the younger voters show a more concerned attitude toward the franchise than do their elders, the 7.3 per cent in Illinois could be increased to as much as 30 per cent of the total votes cast.

In the four Northwest suburban townships of Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg, for example, the new voting laws could send as many as 16,000 new voters to the polls—if they register.

THAT FIGURE is based on the number of graduates from three high schools in Palatine-Schaumburg Dist. 211, six high schools in Dist. 214, and St. Viator and Sacred Heart High Schools, since 1967.

Most students who graduated in 1967 will become 21 years old this year and the 1970 high school classes consisted of students who will reach their 18th birthdays this year.

Based on the past voting performances of their parents, the younger people could definitely change the outcome of elections in this area if they bother to register and vote.

That's a question that won't be answered until the first election is held. Voters between 21 and 25, who have had the franchise all along, have one of the poorest voting records, indicating that the novelty of voting is considered just that—a novelty and not a responsibility.

But the figures showing poor turnouts by the 21 to 25 group are based on elections held during the 1960s, before the flurry of campus disorders and before the increased involvement in political campaigns by young people began.

If the new involvement by college-age students is indicative of civic concern, then the 18 to 21 group could have a substantially better voting record than their elders and could dramatically affect the outcome of future elections.

IN LAST YEAR'S 13th Congressional District Republican primary election, for example, only 29,000 voters cast ballots in the four Northwest suburban townships—despite the fact that the election to fill the vacant congressional seat was one of the most widely publicized elections in years.

Eight Republican candidates crisscrossed the area for five months during the summer and early fall and newspapers and radio and television stations gave more coverage to the race than they do for anything but major state and national races.

Yet only 20 per cent of the voters went to the polls and the race was determined by a slim margin of 2,100 votes.

Had 16,000 additional voters been elec-gible and only 20 per cent voted, there would have been 3,200 more votes cast—enough to change the outcome.

And since the younger voters probably would have been less conservative than their elders, chances are good that they would not have supported conservative Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th, who won the Republican nomination in the primary.

Crane, incidentally, opposed their voting age.

An even greater potential for changing the outcome of an election would have existed in last year's Third District Constitutional Convention primary in which 16 candidates sought the four nominations for delegate seats at the convention.

FEWER THAN 10,000 voters turned out for that election in the four townships.

If the 18, 19 and 20 year olds had been able to vote, they possibly could have cast more votes than their elders did and, since there were several Con-Con candidates in their 20s and early 30s, the results may have been substantially different.

THERE'S MORE THAN child's play in the setting up and operating of a merry-go-round. Ask Morris Silverman, who will run the amusement ride today.

Corruption? Not Here

Perhaps someday a columnist can write a story about graft and corruption in Arlington Heights.

But not now.

I talked with a woman last week who wanted to know if "things work here like they do in Chicago." She had lived in Chicago and moved out here about three years ago.

The bribing of public officials, buying votes and those other scandalous deals which make Chicago famous as the patronage capital of the country just don't exist in this village as far as I can see.

When you think of it, the lack of graft is understandable. How can you tempt a village board member with the offer of a new car when he already drives a 1970 Buick Riviera? Kick-backs aren't too tempting to someone who's making $40,000 or more a year.

Don't think for a minute that the offers aren't made. George Beacham, a former village trustee, said that when he was on the board, developers and others wishing to get the cooperation they wanted would contact board members.

"WHO DO WE PAY OFF to get what we want?" the developers would ask. And they found out . . . no one person has that power and no group of individuals could be tempted.

Beacham said the board has a general rule about accepting gifts. If the gift was worth more than $10, it was returned.

One Christmas, a builder sent smoked imported hams to the village board members. The board members couldn't decide what they were worth, so they packed them up and sent them to a charity.

The woman I talked with wanted to know if members of the Board of Local Improvements (BOLI) got kickbacks from contractors who installed sidewalks and paved streets.

I think the only kickback that BOLI members get is driving through the village and seeing a town with paved streets. Their bribe is being able to have a little pride in thinking that they have accomplished something which has bettered the community.

YOU CERTAINLY can't bribe someone with the offer of a great salary when they're appointed to a board or commission in this village. The maximum salary for any appointment runs about $10 per meeting which hardly pays for the time spent at meetings much less all the time spent doing "homework." Members of many boards serve with no compensation.

Maybe I'm being led down the proverbial "garden path," but I really don't believe that any type of major graft and corruption exists in this town.

About the only crime you can accuse village board and commission members with is the crime of doing what they think is right for the village as a whole.

And, compared to the way things work in Chicago, that makes Arlington Heights a dull but pretty good place to live.

Resident Reports Missing Supplies

A representative of Hoffman Decorating, a painting contractor for Miller Builders, reported to Arlington Heights police yesterday that someone took $500 worth of painting supplies from a model home garage at 1815 S. Princeton Ave.

Some of the materials taken were 30 gallons of paint, four quarts of putty, five paint cans, four gallons of wax, seven gallons of stain and 10g allons of Benzine.

No Book Amnesty

Overdue books are not a major problem at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library according to a library representative.

Mrs. Marjorie Larsen, who is in charge of overdue books, said the library has had the normal amount of trouble with overdue books.

"We don't have much of a problem during the summer," she said. "And it's usually the same people who have overdue books out."

Mrs. Larsen said the library has no plans for holding a general amnesty for holders of overdue books.

"We had an amnesty during the switchover from the old library to here," she said. "Quite a few overdue books came in, but we're not planning to hold another one."

Mrs. Larsen said someone recently returned books that had been checked out since 1968.

"Somebody must have cleaned house and decided to send the books back," she said.

According to Mrs. Larsen, people frequently don't realize they have overdue books.

"They insist they turned the book in," she said. "Later they come in apologetically to return the book."

Although some libraries are resorting to collection agencies and the police to recover overdue books, Mrs. Larsen said the Arlington library will continue to do its own collecting.

She said the library notifies a borrower when a book is two weeks overdue. If the book is not returned they call the person to remind them.

"It's better relations than sending the police or a collection agency," she said. "We withhold their library card or make them pay for the book if it's long overdue."

Girl 'Fair' After Being Hit By Car

Thirteen-year old Jennie Berman of 905 W. Hackberry, Arlington Heights, was admitted to Northwest Community Hospital yesterday after being struck by a car on Hintz Road east of Arlington Heights Road.

A hospital spokesman said the youth was listed in fair condition at the hospital and suffering from abrasions and contusions.

Student Attends Yearbook Workshop

Gary Gorski, 1445 N. Douglas Ave., Arlington Heights, recently participated in a high school yearbook workshop held at Northern Illinois University.

The week of workshop sessions, instructed by the NIU journalism faculty, covered all aspects of yearbook production, including copy writing, editing, photography, organization and creativity.

Brooks: Future Of Sidewalk Dim

The future of the Sidewalk Academy in Rolling Meadows is dim, according to the man who has helped bring speakers to the lecture series.

In an indictment of the city, yesterday Clyde Brooks said the "overwhelming apathy and indifference" of the community to the series may mean it will be moved to another location. Brooks, who heads Educational Laboratories in Elk Grove is also a manpower director in the county Office of Economic Opportunity.

Brooks said the decision to move the academy will be made on the basis of the attendance. He did not say where the academy might be moved. The present location is Sacred Heart of Mary High School at 2800 Central Rd.

"I feel the concept," of the academy, "to promote community education is desirable," Brooks said. "We have speakers that will appeal to the ultra-right, liberals and moderates."

"But for some reason," he continued, "the community has not seen fit to support this concept of community education."

Attendance at two of the first three sessions was less than 50 people. Over 100 people showed up to hear representatives of the Black Panther party.

Brooks said that there has been a "noticeable absence of ministers, of educators and of civic organization representatives."

BROOKS THEN leveled a blast at Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland J. Meyer saying he refused to be involved in the academy because he felt that criminals were participating in the series. This is not the case, Brooks said.

Meyer's comments constituted "program slander that is not in the best interests of a free and open society," Brooks said.

"I just can't see how people can be so indifferent and draw conclusions based on mis-information," said Brooks.

The purpose of the academy, he said, is to provide opposing points of view so people can "make up their own minds about positions they want to take."

Brooks said he knew what to expect from the people he called the "ultra right" but was depressed "with the liberal who professes so many things in rhetorical terms, but who is absent from activities designed to help man understand his fellow man.

"If the community does not want to support this type of program, there are other communities that want it," he said.

The academy, he said, is now in debt. "We had hoped to raise money for a drug abuse program for the young people," Brooks said. "Lord knows, we need it out here."

The lack of interest in the Sidewalk Academy, he said, may be part of a larger "mental health" problem in the Northwest suburban area.

THIS PROBLEM is illustrated by the attitude of many people toward low income housing in the area, the attitudes of people who speak different languages, have different skin color and different religion, he said.

Part of the problem may be seen in what Brooks called the "increase in the number of alcoholics" and increasing "drug dependency."

Brooks said people may be staying away from the academy because they feel "threatened." These "insecure" people, he said, are afraid that "some of the speakers represent an illness that can be communicated."

Office Bldg. Given Okay

The Arlington Heights Plan Commission approved the planned development of a proposed office building at 1007 W. Euclid Ave. last night.

On March 4, the commission approved the rezoning of the property, which is next to the Post Office, from a residential to a business use.

Attorney Eugene Schlickman and architect Robert J. Cwiak presented plans for the two-story structure to the plan commissioners.

Cwiak said the building would have pre-cast, pre-fabricated concrete panels that would be attached to a steel frame. He added that all four sides of the building would be the same and that the windows would feature heat-absorbing glass.

The hearing went smoothly until the parking question stalled the procedures.

Plan Commissioner Victor Beisler questioned the number of parking stalls on the west side of the site near the residential property. Schlickman said parking was parallel, thereby not directing headlights beams towards the homes.

Frederick Yonkers, 311 N. Patton, who has been fighting against the office building since the petition was initiated, continued battling last night.

He complained that the bedrooms on the east side of the homes would face the parking stalls on the west side of the proposed site. "Greater screening should be provided on the west side," he said.

Planning Engineer John Best suggested eliminating two of the parking stalls facing the home directly west of the property. Another suggestion called for those two stalls as a loading zone rather than as parking for the office building.

Plan Commissioner James Loudon asked, "Reading a misery meter, is it worse to have cars coming in at 8 a.m. and pulling out at 5 p.m. or having trucks continually coming in and delivering their wares?"

After further discussion, the commission agreed to widen the buffer zone between the residential property and the parking stalls.

Police Negotiations Are Stalemated

Negotiations have stalemated in the Wheeling police sick-in, and Illinois State Police remain on duty in the village. No major crimes have been reported since the "sick-in" by 15 Wheeling policemen began last Friday.

Last night at Herald deadline, 21 persons were waiting in the Wheeling council chambers for the village board to come out of executive session. Among the members of the audience who waited for board action were wives of ten Wheeling policemen.

The board went immediately into executive session at the beginning of the meeting at 7 p.m. last night. A letter from the Wheeling Jaycees was distributed to the board members but not read aloud.

Village officials have announced that talks with the policemen through the police chief will resume as soon as the 15 men "comply with the law" by returning to work.

Sgt. Gene Wolf, Wheeling chapter president of the Cook County Police Assn., said Tuesday that as far as the police are concerned "everything in this world is negotiable."

Wolf said that "channels of communication are in fact tightly closed" at the present time.

The Wheeling Jaycees sent a statement to the board asking that legal actions against the policemen be dropped. The Jaycees urged policemen to return to work immediately if the board dropped the suit against them. The call for public meetings to resolve issues with arbitration or mediation after a 10-day period.

Although the village had a court injunction issued Monday against the 15 "sick" policemen, none of the policemen has been served with a copy of it. The injunction ordered the policemen to either report back to work immediately or to a doctor in the Buffalo Grove Medical Center by 2 p.m. Tuesday. The policemen did not comply with the court order.

CCPA activities in other suburbs include the settlement of a sick-in in Skokie. In Waukegan 61 patrolmen involved in a sick-in there were suspended.

In Des Plaines, city officials were re-examining an ordinance recognizing the CCPA as a bargaining agent for that city's patrolmen in view of the current strikes in Wheeling and Waukegan.

In Palatine, policemen were scheduled to vote on CCPA membership yesterday but the vote was held up by the absence of election examiners.

Undeclared Teams Ahead

The teams from Camelot and Pioneer Parks are leading the two divisions of 16 inch-softball leagues sponsored by the Arlington Heights Park District.

In the northern division of the seventh and eighth graders' league, the boys' team from Camelot is in first place with a 3-0 record. The team from Hasbrook Park is in second place with a 2-2 record, followed by Patriot Park's team, 1-2; and Raven Park, 1-3.

In the southern division, Pioneer Park's team holds a 3-0 record. Other team standings include Dryden Park, 2-1; Recreation Park, 1-2; and Heritage Park, 0-3.

In the fifth and sixth graders' league, the teams from Camelot and Frontier Parks have 2-1 records and lead the northern division. The team from Patriot Park holds a 1-2 record.

In the southern division of the league, Pioneer and Recreation Parks are tied with 2-1 records. The team from Hasbrook Park has lost all three of its games.

The divisions of each league will hold final district-wide playoffs at Hasbrook Park on Aug. 11.

The softball leagues are part of the supervised playground program sponsored by the Arlington Heights Park District.

Arlington Girl Wins 'Little Miss' Pageant

A 10-year old Arlington Heights girl, Kris Kostopoulos, won "Our Little Miss" pageant, a state-wide beauty contest for children from three to 12-years-old held Saturday.

The competition, in which there were 34 contestants entered, was held at the National Guard Armory in Rockford. Judging was based on talent, party dress and sportswear.

Kris had her last name changed to Karris for public appearances, last week won the "Our Little Miss" title for children seven to 12 in a preliminary pageant held in Mount Prospect. She lives at 1805 N. Waterman.

Mrs. E. DeBerry, of Mount Prospect, was pageant hostess for the Mount Prospect preliminary contest. She said Kris was given a second crown, bouquet of flowers and a ribbon in less than a week Saturday, and will now enter the international finals to be televised from Dallas, Tex. Aug. 19, at 6:30 p.m.

The 10-year-old beauty queen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Kostopoulos, is being sponsored by the Albang Paper Grading Co. of Chicago.

Mrs. DeBerry said entry fee for the international competition is $165 and entitles each contestant and her mother to 17 meals and five days housing.

If she wins, she will be awarded a college scholarship and a new wardrobe.

Chicago Alderman To Be Here Aug. 5

Alderman William Singer of Chicago will come to the Adlai Stevenson headquarters in Arlington Heights on Wednesday, Aug. 5 and not on Aug. 6 as previously announced.

Ald. Singer will speak to young volunteers for Stevenson at 8 p.m. in the candidate's office, 12 W. Campbell St.

Consumer Fraud Office Set Here

A branch office of the Illinois Attorney General's Bureau of Consumer Fraud and Protection is scheduled to open in Elk Grove Village Aug. 15.

The office, manned by local volunteers, will be serving all residents in villages surrounding Elk Grove to Schaumburg and Niles where other offices are located.

Situated in the conference room of the village hall, directly behind the police station on 606 Landmeier Road, the office will be open from 9 a.m. to noon each Saturday.

This is a tentative scheduling according to Tom King, one of the volunteers, until the demand for services in the area is determined.

Other volunteers include Mrs. Jeanne Seidlin, Mrs. Pat Peacock and Miss Kirsten Reeder.

"This is a volunteer effort between the state's attorney's bureau and the village," Village Pres. Jack Pahl said.

WILLIAM KUTZA, director of the branch office, will help the volunteers in responding to complaints when necessary, he said, but would not work out of the Elk Grove office.

"The rationale behind the branch office is that local people know the consumer," he said. "They shop at the same stores and may have the same complaints."

Any type of complaints will be handled at the office, but Kutza cautioned that the customer contact the company with his problem before coming to the consumer fraud office.

"Many people are afraid to contact the company when the company may always offer a refund on bad merchandise according to policy," he said.

"There are a myriad of ways the consumer can get cheated. You name the complaint and we've had it," he said.

Pahl indicated that most complaints in Elk Grove involved door-to-door salesmen, and sales involving air conditioners.

COMPLAINT FORMS will be available at the village hall during the week for people who want to fill them out and bring them in on Saturday mornings.

Pamphlets will be available at the office with tips on how to avoid fraud. One is entitled, "20 Ways Not to be Gyped," and the other is "Your Protection Against Fraudulent Sales, Advertising and Loans."

The office will accept insurance complaints but will not handle them through the fraud office. They will be forwarded to the Illinois insurance director, according to Kutza.

The mobile unit will also be available to consumers for complaints, Kutza said.

Burglars Net $140 From Restaurant

Mr. Gus's Restaurant, 1121 S. Arlington Heights Rd., was burglarized and $140 stolen sometime between Tuesday night and yesterday morning.

Police said entry was gained through the front door.

Dog Show Is Saturday

Five trophies and plenty of ribbons will be awarded in the Kids' Dog Show of Sidewalk Days in Arlington Heights Saturday Morning, Aug. 1, at the Cultural Center site, just south of the library.

Any youngster is welcome to enter his dog in the contest by simply showing up at 9:30 a.m. to register. The contest will start at 10 a.m.

First place trophies to be awarded to winners in each of five divisions are currently on display in the window of Arlington Heights News Agency at 5 W. Campbell. Ribbons for second and third places will be given. Participation ribbons will also be given to each dog owner.

Divisions of the contest include smallest dog, largest dog, best tricks, best costume and best of show. Special award of a transistor radio will also be given the Best of Show winner.

Contest chairman is Herbert Semper of Hoffman Estates, obedience judge of the American Kennel Club. He is a past president and director of Lincolnwood Dog Training Club.

Judges include Bob Frisk, sports editor of Paddock Publications; Max Mayrer, secretary of Harris Coffee Club; and Hank Sygnator, project engineer of Shakeproof division of Illinois Tool Works.

Film Library Available

The Arlington Heights Memorial Library has a collection of 8 mm., super 8 mm. and 16mm. films which it loans out to library patrons for the period of a week.

The film collection includes comedies by Charlie Chaplin, Laurel and Hardy, Abbott and Costello, the Little Rascals, the Keystone Cops and the Three Stooges.

Films by movie greats such as John Wayne, Omar Sharif, Tom Mix, William S. Hart, Lillian Gish and Pearl White are also included in the collection.

Although some of the movies have soundtracks, most are silent films with subtitles.

The library has documentary films on the space program and historical events such as the Battle of Britain.

In addition to the movie collection, the library offers a wide selection of slides and records. The slides cover subjects ranging from art and history to documentaries and travelogues.

The record collection includes fairytales and music for children, opera music, Broadway and movie music and folk music.

The albums of John Gary, Ed Ames, Perry Como, Woody Guthrie, and Ray Charles can be found in the popular music section.

No Counter; No Cop Agent Vote

The election of a bargaining agent to represent Palatine patrolmen in negotiations with the village was called off yesterday when a State Labor Department representative failed to show up at police headquarters.

The state official was scheduled to count the votes.

Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun said the election would be re-scheduled for next week. The exact date will be determined after he talks to Arthur Lovy, an attorney representing the Cook County Police Association, and the State office, Braun said.

A letter had been sent to the state informing it that the election was scheduled, Braun said. Yesterday when he called the State Labor department he was told that the letter could not be found, he said. Braun said he had followed the instructions the state had given him to get a representative out to Palatine.

When the policemen vote, it will be on three alternatives. The first is whether they want to be represented by the Cook County Police Association. The second is if they want to be represented by the Palatine Patrolmen's association, which is unaffiliated with the county group. The third alternative will give the patrolmen a chance to say they do not wish to be represented by either of the two groups.

A number of patrolmen who originally joined the Palatine patrolmen's group, now say it is the Cook County group. Braun said that it was included on the ballot to give patrolmen an alternative to the county unit.

The patrolmen say all but two or three of the 26 patrolmen have affiliated themselves with the county group.

Entire Town Project Told

CHICAGO UPI—A joint venture to create a new town in Lake County, Ill., at a cost of $250 million was announced Monday by developers of the project.

A spokesman said the venture is being undertaken by Sears, Roebuck and Co.; Mafco, Inc., a subsidiary of Marshall Field & Co.; and Urban Investment and Development Co., a subsidiary of Aetna Life and Casualty.

The site for New Century Town is located 30 miles north of Chicago, and construction is scheduled to begin next year, the spokesman said.

The project will be built in two stages. The first stage will be a commercial center and will require about 18 months to construct.

Sears and Field's will have major stores in the center when it opens. Leasing agent for the center will be Draper and Kramer, Inc.

The second stage will include a regional town center, residential neighborhoods, schools, recreation area and research development centers.

The town is expected to provide facilities for a population of 15,000 to 18,000.

Migrants Aided By District 15 Program

by MARGE FERROLI

The plight of the nation's one million migrant workers was recently given national recognition because of Senate subcommittee hearings last week concerning the conditions endured by these farm laborers and poverty workers.

A national news magazine reported Walter F. Mondale, committee chairman, as concluding that the conditions of life among migrants are "undoubtedly the worst in America today."

But action and not merely promises has been taken in dealing with the situation of the migrant worker here in the Palatine and Rolling Meadows area.

IN AN EFFORT to improve the educational level and possibly enhance the life style of the children of migrant workers, Elementary School Dist. 15 has expanded its summer program for migrant children, primarily with the aid of a $13,000 grant from the federal government.

The money, which came out of an amendment to the Title I program providing aid to culturally and financially deprived children, allowed the staff of the program to expand it to a six-week, five days a week, 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. program.

The number of students involved in this summer's program has also increased over last year's enrollment. Last week there were 39 regular children participating in the lower grade activities and 43 in the upper grade. Last year approximately 70 children were helped through the program during the full school year.

"Getting the kids in the program was not much of a problem this year," Virginia Tolk, coordinator of the Title I program, said because of the "tremendous grapevine" the migrants have.

ANOTHER METHOD for spreading the word about the program was through the staff itself. "Throughout the program each migrant family participating in it will be visited at least once by staff members," Miss Tolk said. The informal visits help maintain a personal contact with parents to emphasize the need for their children to be in school.

The staff also encourages parents to attend the weekly field trips the students take. In the past weeks visits to the Old Graue Mill in Oakbrook, Brookfield Zoo, River Trails Nature Center, the Chicago Tribune, O'Hare Airport and bi-weekly visits to the Palatine Public Library were made.

According to Miss Tolk, the four certified instructors in the program plan their weekly teaching units around the field trips to incorporate information from them.

Because the children come from varying backgrounds, some having attended school previously and some not, the development of weekly teaching plans has been quite difficult, Miss Tolk said.

"All work in the migrant program is geared to the individual success level of each child," she said, explaining that dividing the children between upper and lower grades is more a means of keeping the children within their own age groups rather than in a particular educational level.

The classroom instructors themselves came to the program with a wide range of teaching experience and are "carefully selected," Miss Tolk said. The summer staff consists of two men and two women (one of whom speaks fluent Spanish), one teacher's aide for each of the two classrooms and one class room assistant. The classroom assistant, who is a migrant parent, has been extremely helpful this summer in interpreting for the instructors, Miss Tolk said.

THE MOST IMPORTANT thing the children learn during the summer session is not the regular A, B, C's and numbers of school work but the values basic to a different life style. They are fed different foods than they're accustomed to eating, such as chop suey or a "tuna treat," and are also taught basic hygiene rules and health habits.

Preparing for meals is a major activity of each school day. Because the entire migrant child program is free to students children are provided two meals each day. Although lunch is cooked for them they must make breakfast themselves.

Each morning when the children arrive in a District 15 school bus, they prepare their own oatmeal which was donated to the program by the Quaker Oats

Co. They wash their hands, boil water for the oatmeal and learn about the finer points of preparing meals and balancing diets.

After breakfast, each child is required to brush his teeth with his own toothbrush and tooth past provided to him. Next they attend to the normal activities of the school day, whether it's a field trip, arts and crafts, project reading development or outdoor recreation. Instruction is done through the team teaching method.

IN PREPARATION for lunch, the children again wash their hands and listen to an instructor explain what each food is they are about to eat. They then file to the cafeteria where they are served the hot meal on trays.

After lunch, the instructional or recreational program continues until it's time for the children to depart.

Learning routine is one of the more valuable contributions of the program and the children really seem to enjoy it. Even the daily chores of brushing their

The village board was debating what to re-name Williams Drive between Clark and Whitcomb Monday night. Someone mentioned that the street was only a block long and it was difficult to find block long streets. "Why would anybody want to find it," quipped Trustee Wendell Jones, "nobody lives there."

The board finally named that part of Williams Drive Jane Adams Drive. "Have we got a street sign long enough," asked Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun.

Village Trustee Clayton W. Brown characterized the residents of Inverness as being against low income housing when informed of their less than enthusiastic response to a townhouse proposal. The townhouses will cost $45,000 to $65,000.

The residents of Pine Street between Glencoe and Kenilworth are planning a block party Aug. 9 at 2 p.m. Residents from Cedar Street are also slated to take part in the bash.

A number of workers in downtown Palatine buy cold cuts at the Sanitary Market at 49 W. Slade during the noon hour and rolls at the Palatine Pastry Shop, 37 W. Slade. By one report, they're trying to convince the grocery owners to open a delicatessen.

College Survey Of Grads Taken

Fremd High School guidance counselors have recently compiled a comparison between the classes of 1968, 1969 and 1970 as to what percentage of the grads go on to college.

This year's percentage of grads going to college was slightly lower than last year's report showed. Out of 376 grads 67 per cent went on to an institution of higher education. In 1969 this percentage was 70, and in 1968 the figure was once again 67 per cent.

Breaking these figures down into male and female grads, the percentage of boys going on to college was greater. Out of the 191 boys who graduated this past June, 72 per cent have enrolled in a college or university. Last year the percentage was the same with only 155 males graduating, and in 1968, when 199 boys graduated from Fremd High, 75 per cent went on to continue their education.

Out of 185 girls who just graduated from Fremd, 62 per cent have enrolled in college. Last year the percentage was higher, 67, when the total number of girls graduating, 179, was lower. And in 1968 the report shows that 60 per cent of the 144 female grads went on to a college or a university.

Of these grads, the percentage going to a four-year public or state school has decreased from 40 to 35 per cent over the three year period.

ON THE OTHER hand, the percentage of these grads attending 4-year private institutions has increased from 29 per cent in 1968 to 31 per cent in 1970.

One factor that seems to have remained fairly constant has been the percentage of grads going to junior colleges. In 1968, the percentage was 32, in 1969 it was 29, and in 1970 it was back up to 32 per cent.

And even though more and more is being said about vocational education in educational circles today, the percentage of those who attended trade or technical schools has remained considerably low. Only eight students over the three-year period have gone on to vocational trade schools. And for the same period of time, only six students have enrolled in hospital nursing schools.

And the last factor shown in the report deals with the percentage of students attending colleges or universities out of Illinois. The percentage has risen from 28 in 1968 to 32 in 1969 to 33 in 1970.

Rolling Meadows Rapped; Academy Could Be Moved

The future of the Sidewalk Academy in Rolling Meadows is dim, according to the man who has helped bring speakers to the lecture series.

In an indictment of the city, yesterday Clyde Brooks said the "overwhelming apathy and indifference" of the community to the series may mean it will be moved to another location. Brooks, who heads Educational Laboratories in Elk Grove is also a manpower director in the county Office of Economic Opportunity.

Brooks said the decision to move the academy will be made on the basis of the attendance. He did not say where the academy might be moved. The present location is Sacred Heart of Mary High School at 2800 Central Rd.

"I feel the concept," of the academy, "to promote community education is desirable," Brooks said. "We have speakers that will appeal to the ultra-right, liberals and moderates."

"But for some reason," he continued, "the community has not seen fit to support this concept of community education."

Attendance at two of the first three sessions was less than 50 people. Over 100 people showed up to hear representatives of the Black Panther party.

Brooks said that there has been a "noticeable absence of ministers, of educators and of civic organization representatives."

BROOKS THEN leveled a blast at Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland J. Meyer saying he refused to be involved in the academy because he felt that criminals were participating in the series. This is not the case, Brooks said.

Meyer's comments constituted "program slander that is not in the best interests of a free and open society," Brooks said.

"I just can't see how people can be so indifferent and draw conclusions based on mis-information," said Brooks.

The purpose of the academy, he said, is to provide opposing points of view so people can "make up their own minds about positions they want to take."

Brooks said he knew what to expect from the people he called the "ultra right" but was depressed "with the liberal who professes so many things in rhetorical terms, but who is absent from ac-

Cemetery Cleanup Needs Support

The second session of the Greeley Street cemetery cleanup will be held Saturday at 9 a.m.

The Palatine Jaycee sponsored project still needs help to right the tombstones and clean out weeds. About 30 people took part in the cleanup last week.

The Boy Scouts and representatives from PEP, Pollution and Environmental Problems, in addition to a number of young people will take part.

activities designed to help man understand his fellow man.

"If the community does not want to support this type of program, there are other communities that want it," he said.

The academy, he said, is now in debt. "We had hoped to raise money for a drug abuse program for the young people," Brooks said. "Lord knows, we need it out here."

The lack of interest in the Sidewalk Academy, he said, may be part of a larger "mental health" problem in the Northwest suburban area.

THIS PROBLEM is illustrated by the attitude of many people toward low income housing in the area, the attitudes of people who speak different languages, have different skin color and different religion, he said.

Part of the problem may be seen in what Brooks called the "increase in the number of alcoholics" and increasing "drug dependency."

Brooks said people may be staying away from the academy because they feel "threatened." These "insecure" people, he said, are afraid that "some of the speakers represent an illness that can be communicated."

Tonight's speaker, the Rev. George Clements, Brooks described as a "dynamic personality, the kind of Christian we need more of in society."

Rev. Clements was the kind of "activist Jesus Christ was all about," Brooks said.

He will be speaking on "Jesus Christ, the Revolutionary." The program starts at 8 p.m. Admission is $1.50 for students and $2 for adults.

G.I.: Korea Is Waste Of Time

Editor's Note: Early this month, First Lt. Jim Wolf returned home to Rolling Meadows on leave from the Army. After 13 months in South Korea, Wolf today discusses the necessity of American involvement. This is the last of a three-part series.

by MIKE KLEIN

American military involvement in South Korea is a waste of men, money and time, concludes First Lt. Jim Wolf of Rolling Meadows after 13 months in the country.

"They don't really need the U.S. forces there but it's a bulwark in their propaganda. It looks good to have U.S. troops taking care of 10 per cent of the DMZ (Demilitarized Zone) and 10 per cent of all their defense."

Wolf said the 60,000 American troops are "sitting around playing games."

Very few are engaged in combat. Most are support troops. And because of this, "We're not irreplaceable. The ROK (Republic of Korea) troops are just as good."

"The ROK army soldiers are one of the best troops in Vietnam. The U.S. troops don't even come close," Wolf said.

"The Koreans live a much tougher life and they're just tougher people. And they're fighting for their own country. The American troops don't really care. It's just a way to spend 13 months."

An American military advisory program and modernization of South Korean equipment would be more productive, Wolf said.

"That's what the U.S. is working for — save some of our men by modernizing their army so we don't have our troops over there. But I don't think the Koreans want to buy that now."

Even though Wolf said another major Korean war is unlikely, "It irritates many people that the Republic of Korea is spending so little of its gross national product on its army."

"THEY SPEND HALF of what we spend in Korea and here we're giving them aid and they're not even spending what we spend."

The South Korean economy is boosting five to 10 per cent annually, Wolf said.

"These increases indicate they're well on the way to standing on their own feet."

"It's really just a matter of cutting ties with the United States. You're going to have to force the Koreans to get used to not having U.S. troops there."

During his 13 months in Korea, Wolf was not impressed with the country.

"The common soldier doesn't seem to get much out of it. The most contact he gets with the Korean people is either driving on the streets — and that's a terrible experience because Koreans are horrible drivers — or secondly, contact with Koreans in the villages and then all they want to do is sell you something."

Wolf said the average American soldier sees only "... the bad parts of Korea. But if he's lucky enough to get stationed around Seoul, then he's in a pretty good cultural area."

But the expense of American men and money continues. Even programs to help the Korean people are sometimes hampered.

The U. S. Army constructs blacktop roads north of Seoul.

Then winter comes and "... the people need something to burn in their stoves so they start chopping up the roads," Wolf said.

"You're trying to help them out by paving their roads and they're just stabbing you in the back by taking the asphalt."

It's not hard to understand why Wolf may be disenchanted with Korea. It's easy to see why he says, "I've been there. I don't need it anymore."

Loyola Awards Advance Degree

Walter J. Molo, Jr.

A Palatine father of three was recently awarded a doctoral degree in education by Loyola University.

Walter J. Molo Jr., of 651 E. Meadow Lane, the superintendent of West Northfield School District 31 in Northbrook, received the degree last month.

Dr. Molo wrote his dissertation on "Effectiveness of Student Activism Upon Decision-Making of Selected Suburban Elementary School Superintendents." He has been superintendent of District 31 since 1961.

He received a bachelor's degree in physical education in 1948 and a master's degree in education in 1949 from the University of Illinois. He served in the Army from 1943 to 1954.

From 1950 to 1951, Molo was director of boys physical education at Rochelle High School in Rochelle. From 1951 to 1954, he served as physical education and science instructor in Berkely, Illinois School District 87.

In 1954, he was appointed principal of Eugene Field Elementary School in Berkely and was principal of Whittier Elementary School in Northlake from 1958 to 1962.

He and his wife, Patricia, have three daughters, Kathryn, 16, Gayle, 14 and Jill, 13.

Teen Vote Alters Pattern?

by ED MURNANE

(A News Analysis)

Substantial changes in voting patterns in the Northwest suburbs may result if 18, 19 and 20-year-olds are allowed to vote in future elections.

Although court tests have not yet upheld the constitutionality of the new voting laws, tomorrow is the first day for the younger citizens to register for the franchise.

If the courts uphold the expanded voting franchise, which was passed by Congress and signed by President Nixon, the new voters will be eligible to vote in federal, state and local elections beginning Jan. 1, 1971.

Based on U. S. census figures for 1960, the 18 to 21 group will represent less than 10 per cent of the voting population nationwide. In Illinois, 7.3 per cent of the voting population would be under 21.

However, if the younger voters show a more concerned attitude toward the fran-outline will eventually become a drawing of herself when Lupe fills the outline in with clothes and paints her features on the face. The self-portrait will hang with the others already done on the hall walls of Sanborn Elementary School.

Migrants Aided By District 15

teeth and washing their hands are valued by the children.

When a teacher might forget to have them wash up, the children almost in unison quickly remind him, Mrs. Tolk said.

Because of poor educational records kept on migrant children, the program's teachers do not really know where to begin their instruction, Miss Tolk said. The children, whose ages range from four to 14, have such diverse backgrounds that normal course work is virtually impossible to initiate.

To help alleviate this problem of missing records, the federal government introduced this year the Migrant Student Transfer Form, a document to be filled out at each school a child attends to show his educational development. Although this form is still in the experimental stage, the concept is essential and has helped, in this summer's program, Miss Tolk said.

DESPITE THE increasing enrollment in the migrant program, District 15 schools are serving "only one-fourth of the Spanish-American people in this area," Miss Tolk said. As the program becomes more well known to migrants in the area, it should reach more of them each year. But like anything else, the program can't expand without more funds.

The scheduled appearance today of representatives from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Washington, D.C. and the Office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction to look over the migrant children program at the Sanborn School may perhaps have some influence on the future finances of the program.

However, as long as there is some money available, the program will continue to aid as many migrant children it can handle.

Residents Object To Townhouses

Palatine based developer Lewis F. Draper, Jr., took his plans for townhouses costing from $45,000 to $65,000 to Inverness Tuesday night and received a chilly reception.

The Inverness Plan Commission held a hearing on a request by Draper to disannex a 300 foot parcel of land paralleling Roselle Road.

Residents objected to the townhouses because they felt it would open the door to apartments in the village and hurt the value of their homes and property. Inverness consists only of homes and is billed as "The Village with a Heritage."

Draper wants the land dis-annexed so it could be then annexed to Palatine which, it is hoped, will provide the water and sewer facilities for his townhouse development.

A. T. McIntosh and Co. owns a 16 acre parcel of land at the northeast corner of Palatine and Roselle road on which Draper wants to build the project. The property is bounded on the north about on a line with the driveway into the Inverness Country Club, on the east by Marion Jordan School on the south by Palatine road and on the west by Roselle Road.

Way Thompson, vice president and treasurer of the McIntosh firm, introduced Draper to the crowd of about 100 people in the Community field House saying the proposed development is "a much needed facility."

Draper described the condominium development as containing small cluster housing with two to four houses per building. The buildings will be one and two stories, he said, and contain from 1,500 to 2,000 square feet.

A TOTAL OF 54 units is proposed, he said, which means the density of the project will be 3.6 units per acre.

By building at this spot, Draper said, the townhouses will be isolated from the main area of Inverness but would not be far from the center of activity.

Draper said he had looked into the possibility of keeping the site in Inverness but that the cost of water and sewage facilities does not make that economically feasible.

He said he was asking for the dis-annexation "only because we have a need for sewer and water" facilities.

One resident charged that Draper was asking for a "warping" of the village's master plan because it called for "gradual increments of zoning" at the edges of the village.

Draper said if the firm had the ability to develop the project in the county they would do it, or do it in Inverness but it would cost six times as much to install private sewage facilities.

"Why should we worry what your cast is?" asked one resident. "It's your economic problem."

Draper said he could run roads across the 300 foot strip of land if the village did not want to annex it. If the request is denied, he told the group, "we're not going to war with Inverness."

A REPORT WAS given of a telephone poll conducted by the McIntosh firm in which 62 of 67 people contacted said they were in favor of the concept of townhouses. Names were chosen because it was believed the residents would be susceptible to the idea, it was explained.

Residents said they feared that by allowing the townhouses to be built a "precedent" would be set. They also said they wanted to protect their investments in the village.

Thompson then answered an anonymous letter circulated in the village raising questions about the development.

The loss of the land, he said, will mean less than five per cent of the total tax bill. The land is not suitable for single family dwellings, he said, and Palatine has the same building control as Inverness.

"If you think we would do anything to damage this property (the village)," Thompson said, "I can't understand it."

He called the proposed project "the highest and best use of the land."

Village officials promised to investigate the situation further and report back to their constituents.

YMCA Has Two Camp Openings

Openings are now available for two Countryside YMCA day camp programs which will be held in the middle of August, according to Herman Hertog, executive director.

There are currently 25 openings for boys and girls ages 6 through 11 at Camp Countryside II, which is located at Lake Duncan near Volo, Ill.

At Camp Countryside, III, which is located in Deer Grove Forest Preserve, there are 5 openings for children between the ages of four and six.

Camp Countryside II will be held from Aug. 10 to Aug. 21, and Camp Countryside III runs from Aug. 11 to Aug. 21. Bus transportation is included in the fee.

Registrations can now be made at the YMCA Leadership Center, 115 W. Johnson St., Palatine, or by contacting the "Y" at 359-2400, Hertog said.

Budget Hearing Set For Monday

A public hearing on the 1970-71 Palatine Park District's budget will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 3, in the Palatine Village Hall, according to Rex McMorris, director of parks and recreation.

DRAKE GRADUATES

Drake University awarded undergraduate degrees to two Palatine students during commencement ceremonies May 31.

Susan E. Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Davis of 1050 Kilson Drive, received a bachelor of arts degree, majoring in history.

Douglas S. Fulford, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Fulford of 145 S. Elmwood, received a B.A. degree from the College of Liberal Arts, majoring in biology. He is a 1966 graduate of Palatine High School.

Bridge Work Is Possible

Now that we are nearly past that "knee-high in July" time, many Palatine residents are enjoying corn on the cob, except for those who are, for one reason or another, toothless.

And for years dentists have told patients who are missing certain teeth that fixed bridge work cannot be installed. A local dentist, however, has recently returned from a post-graduate course in New York which helped him and others to overcome this age old barrier.

The dentist declined identification because his professional ethics prohibit him from engaging in any practice resembling advertising.

He did feel, however, that residents should know that permanent bridgework can now be installed on patients who were previously unable to receive such dental work thanks to a relatively simple 45-minute operation.

A device called a blade-vent implant is inserted in the bone underlying the gums. The blade then serves as an anchor or post for fastening bridge work, he explained.

All bridgework of this sort can be done only if "abutment teeth are present," he said. They serve as the tie between the gums and the bridge.

Normally, one's natural teeth serve as this abutment. People without these teeth, therefore, have been unable to have bridgework installed.

The blades, then, serve as artificial abutments, enabling patients to have bridges installed, he said. Work of this sort has been nearly 100 per cent successful during the three years this practice has been used by dentists.

chise than do their elders, the 7.3 per cent in Illinois could be increased to as much as 30 per cent of the total votes cast.

In the four Northwest suburban townships of Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg, for example, the new voting laws could send as many as 16,000 new voters to the polls — if they register.

THAT FIGURE is based on the number of graduates from three high schools in Palatine-Schaumburg Dist. 211, six high schools in Dist. 214, and St. Viator and Sacred Heart High Schools, since 1967.

Most students who graduated in 1967 will become 21 years old this year and the 1970 high school classes consisted of students who will reach their 18th birthdays this year.

Based on the past voting performances of their parents, the younger people could definitely change the outcome of elections in this area if they bother to register and vote.

That's a question that won't be answered until the first election is held. Voters between 21 and 25, who have had the franchise all along, have one of the poorest voting records, indicating that the novelty of voting is considered just that — a novelty and not a responsibility.

But the figures showing poor turnout by the 21 to 25 group are based on elections held during the 1960s, before the flurry of campus disorders and before the increased involvement in political campaigns by young people began.

If the new involvement by college-age students is indicative of civic concern, then the 18 to 21 group could have a substantially better voting record than their elders and could dramatically affect the outcome of future elections.

IN LAST YEAR'S 13th Congressional District Republican primary election, for example, only 29,000 voters cast ballots in the four Northwest suburban townships — despite the fact that the election to fill the vacant congressional seat was one of the most widely publicized elections in years.

Eight Republican candidates crisscrossed the area for five months during the summer and early fall and newspapers and radio and television stations gave more coverage to the race than they do for anything but major state and national races.

Yet only 20 per cent of the voters went to the polls and the race was determined by a slim margin of 2,100 votes.

Had 16,000 additional voters been eligible and only 20 per cent voted, there would have been 3,200 more votes cast — enough to change the outcome.

And since the younger voters probably would have been less conservative than their elders, chances are good that they would not have supported conservative Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th, who won the Republican nomination in the primary.

Crane, incidentally, opposed the new voting age.

An even greater potential for changing the outcome of an election would have existed in last year's Third District Constitutional Convention primary in which 16 candidates sought the four nominations for delegate seats at the convention.

FEWER THAN 10,000 voters turned out for that election in the four townships.

If the 18, 19 and 20 year olds had been able to vote, they possibly could have cast more votes than their elders did and, since there were several Con-Con candidates in their 20s and early 30s, the results may have been substantially different.

The key to the influence that will be wielded by the new voters is the number who register. If the younger voters are as interested in voting as President Nixon said they were when he signed the law, then election results may be determined by 18, 19 and 20-year-olds.

But in some areas, there is likely to be a backlash effect by the older voters. Conservatives generally do not favor a lower voting age and the prospect of giving teenagers a voice in electing public officials may be the spark the older voters need to improve their own voting performance.

Laymen To Give Sermons

In the absence of the Rev. Stanley Tozer, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Palatine, 800 E. Palatine Rd., five laymen will deliver the sermons for the month of August at the 10 a.m. service.

On Aug. 2, Theodore Ake, 4218 Wilson, Rolling Meadows, will deliver an address entitled "The Fourth Servant." Ake's talk will deal with man's responsibility to his environment. He will be assisted in scripture reading and prayer by his son, Theodore Ake, Jr.

The Aug. 9 service will feature Robert Ferguson, 1714 E. Jonquil, Arlington Heights, who will speak on "The Human Side of the Ledger." Ferguson will be assisted by Gary Price, 1819 N. Mitchell, Arlington Heights, in his address on Christian ethics and business.

On Aug. 16, Roy Schellenger, 1508 Gloria, Palatine, will speak on the church's relationship with a transient society. He will be assisted by Harvey

Garoutte, 152 Dean Dr., Palatine.

The Aug. 23 service will be delivered by Milford Castrodale, 611 N. Whitcomb, Palatine. Assisting him with his talk on the response to God entitled "Micah Tells It Like It Is," will be Marvin Olsberg, 1130 E. Pratt Dr., Palatine.

On Aug. 31, Leonard Murrans, 939 Ventura Dr., Palatine, will be backed up by James Groat, 529 N. Clark Dr., Palatine, in an address dealing with service commitment to church and God and called "Are Your Premiums Paid Up?"

Each of the speakers are members of the Session, the governing body of the Presbyterian Church of Palatine. "All also have a wide background in both business, church and civic affairs, and therefore we are looking forward to a month of thoughtful expression of the laymen's relationship to his church," says Gorgon L. McLean, a member of the local church.

Architect Choice Narrowed

Members of the Countryside YMCAs board of directors are getting closer to selecting an architect for a Y-facility in Palatine and setting the building phase of their development program on its way.

Herman Hertog, executive director, said Wednesday that "Y" officials have met with two firms and will select one next Monday to be reviewed for final approval by the executive board.

The firms interviewed have been the Metropolitan YMCA of Chicago's architectural and engineering office, and the National YMCA's building and furnishing service.

"We feel it is very necessary that we have YMCA consultation of this matter," Hertog said, referring to the building of a Y-facility at the corners of Northwest Highway, Baldwin and Colfax Roads by 1972.

Even though one of these YMCA firms will be selected, "we still could retain the services of a local architect who would work under the direction of whichever firm is selected," Hertog said.

Cop Negotiations Reach Stalemate

Negotiations have stalemated in the Wheeling police sick-in, and Illinois State Police remain on duty in the village. No major crimes have been reported since the "sick-in" by 15 Wheeling Policemen began last Friday.

Last night at Herald deadline, 21 persons were waiting in the Wheeling council chambers for the village board to come out of executive session. Among the members of the audience who waited for board action were wives of ten Wheeling policemen.

The board went immediately into executive session at the beginning of the meeting at 7 p.m. last night. A letter from the Wheeling Jaycees was distributed to the board members but not read aloud.

Village officials have announced that talks with the policemen through the police chief will resume as soon as the 15 men "comply with the law" by returning to work.

Sgt. Gene Wolf, Wheeling chapter president of the Cook County Police Assn., said Tuesday that as far as the police are concerned "everything in this world is negotiable."

Wolf said that "channels of communication are in fact tightly closed" at the present time.

The Wheeling Jaycees sent a statement to the board asking that legal actions against the policemen be dropped. The Jaycees urged policemen to return to work immediately if the board dropped the suit against them. The called for public meetings to resolve issues with arbitration or mediation after a 10-day period.

Although the village had a court injunction issued Monday against the 15 "sick" policemen, none of the policemen has been served with a copy of it. The injunction ordered the policemen to either report back to work immediately or to a doctor in the Buffalo Grove Medical Center by 2 p.m. Tuesday. The policemen did not comply with the court order.

CCPA activities in other suburbs include the settlement of a sick-in in Skokie. In Waukegan 61 patrolmen involved in a sick-in there were suspended.

In Des Plaines, city officials were re-examining an ordinance recognizing the CCPA as a bargaining agent for that city's patrolmen in view of the current strikes in Wheeling and Waukegan.

In Palatine, policemen were scheduled to vote on CCPA membership yesterday but the vote was held up by the absence of election examiners.

'Survival Kits' Launched

A program to educate newcomers in the Northwest suburban area about health and safety services was launched here yesterday by Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

The program includes the visits by 35 local representatives to homes of new families in the area. Each family will be given a special kind of survival kit containing health and safety information geared to local resources that can be called on in emergencies.

The survival kits will be distributed to residents in Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village, Prospect Heights, Palatine and Rolling Meadows.

"We're distributing the kits to new residents first," said Miss Eleanor Brennan, a member of the company's community health department, "because it is people who are on the move who have the most trouble finding medical information when they get into a new community, so we're trying to help them."

THE KITS, WHICH will also be available at the company's local office at 420 Lee St., Des Plaines, includes information on where to contact a physician or obtain an ambulance in case of emergency, what to do in case of accidental poisoning, where to get first aid training, and how to insure blood credit for one year.

They also contain a safety guide for teen-age babysitters, instruction for mouth-to-mouth rescue breathing, an emergency medical information card, a first aid wall chart and a picture primer on health and safety standards.

According to Miss Brennan all the information was prepared by Metropolitan Life in cooperation with the Chicago Medical Society for Cook County.

"The Cook County Medical Association," explained Miss Brennan, "was our source of approach to the area because they're well aware of all the medical facilities which are available to people. The company is constantly involved with national medical associations because the company has been involved with medical emergency programs for many years."

Miss Brennan said, "people should review the materials and then put the various cards, guides and illustrations in the parts of the house where they would be used the most. For instance, she said, "the first aid card should be pasted to the medicine cabinet and the list of emergency phone numbers should be kept near the phone."

Miss Brennan said she is confident the program will be well accepted by residents. "We've started the program in other areas and the people have been very happy with it. We've gotten many letters and phone calls thanking us."

The kit should be distributed to all newcomers within the next three to five months. After that the kits will be given to other Des Plaines area residents.

PTY-Which?

One of the most confusing things in Palatine seems to be keeping the Palatine Township Youth Organization (PTYO) and the Palatine Township Youth Committee PTYC straight.

In Wednesday's Herald a reference was made to Emerson Thomas of the PTYO in an article headlined "Drug Info Center to Be Established."

It should have read, Emerson Thomas, executive director of the Palatine Township Youth Committee (PTYC).

'Y' To Host New Zealand Visitor

Brian J. Robb of New Plymouth, New Zealand, will be the guest of the Countryside YMCA in Palatine Aug. 6, 7, and 8, said Herman Hertog, executive director.

Robb is the president of the Wise Men's Club in his hometown and will be staying with members of the Countryside Wise Men's Club, a men's service organization of the YMCA.

Robb is stopping off in Palatine as one of several spots he will visit on a tour of the United States. He is coming from Denmark where the international convention of Wise Men was recently held.

Brooks Raps City; Academy to Move?

The future of the Sidewalk Academy in Rolling Meadows is dim, according to the man who has helped bring speakers to the lecture series.

In an indictment of the city, yesterday Clyde Brooks said the "overwhelming apathy and indifference" of the community to the series may mean it will be moved to another location. Brooks, who heads Educational Laboratories in Elk Grove is also a manpower director in the county Office of Economic Opportunity.

Brooks said the decision to move the academy will be made on the basis of the attendance. He did not say where the academy might be moved. The present location is Sacred Heart of Mary High School at 2800 Central Rd.

"I feel the concept," of the academy, "to promote community education is desirable," Brooks said. "We have speakers that will appeal to the ultra-right, liberals and moderates."

"But for some reason," he continued, "the community has not seen fit to support this concept of community education."

Attendance at two of the first three sessions was less than 50 people. Over 100 people showed up to hear representatives of the Black Panther party.

Brooks said that there has been a "noticeable absence of ministers, of educators and of civic organization representatives."

BROOKS THEN leveled a blast at Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland J. Meyer saying he refused to be involved in the academy because he felt that criminals were participating in the series. This is not the case, Brooks said.

Meyer's comments constituted "program slander that is not in the best interests of a free and open society," Brooks said.

"I just can't see how people can be so indifferent and draw conclusions based on mis-information," said Brooks.

The purpose of the academy, he said, is to provide opposing points of view so people can "make up their own minds about positions they want to take."

Brooks said he knew what to expect from the people he called the "ultra right" but was depressed "with the liberal who professes so many things in rhetorical terms, but who is absent from activities designed to help man understand his fellow man."

"If the community does not want to support this type of program, there are other communities that want it," he said.

The academy, he said, is now in debt. "We had hoped to raise money for a drug abuse program for the young people," Brooks said. "Lord knows, we need it out here."

The lack of interest in the Sidewalk Academy, he said, may be part of a larger "mental health" problem in the Northwest suburban area.

THIS PROBLEM IS illustrated by the attitude of many people toward low income housing in the area, the attitudes of people who speak different languages have different skin color and different religion, he said.

Part of the problem may be seen in what Brooks called the "increase in the number of alcoholics" and increasing "drug dependency."

Brooks said people may be staying away from the academy because they feel "threatened." These "insecure" people, he said, are afraid that "some of the speakers represent an illness that can be communicated."

Tonight's speaker, the Rev. George Clements, Brooks described as a "dynamic personality, the kind of Christian we need more of in society."

Rev. Clements was the kind of "activist Jesus Christ was all about," Brooks said.

He will be speaking on "Jesus Christ, the Revolutionary." The program starts at 8 p.m. Admission is $1.50 for students and $2 for adults.

Cemetery Cleanup Needs Support

The second session of the Greeley Street cemetery cleanup will be held Saturday at 9 a.m.

The Palatine Jaycee sponsored project still needs help to right the tombstones and clean out weeds. About 30 people took part in the cleanup last week.

The Boy Scouts and representatives from PEP, Pollution and Environmental Problems, in addition to a number of young people will take part.

Young people participating in the cleanup are slated to visit the St. Louis Cardinals football team at their training site at Lake Forest College.

Migrant Children Get Aid

by MARGE FERROLI

The plight of the nation's one million migrant workers was recently given national recognition because of Senate subcommittee hearings last week concerning the conditions endured by these farm laborers and poverty workers.

A national news magazine reported Walter F. Mondale, committee chairman, as concluding that the conditions of life among migrants are "undoubtedly the worst in America today."

But action and not merely promises has been taken in dealing with the situation of the migrant worker here in the Palatine and Rolling Meadows area.

IN AN EFFORT TO improve the educational level and possibly enhance the life style of the children of migrant workers, Elementary School Dist. 15 has expanded its summer program for migrant children, primarily with the aid of a $13,000 grant from the federal government.

The money, which came out of an amendment to the Title I program providing aid to culturally and financially deprived children, allowed the staff of the program to expand it to a six-week, five days a week, 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. program.

The number of students involved in this summer's program has also increased over last year's enrollment. Last week there were 39 regular children participating in the lower grade activities and 43 in the upper grade. Last year approximately 70 children were helped through the program during the full school year.

"Getting the kids in the program was not much of a problem this year," Virginia Tolk, coordinator of the Title I program, said because of the "tremendous grapevine" the migrants have.

ANOTHER METHOD for spreading the word about the program was through the staff itself. "Throughout the program each migrant family participating in it will be visited at least once by staff members," Miss Tolk said. The informal visits help maintain a personal contact with parents to emphasize the need for their children to be in school.

The staff also encourages parents to attend the weekly field trips the students take. In the past weeks visits to the Old Graue Mill in Oakbrook, Brookfield Zoo, River Trails Nature Center, the Chicago Tribune, O'Hare Airport and bi-weekly visits to the Palatine Public Library were made.

According to Miss Tolk, the four certified instructors in the program plan their weekly teaching units around the field trip to incorporate information from them.

Because the children come from varying backgrounds, some having attended school previously and some not, the development of weekly teaching plans has been quite difficult, Miss Tolk said.

"All work in the migrant program is geared to the individual success level of each child," she said, explaining that dividing the children between upper and lower grades is more a means of keeping the children within their own age groups rather than in a particular educational level.

The classroom instructors themselves came to the program with a wide range of teaching experience and are "carefully selected," Miss Tolk said. The summer staff consists of two men and two women (one of whom speaks fluent Spanish), one teacher's aide for each of the two classrooms and one classroom assistant. The classroom assistant, who is a migrant parent, has been extremely helpful this summer in interpreting for the instructors, Miss Tolk said.

THE MOST IMPORTANT thing the children learn during the summer session is not the regular A, B, C's and numbers of school work but the values basic to a different life style. They are fed different foods than they're accustomed to eating, such as chop suey or a "tuna treat," and are also taught basic hygiene rules and health habits.

Preparing for meals is a major activity of each school day. Because the entire migrant child program is free to students children are provided two meals each day. Although lunch is cooked for them they must make breakfast themselves.

Each morning when the children arrive in a District 15 school bus, they prepare their own oatmeal which was donated to the program by the Quaker Oats Co. They wash their hands, boil water for the oatmeal and learn about the finer points of preparing meals and balancing diets.

After breakfast, each child is required to brush his teeth with his own toothbrush and tooth past provided to him. Next they attend to the normal activities of the school day, whether it's a field trip, arts and crafts, project reading development or outdoor recreation. Instruction is done through the team teaching method.

IN PREPARATION for lunch, the children again wash their hands and listen to an instructor explain what each food is they are about to eat. They then file to the cafeteria where they are served the hot meal on trays.

After lunch, the instructional or recreational program continues until it's time for the children to depart.

Learning routine is one of the more valuable contributions of the program and the children really seem to enjoy it. Even the daily chores of brushing their

ALD. STEVE EBERHARD had a particularly wide grin and buoyant stride when he came into the city council meeting in city hall Tuesday night... as a proud first-time grandfather. Robert Farber, Jr., son of Bob and Sharon Eberhard Farber, 3201 Algonquin Parkway, was born July 16 at Northwest Community Hospital, weighing in at 7 lbs., 6 oz.

PUBLIC WORKS employee Joe Papp won the first place trophy in the city officials' pistol shoot. "If we get the blue flu around here, we'll swear you in," Mayor Roland J. Meyer said as he handed him the trophy Tuesday night.

SECOND and third place winners in the pistol shoot were Ald. William Ahrens and City Mgr. James Watson. The public works department team had the highest team total in the shoot.

Garage Bids Are More Than Hoped

Bids for construction of an addition on the Rolling Meadows city garage on Central Road are higher than city officials had hoped for.

At a bid opening on the garage expansion Tuesday night, all bids were higher than the estimated $150,000 the city's architects thought the project would cost.

Six bids, ranging from $186,450 to $247,152, will be reviewed by the city council's streets, allies and utilities committee Monday night. The low bid was submitted to the city council by Bennett P. Trapani, a general contractor in Mount Prospect. Trapani was also the contractor on the city hall addition completed a year ago.

Besides opening bids for the garage expansion, the city council also agreed Tuesday night to buy the park district land the garage is located on from the Rolling Meadows Park District.

UNTIL THIS spring, the city's public works department and the park district had shared the building for offices and equipment storage space. The park district provided the land and the city built the garage.

Park district offices were moved in May to a house behind the post office in the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center to give the public works department more office space. The city had bought the house and gave it to the park district.

The city has also agreed to pay the park district $5,000 for the 1 1/2-acre piece of land on Central Road, though the park district will have an easement for vehicles from Central Road to the park property behind the city garage.

Park district vehicles used for maintaining park lands will still be stored in the city garage, according to the contract for the property sale between the city and the park district. If the city decides at any time that it does not need the land on which the garage is located or does not use the land for city activities, the land will be given back to the park district.

The additions the city is planning to put on the existing garage will include an expanded storage and work area at the back of the garage. Public works department offices will be moved to the west side of the garage and two overhead doors for city equipment will be installed on the front of the building, facing Central Road.

A wash rack to clean vehicles before they are parked in the garage will be added at the back of the building.

IN THE specifications for the addition to the city garage were four alternate proposals suggested by McCarthy-Hundrieser and Associates, architects for the city garage.

If the city is able to expand its police department facilities, the pistol range located on the east side of the city garage will be remodelled as a work area. City officials are still investigating the possibility of getting federal funds to expand the department.

A second alternative not included in the basic bid for expansion is a $10,000 sprinkler system for the garage. Elimination of the second floor of the office area on the west end and landscaping and extra paving outside the garage are the third and fourth alternatives. The first two alternatives would increase the cost by $17,000, the third and fourth would reduce the cost by about $30,000.

Sewing Contest Under Way

Entry blanks for the annual sewing contest sponsored by the Fabric World are now available at the store in the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center.

Deadline for entering the contest is August 17. Prizes will be awarded in each division: juniors, from 13 to 16-year-olds, seniors, from 17 to 21-year-olds and adults, 22 years and older.

Women will have the choice of entering one of three categories: dress, separates outfit and coat.

To enter the contest the girl must sew the entire garment herself with material from Fabric World and must model her own garment before judges and appear in a fashion show on August 29.

First prize in each group is a $50 gift certificate, second place is a $20 gift certificate and third is a $5 gift certificate.

G.I.: Korea Is Waste Of Time

Editor's Note: Early this month, First Lt. Jim Wolf returned home to Rolling Meadows to leave from the Army. After 13 months in South Korea, Wolf today discusses the necessity of American involvement. This is the last of a three-part series.

by MIKE KLEIN
American military involvement in South Korea is a waste of men, money and time, concludes First Lt. Jim Wolf of Rolling Meadows after 13 months in the country.

"They don't really need the U.S. forces there but it's a bulwark in their propaganda. It looks good to have U.S. troops taking care of 10 per cent of the DMZ (Demilitarized Zone) and 10 per cent of all their defense."

Wolf said the 60,000 American troops are "sitting around playing games."

Very few are engaged in combat. Most are support troops. And because of this, "We're not irreplaceable. The ROK (Republic of Korea) troops are just as good."

"The ROK army soldiers are one of the best troops in Vietnam. The U.S. troops don't even come close," Wolf said.

"The Koreans live a much tougher life and they're just tougher people. And they're fighting for their own country. The American troops don't really care. It's just a way to spend 13 months."

An American military advisory program and modernization of South Korean equipment would be more productive, Wolf said.

"That's what the U.S. is working for — save some of our men by modernizing their army so we don't have our troops over there. But I don't think the Koreans want to buy that now."

Even though Wolf said another major Korean war is unlikely, "It irritates many people that the Republic of Korea is spending so little of its gross national product on its army."

"THEY SPEND HALF of what we spend in Korea and here we're giving them aid and they're not even spending what we spend."

The South Korean economy is boosting five to 10 per cent annually, Wolf said.

"These increases indicate they're well on the way to standing on their own feet."

"It's really just a matter of cutting ties with the United States. You're going to have to force the Koreans to get used to not having U.S. troops there."

During his 13 months in Korea, Wolf was not impressed with the country.

"The common soldier doesn't seem to get much out of it. The most contact he gets with the Korean people is either driving on the streets — and that's a terrible experience because Koreans are horrible drivers — or secondly, contact with Koreans in the villages and then all they want to do is sell you something."

Wolf said the average American soldier sees only "... the bad parts of Korea. But if he's lucky enough to get stationed around Seoul, then he's in a pretty good cultural area."

But the expense of American men and money continues. Even programs to help the Korean people are sometimes hampered.

The U. S. Army constructs blacktop roads north of Seoul.

Then winter comes and "... the people need something to burn in their stoves so they start chopping up the roads," Wolf said.

"You're trying to help them out by paving their roads and they're just stabbing you in the back by taking the asphalt."

It's not hard to understand why Wolf may be disenchanted with Korea. It's easy to see why he says, "I've been there. I don't need it anymore."

Loyola Awards Advance Degree

Walter J. Molo, Jr.
A Palatine father of three was recently awarded a doctoral degree in education by Loyola University.

Walter J. Molo Jr., of 651 E. Meadow Lane, the superintendent of West Northfield School District 31 in Northbrook, received the degree last month.

Dr. Molo wrote his dissertation on "Effects of Student Activism Upon Decision-Making of Selected Suburban Elementary School Superintendents." He has been superintendent of District 31 since 1961.

He received a bachelor's degree in physical education in 1948 and a master's degree in education in 1948 from the University of Illinois. He served in the Army from 1943 to 1954.

From 1950 to 1951, Molo was director of boys physical education at Rochelle High School in Rochelle. From 1951 to 1954, he served as physical education and science instructor in Berkeley, Illinois School District 87.

In 1954, he was appointed principal of Eugene Field Elementary School in Berkeley and was principal of Whittier Elementary School in Northlake from 1956 to 1962.

He and his wife, Patricia have three daughters, Kathryn, 16, Gayle, 14 and Jill, 13.

SPRAWLED OUT SPREAD eagle on white paper that covers the floor, Lupe Martinez enjoys having her outline drawn by one of her instructors. The outline will eventually become a drawing of herself when Lupe fills the outline with clothes and paints her features on the face. The self-portrait will hang with the others already done on the hall walls of Sanborn Elementary School.

Migrants Aided By District 15

teeth and washing their hands are valued by the children.

When a teacher might forget to have them wash up, the children almost in unison quickly remind him, Mrs. Tolk said.

Because of poor educational records kept on migrant children, the program's teachers do not really know where to begin their instruction, Miss Tolk said. The children, whose ages range from four to 14, have such diverse backgrounds that normal course work is virtually impossible to initiate.

To help alleviate this problem of missing records, the federal government introduced this year the Migrant Student Transfer Form, a document to be filled out at each school a child attends to show his educational development. Although this form is still in the experimental stage, the concept is essential and has helped in this summer's program, Miss Tolk said.

DESPITE THE increasing enrollment in the migrant program, District 15 schools are serving "only one-fourth of the Spanish-American people in this area," Miss Tolk said. As the program becomes more well known to migrants in the area, it should reach more of them each year. But like anything else, the program can't expand without more funds.

The scheduled appearance today of representatives from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Washington, D.C. and the Office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction to look over the migrant children program at the Sanborn School may perhaps have some influence on the future finances of the program.

However, as long as there is some money available, the program will continue to aid as many migrant children it can handle.

Residents Object To Townhouses

Palatine based developer Lewis F. Draper, Jr., took his plans for townhouses costing from $45,000 to $65,000 to Inverness Tuesday night and received a chilly reception.

The Inverness Plan Commission held a hearing on a request by Draper to disannex a 300 foot parcel of land paralleling Roselle Road.

Residents objected to the townhouses because they felt it would open the door to apartments in the village and hurt the value of their homes and property. Inverness consists only of homes and is billed as "The Village with a Heritage."

Draper wants the land disannexed so it could be then annexed to Palatine which, it is hoped, will provide the water and sewer facilities for his townhouse development.

A. T. McIntosh and Co. owns a 16 acre parcel of land at the northeast corner of Palatine and Roselle road on which Draper wants to build the project. The property is bounded on the north about on a line with the driveway into the Inverness Country Club, on the east by Marion Jordan School on the south by Palatine road and on the west by Roselle Road.

Way Thompson, vice president and treasurer of the McIntosh firm, introduced Draper to the crowd of about 100 people in the Community held House saying the proposed development is "a much needed facility."

Draper described the condominium development as containing small cluster housing with two to four houses per building. The buildings will be one and two stories, he said, and contain from 1,500 to 2,000 square feet.

A TOTAL OF 54 units is proposed, he said, which means the density of the project will be 3.6 units per acre.

By building at this spot, Draper said, the townhouses will be isolated from the main area of Inverness but would not be far from the center of activity.

Draper said he had looked into the possibility of keeping the site in Inverness but that the cost of water and sewage facilities does not make that economically feasible.

He said he was asking for the disannexation "only because we have a need for sewer and water" facilities.

One resident charged that Draper was asking for a "warping" of the village's master plan because it called for "gradual increments of zoning" at the edges of the village.

Draper said if the firm had the ability to develop the project in the county they would do it, or do it in Inverness but it would cost six times as much to install private sewage facilities.

"Why should we worry what your cost is?" asked one resident. "It's your economic problem."

Draper said he could run roads across the 300 foot strip of land if the village did not want to annex it. If the request is denied, he told the group, "we're not going to war with Inverness."

A REPORT WAS given of a telephone poll conducted by the McIntosh firm in which 62 of 67 people contacted said they were in favor of the concept of townhouses. Names were chosen because it was believed the residents would be susceptible to the idea, it was explained.

Residents said they feared that by allowing the townhouses to be built a "precedent" would be set. They also said they wanted to protect their investments in the village.

Thompson then answered an anonymous letter circulated in the village raising questions about the development.

The loss of the land, he said, will mean less than five per cent of the total tax bill. The land is not suitable for single family dwellings, he said, and Palatine has the same building control as Inverness.

"If you think we would do anything to damage this property (the village)," Thompson said, "I can't understand it."

He called the proposed project "the highest and best use of the land."

Village officials promised to investigate the situation further and report back to their constituents.

YMCA Has Two Camp Openings

Openings are now available for two Countryside YMCA day camp programs which will be held in the middle of August, according to Herman Hertog, executive director.

There are currently 25 openings for boys and girls ages 6 through 11 at Camp Countryside II, which is located at Lake Duncan near Volo, Ill.

At Camp Countryside, III, which is located in Deer Grove Forest Preserve, there are 5 openings for children between the ages of four and six.

Camp Countryside II will be held from Aug. 10 to Aug. 21, and Camp Countryside III runs from Aug. 11 to Aug. 21. Bus transportation is included in the fee.

Registrations can now be made at the YMCA Leadership Center, 115 W. Johnson St., Palatine, or by contacting the "Y" at 359-2400, Hertog said.

Budget Hearing Set For Monday

A public hearing on the 1970-71 Palatine Park District's budget will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 3, in the Palatine Village Hall, according to Rex McMorris, director of parks and recreation.

DRAKE GRADUATES

Drake University awarded undergraduate degrees to two Palatine students during commencement ceremonies May 31.

Susan E. Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Davis of 1050 Kilton Drive, received a bachelor of arts degree, majoring in history.

Douglas S. Fulford, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Fulford of 145 S. Elmwood, received a B.A. degree from the College of Liberal Arts, majoring in biology. He is a 1966 graduate of Palatine High School.

Bridge Work Is Possible

Now that we are nearly past that "knee-high in July" time, many Palatine residents are enjoying corn on the cob, except for those who are, for one reason or another, toothless.

And for years dentists have told patients who are missing certain teeth that fixed bridge work cannot be installed. A local dentist, however, has recently returned from a post-graduate course in New York which helped him and others to overcome this age old barrier.

The dentist declined identification because his professional ethics prohibit him from engaging in any practice resembling advertising.

He did feel, however, that residents should know that permanent bridge work can now be installed on patients who were previously unable to receive such

Teen Vote Alters Pattern?

by ED MURNANE
(A News Analysis)

Substantial changes in voting patterns in the Northwest suburbs may result if 18, 19 and 20-year-olds are allowed to vote in future elections.

Although court tests have not yet upheld the constitutionality of the new voting laws, tomorrow is the first day for the younger citizens to register for the franchise.

If the courts uphold the expanded voting franchise, which was passed by Congress and signed by President Nixon, the new voters will be eligible to vote in federal, state and local elections beginning Jan. 1, 1971.

Based on U. S. census figures for 1960, the 18 to 21 group will represent less than 10 per cent of the voting population nationwide. In Illinois, 7.3 per cent of the voting population would be under 21.

However, if the younger voters show a more concerned attitude toward the franchise than do their elders, the 7.3 per cent in Illinois could be increased to as much as 30 per cent of the total votes cast.

In the four Northwest suburban townships of Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg, for example, the new voting laws could send as many as 16,000 new voters to the polls — if they register.

THAT FIGURE is based on the number of graduates from three high schools in Palatine-Schaumburg Dist. 211, six high schools in Dist. 214, and St. Viator and Sacred Heart High Schools, since 1967.

Most students who graduated in 1967 will become 21 years old this year and the 1970 high school classes consisted of students who will reach their 18th birthday this year.

Based on the past voting performances of their parents, the younger people could definitely change the outcome of elections in this area if they bother to register and vote.

That's a question that won't be answered until the first election is held. Voters between 21 and 25, who have had the franchise all along, have one of the poorest voting records, indicating that the novelty of voting is considered just that — a novelty and not a responsibility.

But the figures showing poor turnout by the 21 to 25 group are based on elections held during the 1960s, before the flurry of campus disorders and before the increased involvement in political campaigns by young people began.

If the new involvement by college-age students is indicative of civic concern, then the 18 to 21 group could have a substantially better voting record than their elders and could dramatically affect the outcome of future elections.

IN LAST YEAR'S 13th Congressional District Republican primary election, for example, only 29,000 voters cast ballots in the four Northwest suburban townships — despite the fact that the election to fill the vacant congressional seat was one of the most widely publicized elections in years.

Eight Republican candidates crisscrossed the area for five months during the summer and early fall and newspapers and radio and television stations gave more coverage to the race than they do for anything but major state and national races.

Yet only 20 per cent of the voters went to the polls and the race was determined by a slim margin of 2,100 votes.

Had 16,000 additional voters been eligible and only 20 per cent voted, there would have been 3,200 more votes cast — enough to change the outcome.

And since the younger voters probably would have been less conservative than their elders, chances are good that they would not have supported conservative Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th, who won the Republican nomination in the primary.

Crane, incidentally, opposed the new voting age.

An even greater potential for changing the outcome of an election would have existed in last year's Third District Constitutional Convention primary in which 16 candidates sought the four nominations for delegate seats at the convention.

FEWER THAN 10,000 voters turned out for that election in the four townships.

If the 18, 19 and 20 year olds had been able to vote, they possibly could have cast more votes than their elders did and, since there were several Con-Con candidates in their 20s and early 30s, the results may have been substantially different.

The key to the influence that will be wielded by the new voters is the number who register. If the younger voters are as interested in voting as President Nixon said they were when he signed the law, then election results may be determined by 18, 19 and 20-year-olds.

But in some areas, there is likely to be a backlash effect by the older voters. Conservatives generally do not favor a lower voting age and the prospect of giving teenagers a voice in electing public officials may be the spark the older voters need to improve their own voting performance.

Laymen To Give Sermons

In the absence of the Rev. Stanley Tozer, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Palatine, 800 E. Palatine Rd., five laymen will deliver the sermons for the month of August at the 10 a.m. service.

On Aug. 2, Theodore Ake, 4218 Wilson, Rolling Meadows, will deliver an address entitled "The Fourth Servant." Ake's talk will deal with man's responsibility to his environment. He will be assisted in scripture reading and prayer by his son, Theodore Ake, Jr.

The Aug. 9 service will feature Robert Ferguson, 1714 E. Jonquil, Arlington Heights, who will speak on "The Human Side of the Ledger." Ferguson will be assisted by Gary Price, 1819 N. Mitchell, Arlington Heights, in his address on Christian ethics and business.

On Aug. 16, Roy Schellenger, 1508 Gloria, Palatine, will speak on the church's relationship with a transient society. He will be assisted by Harvey

Garoutte, 152 Dean Dr., Palatine.

The Aug. 23 service will be delivered by Milford Castrodale, 611 N. Whitcomb, Palatine. Assisting him with his talk on the response to God entitled "Micah Tells It Like It Is," will be Marvin Olsberg, 1130 E. Pratt Dr., Palatine.

On Aug. 31, Leonard Murrans, 939 Ventura Dr., Palatine, will be backed up by James Groat, 529 N. Clark Dr., Palatine, in an address dealing with service commitment to church and God and called "Are Your Premiums Paid Up?"

Each of the speakers are members of the Session, the governing body of the Presbyterian Church of Palatine. "All also have a wide background in both business, church and civic affairs, and therefore we are looking forward to a month of thoughtful expression of the laymen's relationship to his church," says Gorton L. McLean, a member of the local church.

Architect Choice Narrowed

Members of the Countryside YMCAs board of directors are getting closer to selecting an architect for a Y-facility in Palatine and setting the building phase of their development program on its way.

Herman Hertog, executive director, said Wednesday that "Y" officials have met with two firms and will select one next Monday to be reviewed for final approval by the executive board.

The firms interviewed have been the Metropolitan YMCA of Chicago's architectural and engineering office, and the National YMCA's building and furnishing service.

"We feel it is very necessary that we have YMCA consultation of this matter," Hertog said, referring to the building of a Y-facility at the corners of Northwest Highway, Baldwin and Colfax Roads by 1972.

Survival Program Begun

A program to educate newcomers in the Northwest suburban area about health and safety services was launched here yesterday by Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

The program includes the visits by 35 local representatives to homes of new families in the area. Each family will be given a special kind of survival kit containing health and safety information geared to local resources that can be called on in emergencies.

The survival kits will be distributed to residents in Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village, Prospect Heights, Palatine and Rolling Meadows.

"We're distributing the kits to new residents first," said Miss Eleanor Brennan, a member of the company's community health department, "because it is people who are on the move who have the most trouble finding medical information when they get into a new community, so we're trying to help them."

THE KITS, WHICH will also be available at the company's local office at 420 Lee St., Des Plaines, includes information on where to contact a physician or obtain an ambulance in case of emergency, what to do in case of accidental poisoning, where to get first aid training, and how to insure blood credit for one year.

They also contain a safety guide for teen-age babysitters, instruction for mouth-to-mouth rescue breathing, an emergency medical information card, a first aid wall chart and a picture primer on health and safety standards.

According to Miss Brennan all the information was prepared by Metropolitan Life in cooperation with the Chicago Medical Society for Cook County.

"The Cook County Medical Association," explained Miss Brennan, "was our source of approach to the area because they're well aware of all the medical facilities which are available to people. The company is constantly involved with national medical associations because the company has been involved with medical emergency programs for many years."

Miss Brennan said, "people should review the materials and then put the various cards, guides and illustrations in the parts of the house where they would be used the most. For instance, she said, 'the first aid card should be pasted to the medicine cabinet and the list of emergency phone numbers should be kept near the phone.'"

Miss Brennan said she is confident the program will be well accepted by residents. "We've started the program in other areas and the people have been very happy with it. We've gotten many letters and phone calls thanking us."

The kit should be distributed to all newcomers within the next three to five months. After that the kits will be given to other Des Plaines area residents.

Countdown—One Day!

If you have been getting your introductory Des Plaines Herald/Day at your doorstep each morning for the past two weeks, sample delivery will cease with tomorrow's issue.

This introduction was to acquaint non-subscribers with our new all-local format, our local reporters and local columnists, and our emphasis on news and issues of concern to Des Plaines residents. If you are pleased with our efforts as an all-local Des Plaines and wish to subscribe, call 294-0640.

HE'S ONE OF THE most popular men in town, according to these Des Plaines youngsters, who purchased ice cream from Robert Bartlow, Good Humor Co. truck driver. The familiar ringing of the bells on this and similar ice cream trucks around town bring the kids flocking to get a cool treat.

IT'S A WOMAN'S world, all right. Sharon Stevens does Jonathan Anderson a favor. She is helping him eat his popsicle so it won't melt. Both Des Plaines youngsters treated themselves to one of their favorite past-times — eating ice cream.

Classes Start Sept. 1

Apollo Jr. High Ready By Aug. 15

Dist. 63's Apollo Junior High will be ready for occupancy by Aug. 15.

About 700 students may begin classes there on schedule Sept. 1, the Dist. 63 board was told Tuesday night.

Apollo, like its near neighbor, Maine North High School, had been delayed by labor strikes. It was scheduled to be completed July 1.

Apollo, which is a $13 million building on unincorporated land northwest of Des Plaines has been under construction for nearly a year. The multi-terraced structure is designed for team teaching.

The finished building will consist of centralized learning centers with library, foreign language and other labs. Students will work in academic areas surrounding the learning centers with team of teachers, according to Donald Stetina, assistant superintendent for personnel.

James Bowen, Dist. 63 business manager, reported that with the settling of the strikes, work is progressing on the site.

Carpenters are working, and many of the cabinets are completed. The water main is in, and after the meter is installed soon, water will be turned on at the school.

ROUGH GRADING of the landscape is being done and debris is being cleared, he said.

Science lab, lunchroom, and library equipment should be in by Aug. 10, Bowen said.

The board approved a $11,711.71 contract for equipment to bring food to Apollo from the Gemini school.

In other matters, the board discussed the recent vandalism and decided to consider a temporary watch service.

Five schools during the last five weeks have been vandalized, the board was told. In the latest case, 13 windows were broken last Saturday at the Wilson School.

Other vandalism had occurred at the Nelson and Melzer School.

Board president William Gurotnick raised the possibility of hiring a temporary watchman. This had been done in the past, but had proved to be very expensive, he said.

THE BUSINESS MANAGER is preparing totals of vandalism damage estimates to present to the board.

The board announced that the community would have to be taxed to pay $30,536.93 in transportation costs.

The board had acted to pay this debt from the education fund, but the last State Legislature made these kinds of transactions illegal for school boards.

Bowen said the board did not have to pass a referendum to tax on this small amount.

New teachers accepted by the board in Des Plaines are Joyce Q. Heit, Nathan, $9,650; Maurice Q. Julius, Stevenson, $11,650; Sherry L. Leiserowitz, Mark Twain, $9,550; Patricia B. Mallick, Nathanson, $9,650; Thomas J. Manion, East Maine Junior High, $9,650; Celia Mussman, East Maine, $9,650; Linda S. Parpetti, Mark Twain, $7,750; Miriam Pinhus, Stevenson, $7,500, and Perry Tasky, Mark Twain, $7,600.

City Hall Bomb Scare Is A Hoax

Des Plaines police and firemen searched the city municipal building Wednesday morning after they received an anonymous bomb threat.

State police report they received the threat from a male caller at 9:28 a.m. The man said a bomb had been planted in the Des Plaines municipal building and was set to go off at 12:30 p.m.

Police and firemen combed the area but could not find anything. According to police officials it was the first bomb threat of its kind involving the building, which houses the Des Plaines police department, courtrooms and city council chambers.

The state trooper who received the call said the man sounded as if he was in his 20's and had a deep-pitched voice.

Police theorize the man made the call from a Des Plaines phone.

Bad Day At Albrecht House In Des Plaines

The Albrecht family of Des Plaines had an accidental day last Thursday.

James Albrecht, who is a Des Plaines fireman, was in the station at 1420 Miner Street when a call came in saying a woman had been stung by a bee at 1105 Oakwood.

The woman turned out to be Albrecht's wife Lynn. While both Albrecht's were tending to bee stings, their son, David, who is six-years-old, fell out of a tree in his neighbor's yard at 994 Margaret Street.

David was taken to Lutheran General Hospital by another fire ambulance with a broken right leg.

One Killed, Two Injured

A 28-year-old Des Plaines woman received minor injuries Tuesday in an accident in Bensenville which took the life of one man and injured another.

Mrs. Nancy Street, 400 Touhy Ave., who was charged by police with driving to the left of the center line, was treated and released from Elmhurst Hospital Tuesday night.

Muhammed A. Kharrubi, 32, of Franklin Park, was pronounced dead on arrival at Elmhurst Hospital, according to police reports. Phillip Gullio, 48, of Chicago, was also released late Tuesday after being treated for head injuries according to a hospital spokesman.

The investigation of the accident is incomplete pending further interviews, according to Lt. Arthur Garcia of the Bensenville police.

Mrs. Street's car allegedly crossed over the center line on north York Road and sideswiped Kharrubi's auto.

Mrs. Street is scheduled to appear in Addison Court Sept. 22 at 9 a.m.

New Law Boosts 4-Quarter School

High School Dist. 214, which is studying the possibility of adopting some form of expanded schedule such as a four-quarter system or an expanded school day, now has a legislative tool to aid such a change.

Gov. Richard Ogilvie recently signed Senate Bill 1438 into law, which sets up a procedure that allows school districts to develop innovative schedules under state law.

In part, it states, "Any school district may, by resolution of its board, operate one or more schools within the district on a full school year plan approved by the superintendent of public instruction."

The bill also states that such boards must devise a plan so that students attend a minimum of 180 days of classes a year. Also, no teacher may be required to teach more than 185 days a year.

RODERICK McLENNAN, assistant superintendent for instruction, stressed that the legislation came up partially as a result of the Valley View 45-15 plan in Romeoville, southwest of Chicago.

That plan allows staggered shifts of students to attend school for 45 days, then take 15 days off. It is one of few such plans across the country.

McLennan said that under the new leg-

Just returned from three weeks of camping, the Alan Nicolays, 1792 Orchard St., Des Plaines, are doing a bit of reminiscing. While camping in northern Wisconsin they took a quick trip to Canada. Quick is an understatement — they stayed just long enough to enjoy a Chinese dinner and returned to the good old U.S. of A.

Other south side campers this year were the Henry Rennaus, 1649 Prospect, Des Plaines who ventured out this month for their first taste of outdoor life. Wisconsin claimed the six Rennaus for 10 days and mother Joan's only complaint, "My feet kept getting dirty and I had to wash them all the time."

Speaking of camping, I've been scouring the area for two metal dishpans to use when camping and have come up with nothing. I'm beginning to think that they are only to be found at a Historical Society from the comments of store personnel I have badgered. If any of you out in readership-land know where I can find two let me know.

Twenty-one city officials will be attending the 57th Annual Conference of the Illinois Municipal League in Springfield. They will be meeting Oct. 3-6 to discuss topics of mutual interest. One of the speakers who has been slated is Gov. Richard Ogilvie.

A Bennett Place resident has expressed her concern about the possibility of rats and snakes which children have allegedly spotted in an empty lot near her house. Her concern was whether or not they could get into her house. Jean Branding, city health officer, had no knowledge of this problem and suggested that any resident having a rat problem call her office and report it. The health officer checks out each complaint.

If you have a rat problem you probably also have a garbage problem. Rats don't remain where they are not being fed — and an open garbage can is the best place for them to put on the feed bag.

Eleanor Rohrbach, city clerk, reports that our golden agers have been expressing their interest in senior citizen housing by coming into her office and asking about it. City Hall is planning to do a survey of Des Plaines' senior citizens, their wants and needs; and is looking for the best way to get their questionnaires to the right people.

The copying machine at city hall has been affected by the paper strike. Employees have been asked to limit copying to only the essentials to conserve on paper.

This weekend is a busy one for Des Plaines. Shoppers will be finding bargains galore in Sale-O-Rama stores (and there's free parking for all). Saturday night the Elk's Club will be swaying to the strains of Hawaiian music. The Ladies of the Elks are holding a luau beginning at 8 p.m. Hawaiian dancing girls will provide entertainment. And for Sunday the Des Plaines Loyal Order of the Moose is holding their 7th Annual Corn Festival at Maine West. Drop by Sunday afternoon and have your Sunday dinner there. It's all the corn you can eat.

Last Sunday I brought our kids to Lincoln Park Zoo to see the new baby gorilla — figuring how many times in my life am I going to have the opportunity to see a baby gorilla. Not really knowing where the zoo was except that it was near the lake, I zoomed down the Kennedy (which takes supreme courage) and actually found the place. Unfortunately I didn't find the gorilla. They had the monkey house locked up and all we could see were four men on card chairs gazing intently at mother and child.

We caught a glimpse of momma gorilla swinging around but never did see the new arrival. We were, however, suitably impressed with good old Sinbad, the 600 pound highlight of the zoo. He didn't do anything but look mean and I was corrected on that assumption by Barbara Peterson, Suburban Living reporter, who explained that he's really quite docile and affectionate — just look out if he wants to hug you.

Consumer Fraud Office Set Here

A branch office of the Illinois Attorney General's Bureau of Consumer Fraud and Protection is scheduled to open in Elk Grove Village Aug. 15.

The office, manned by local volunteers, will be serving all residents in villages surrounding Elk Grove to Schaumburg and Niles where other offices are located.

Situated in the conference room of the village hall, directly behind the police station on 666 Landmeier Road, the office will be open from 9 a.m. to noon each Saturday.

This is a tentative scheduling according to Tom King, one of the volunteers, until the demand for services in the area is determined.

Other volunteers include Mrs. Jeanne Seidlein, Mrs. Pat Peacock and Miss Kirsten Reeder.

"This is a volunteer effort between the state's attorney's bureau and the village," Village Pres. Jack Pahl said.

WILLIAM KUTZA, director of the branch office, will help the volunteers in responding to complaints when necessary, he said, but would not work out of the Elk Grove office.

"The rationale behind the branch office is that local people know the consumer," he said. "They shop at the same stores and may have the same complaints."

Any type of complaints will be handled at the office, but Kutza cautioned that the customer contact the company with his problem before coming to the consumer fraud office.

"Many people are afraid to contact the company when the company may always offer a refund on bad merchandise according to policy," he said.

"There are a myriad of ways the consumer can get cheated. You name the complaint and we've had it," he said.

Pahl indicated that most complaints in Elk Grove involved door-to-door salesmen, and sales involving air conditioners.

COMPLAINT FORMS will be available at the village hall during the week for people who want to fill them out and bring them in on Saturday mornings.

Pamphlets will be available at the office with tips on how to avoid fraud. One is entitled, "20 Ways Not to be Gypped," and the other is "Your Protection Against Fraudulent Sales, Advertising and Loans."

The office will accept insurance complaints but will not handle them through the fraud office. They will be forwarded to the Illinois insurance director, according to Kutza.

The mobile unit will also be available to consumers for complaints, Kutza said. He explained that upon prior request the unit can be available any time to supplement the service of the local office.

The Elk Grove office is the only group operating on a volunteer basis, Kutza said. He added, "As far as our office is concerned we hope this will be a model arrangement."

'Fee Payment' Week In Aug.

Students in High School Dist. 214 will converge on Arlington, Prospect, Forest View, Wheeling, Elk Grove and John Hersey High Schools during the week of Aug. 17-22 for "Fee Payment Week."

The week is set aside each year for Dist. 214 students to arrange for fee payment for their textbook rental and such options as student insurance, yearbooks, athletic passes, laboratory breakage fees, towel service in physical education and cap and gown rental. Parents will receive a letter from the principal of each school with specific information on the fees.

Upon payment of his fees the student will receive his schedule and the rented textbooks. Incoming freshmen as well as sophomores, juniors and seniors already have been registered and class schedules are being developed at the present time.

For new residents of the community, counselors are on duty in all buildings during the summer to assist student registration. Parents and students may go directly to the counseling office of the school in the attendance area where they reside.

IF THE NAME AND location of the school is unknown, the information can be obtained by calling 259-5300, extension 53. It is not necessary to wait until fee payment week to register. Schedules for fee payment are as follows:

Arlington High School, 502 W. Euclid, Arlington Heights. Weekdays, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.; seniors register Monday and Tuesday, August 17 and 18; juniors, Wednesday, August 19; sophomores, Thursday, August 20; and freshmen, Friday, August 21. Those not previously registered can register from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m., Saturday, August 22.

Weed Control Plan Studied

Des Plaines is in the process of amending its weed control ordinance to require property owners to cut weeds at least twice a year.

The new ordinance, which has been recommended by the city council beautification committee, declares weeds over eight inches high to be a public nuisance and would require property owners to mow weeds each year between May 15 and June 15 and again between July 15 and Aug. 15.

According to Ald. Lois Czubakowski (5th ward), beautification committee chairman, the ordinance combines features of new weed control laws in Arlington Heights and Deerfield.

"We've been having a lot of problems with weeds, mainly around many of the industrial firms and also in large open areas near residential sections," said Mrs. Czubakowski.

She said the new ordinance will help ensure better cooperation from property owners in cutting weeds. Passage of the new law not only will help beautify the city, she said, but will bring some relief to asthma and hay fever sufferers.

Send Rep. Collier Letters To D.C.

Congressman Harold R. Collier (R-10th Dist.) this week urged constituents sending him letters or telegrams to address them to his office in Washington until Congress adjourns in October.

Collier said many 10th Dist. residents have been sending correspondence to his home in Western Springs, which then must be forwarded to Washington.

"In several instances, problems of an immediate nature, such as questions about the draft, were compounded by the delay," said Collier.

To avoid delays in receiving answers to inquiries, Collier said, letters and telegrams should be sent to: Cong. Harold R. Collier, U.S. House of Representatives, Suite 2430 Washington, D.C., 20515.

Reserve Pay Increased

Members of the Naval Reserve recently received a pay increase, Yeoman 1c Michael Drevyanko, of the Naval Reserve Information Office at 7410 W. Roosevelt Rd., Forest Park, said.

Drevyanko said that with the recent pay hike, a reservist who has a rating of second class with four years of service now received $12.37 for each three-hour drill he attends.

"IN ADDITION, a passing grade on the Navy-wide examination virtually guarantees advancement," Drevyanko noted.

Naval reservists are entitled to take a two-week "cruise" every year, and they receive full pay for the two weeks plus travel pay, it was reported.

Those recently discharged from regular Naval service seeking more information on the reserve program have been told to contact Drevyanko at his Forest Park office.

100 Attend Sunrise Service At Lake

The second annual Sunrise Service sponsored by the Interfaith Council of Des Plaines, drew about 100 participants to Lake Opeka last Sunday.

The diversified program, which stressed the theme of ecology, included a sermonette by Dick Strand, First Presbyterian Church, and musical accompaniment by a guitar group from St. Stephen's Catholic Church.

Contributions totaling $45 were collected to aid the American Indian Center in Chicago.

MINUTES AFTER this shot of the competition in the Des Plaines Park District tennis tournament this week held at Rand Park, John Ferriello, completed his quest for the championship among 16 year olds. It was one of several categories in the tournament for boys who have developed in the six week program.

Cop Negotiations Reach Stalemate

Negotiations have stalemated in the Wheeling police sick-in, and Illinois State Police remain on duty in the village. No major crimes have been reported since the "sick-in" by 15 Wheeling policemen began last Friday.

Last night at Herald deadline, 21 persons were waiting in the Wheeling council chambers for the village board to come out of executive session. Among the members of the audience who waited for board action were wives of ten Wheeling policemen.

The board went immediately into executive session at the beginning of the meeting at 7 p.m. last night. A letter from the Wheeling Jaycees was distributed to the board members but not read aloud.

Village officials have announced that talks with the policemen through the police chief will resume as soon as the 15 men "comply with the law" by returning to work.

Sgt. Gene Wolf, Wheeling chapter president of the Cook County Police Assn., said Tuesday that as far as the police are concerned "everything in this world is negotiable."

Wolf said that "channels of communication are in fact tightly closed" at the present time.

The Wheeling Jaycees sent a statement to the board asking that legal actions against the policemen be dropped. The Jaycees urged policemen to return to work immediately if the board dropped the suit against them. The called for public meetings to resolve issues with arbitration or mediation after a 10-day period.

Although the village had a court injunction issued Monday against the 15 "sick" policemen, none of the policemen has been served with a copy of it. The injunction ordered the policemen to either report back to work immediately or to a doctor in the Buffalo Grove Medical Center by 2 p.m. Tuesday. The policemen did not comply with the court order.

CCPA activities in other suburbs include the settlement of a sick-in in Skokie. In Waukegan 61 patrolmen involved in a sick-in there were suspended. In Des Plaines, city officials were re-

Thacker-Dempster Plans Reviewed, Cost: $5 Million

The Des Plaines City Council streets and traffic, and parking lot committees Monday night reviewed plans for a link-up of Thacker and Dempster streets and for a grade separation at River Rd. and the Chicago and North Western R.R. tracks.

Cost of the improvements was estimated at $5 million by Richard Beebe, representative of H.W. Lochner, engineering consultant on the project. Beebe said the $5 million price tag would include needed right-of-way acquisition and property damage costs.

The plan presented for the River Rd. grade separation would provide a bridge over the railroad tracks and Miner St. from just south of the intersection of River and Prairie to the intersection of River and Mill north of the tracks. Approaches to the bridge would be gradually sloped to a height of seven feet, minimum height of the bridge structure.

TWO ALTERNATIVES were presented for the Dempster-Thacker link-up. Under both plans, Thacker would bridge the Des Plaines River, then cut through existing picnic grounds near the river at grade level.

The first proposal then provides a bridge over the Chicago and North Western Rwy. tracks, returning the road to grade level east of the intersection of Thacker-Dempster and Busse Hwy., eliminating a grade intersection of those streets.

The second proposal would build an underpass beneath the railroad tracks and return Thacker-Dempster to grade level at the intersection with Busse Hwy., which would be maintained with the underpass plan.

Under both plans, the new road would link up with Dempster at the western edge of Rand Park, affecting some properties at the ends of Mason and Park-view streets.

Plans for the improvements have been submitted to the Illinois Division of Highways for preliminary approval.

Gardening Today

U. of I. Show Set

by JAMES E. SCHUSTER

Home gardening enthusiasts can view some 1,500 varieties of annuals and bedding plants — all carefully arranged for easy comparison and evaluation at the University of Illinois' Open House for Home Gardeners, Sunday, Aug. 2.

The open house will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the U. of I. trial garden near the intersection of Florida and Lincoln avenues, Urbana.

G.M. Foster, in charge of the trial garden, says that the things to see are the F1 hybrid seed-grown geranium varieties, including the new double-flowered types, the new F1 hedge type zinnias, the 30 entries for the All-America Selection competition. Visitors are invited to look over the plantings of shade plants between the floriculture greenhouses. These are grown in special beds and include begonias, impatiens, lobelias, pansies, exacums, torenias, edelweiss, polka-dot plant, and others.

The popularity of the U. of I. trial garden is reflected by the number of people who visit it annually, more than 50,000 persons. The garden is open to visitors daily from dawn to dusk.

Gardeners arriving from out of town should turn off Interstate 74 at the Lincoln Ave. exit and proceed directly south to the garden. Those arriving from the south on Route 45 can turn right on Florida Ave. and go east to Lincoln Ave.

From Forest Hospital

Greater Pressure On Young People

By the staff of Forest Hospital, a private psychiatric hospital in Des Plaines.

Why are more young college people, young marrieds, adolescents and school children beginning to visit psychiatrists for therapy?

Because pressures are greater today, partly because of the communications media, according to Dr. Norman Brandes, a practicing psychiatrist in Columbus, Ohio. TV and newspapers show "on the scene" reports of people being slaughtered in the war, of bloody riots and demonstrations. After seeing and reading about these events people carry their anxieties about these things to work, to school and sooner or later to the psychiatrist's office.

As a measure of "preventive medicine," Dr. Brandes feels that parents have to become more involved with their children; they should attend PTA meetings, and take part in school activities.

Underachieving students, school dropouts, and a rising suicide rate among young people are all attributed by Dr. Brandes to the pressures of living in today's society. Parents seem to be unaware that they are rendering their children out of competition by pushing them toward the parent's personal concepts of "success."

Young people have to be different. Long hair and tight jeans are one way they try to rebel. Parents should want their children to be different and not nag them because they don't conform to their own standards of behavior.

examining an ordinance recognizing the CCPA as a bargaining agent for that city's patrolmen in view of the current strikes in Wheeling and Waukegan.

In Palatine, policemen were scheduled to vote on CCPA membership yesterday but the vote was held up by the absence of election examiners.

Graham, Carroll To Be Honored

Illinois Senators John A. Graham, R-Barrington, and John W. Carroll, R-Park Ridge, will be among 38 Republican state senators honored Wednesday at a dinner at the Conrad Hilton Hotel.

U. S. Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., will be the main speaker at the dinner honoring 38 Republican state senators.

All but three of the 38 are seeking reelection and funds from the dinner will help defray campaign costs.

Graham is being challenged by Democrat Paul Shanley of Elk Grove Village and Carroll is being challenged by Democrat Alan Scheffres of Skokie. Both Republican incumbents are heavily favored to be reelected.

Columbia, Md.: 'It's New Breed'

COLUMBIA, Md. (UPI) This "new town" under construction in the Baltimore-Washington corridor is the first of a new breed of American cities, incorporating architecture and engineering which its developers say serve man and preserve nature.

When completed, around the end of this decade, Columbia will house more than 110,000 persons in some 30,000 dwelling units spread out over 15,000 acres and within easy reach of a downtown area with stores and offices, and with jobs for more than 60,000 breadwinners, city planners predict.

Transportation? This important need will be met by an advanced concept in public mass transit. It is labeled by the

Bendix Corp. which designed it, the "personal rapid transit system" (PRTS.)

It uses small personal vehicles operating automatically on an elevated guideway designed and engineered to move people quickly and efficiently about the city "without detracting from the esthetics of the surroundings," according to system engineers.

They explained the PRTS will use "an advanced form of vehicle management and control," offering both scheduled and unscheduled service and handling peak loads of 5,000 passengers per hour.

For unscheduled or "demand-activated" service a passenger will electronically "call" for a vehicle, select his destination on a computer console and travel nonstop wherever he wants to go.

NSSEO Denied Park Space

A plan by the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization (NSSEO) to expand classes for emotionally disturbed children hit a setback Monday night.

The Arlington Heights Park Board refused to approve an application by NSSEO to use Camelot and Frontier Parks NSSEO applied for the use of the multi-purpose rooms, gymnasiums and offices of the two parks to accommodate about 24 students.

NSSEO is an organization created by a joint agreement between high school Districts 211 and 214 and their feeder elementary districts. The agreement was designed to provide special education classes for children in the schools in the four townships of Wheeling, Palatine, Schaumburg and Elk Grove.

IN RECOMMENDING the refusals, Thomas Thornton, director of parks and recreation, told the board that the amount of time requested would conflict with the park district's programs. These activities include playschool, a program for pre-school youngsters, exercise classes for women and other programs during the day.

The request included using the park facilities at the two parks from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Sept. 1 through June 15. NSSEO proposed paying the park district a total of $6,000 for the rental of the four classrooms.

As an alternative, the park district offered one room which could be used as a classroom at Frontier Park, Kennicott Drive and Palatine Road, and one at Pioneer Park, 500 S. Fernandez Ave. The park board told Thornton to contact John Wightman, executive director of NSSEO, and inform Wightman of the alternate proposal.

Wightman said he was disappointed when he was told of the refusal "but we realize the parks have other uses, too."

CLASSES FOR emotionally disturbed youngsters in the area are "brand new for us in this number," Wightman said.

Wightman said the application was made for the two new parks which were completed this spring because "They're exciting buildings." The facilities fit in with what NSSEO wanted.

The multi-purpose rooms are designed with movable partitions, allowing the rooms to be divided into two classrooms which could be used for a class of six. The gymnasium would provide a place where the "kids could burn off some steam," Wightman said.

The office space requested would have been used by support personnel who supplement the regular teaching staff to work with smaller groups and individual students.

In a letter which accompanied the application, Wightman stated,

"GENERALLY, the academic progress of these emotionally handicapped pupils has suffered, and their presence in the regular classes has interfered with the learnings of other pupils."

One advantage of using the parks is "they are outside a regular public school building in which these children have met with frustration, anxiety and failure," the letter stated.

Wightman said NSSEO will have to look for other facilities and added "We don't have any place for the kids to go yet."

If no other facilities are available, Wightman said he will check into the park district's suggestion of using only two classrooms.

St. Mary's Grade School Renovated

St. Mary's Grade School in Des Plaines has undergone a complete renovation prior to the opening of school.

Twenty-five men volunteered to remodel, paint, enlarge the school library, install fire doors, and thoroughly clean the entire school facility.

The volunteer labor made possible a savings of more than $4,000. The actual cost involved only 45 gallons of fire resistant paint, shelf lumber, dry wall and doors. All the nails were donated by a parishioner.

lard, Jim Perkins, Jim Smith, Jim Szafarski, Tom Tobin, Ken Weber and Nick Weidner.

Four of the volunteers are carpenters by trade. The balance of the team consists of a wide variety of backgrounds: sales, printing, nuclear physics, accounting, air travel, landlord, customer relations, newspaperman, manufacturing and a few high school students.

Newly remodeled, the school interior is now more attractive and, more importantly, meets the requirements of the Des Plaines City fire code, spokesmen said.

A fact worthy of mention, according to a group spokesman, is that at least two of the volunteers belong to churches of other faiths.

Interfaith cooperation has helped to open St. Mary's for 1970-71, the spokesman said.

Bible Class Starts Monday

Vacation Bible School for ages 4 to 90, will be held 9 to 11:30 a.m. at the Des Plaines Bible Church, 946 Thacker, next Monday through Friday. Young people, ages 4-14, will meet in their various classes. There is no registration fee.

The Junior High department will feature the Rev. Craig Massey to speak about, "Science and the Bible." Tuesday, Aug. 4 the young people will bring a sack lunch and have a beach party following class, under the supervision of the youth pastor, Dale Anderson.

On Aug. 6, they will bring a sack lunch for a picnic and miniature golf outing. There will be a small charge for these activities.

This summer, for the first time, there will be a full morning program for women, consisting of crafts from 9 to 10 a.m., coffee break, Bible study from 10:15-11:15 a.m. taught by Pastor Massey, and a question and answer period the last 15 minutes. All are invited, regardless of Church affiliation.

Under the guidance of Rev. Dale Anderson, the craft program will consist of water color painting, tote painting on tinware, and various kinds of needle work. There will be qualified teachers, quality materials, complete samples and models.

Rev. Massey conducts weekly Bible classes during the school year. During the past year, the attendance of each Bible class has been 75 to 100 women, representing every major faith.

Con-Con Ok's Expanded County Executive Power

The president of the Cook County board of commissioners will become the chief executive officer of the county and will be elected on a county-wide basis if a Constitutional Convention proposed approved this week is ratified by the voters later this year.

The proposal for greater executive power for the county board president had been made to Con-Con by County Commissioners Carl Hansen of Mount Prospect and Floyd Fulle of Des Plaines.

Under their proposal, the county board president would not run for a commissioner's seat, as he does now, and would have the authority to appoint committee chairmen and run the various county departments.

Fulle and Hansen told Con-Con's local government committee in May that Cook County government has operated "inefficiently and ineffectively" because there is no clear division between an executive and legislative branch.

Another county-related proposal approved by the convention this week would allow Cook County voters to decide if they want to retain two county districts (Chicago and suburban) or if they want to adopt single member districts for commissioners.

Currently, the Cook County board includes 10 Chicago commissioners and five suburban commissioners.

Scheffres Calls For New Programs

Alan Scheffres, Democratic candidate for the 4th District Illinois Senate seat, this week called for new programs to provide job training for welfare recipients.

"As a state senator, I would call for an imaginative and effective program to provide funds for job and skill training to provide the opportunity for those persons on public assistance to become useful members of our society and earn a living," said Scheffres in a statement issued by his campaign office.

"I would also provide more funds for day care centers to allow public aid mothers to have a place for their children to stay while they work," he said.

Scheffres, a Skokie resident, is challenging Sen. John W. Carroll (R-Park Ridge).

Scheffres said funds should also be provided to hire additional welfare workers to reduce the case load of each worker and make them able to discover fraudulent cases more effectively.

"Since my opponent is the chairman of the joint legislative advisory committee on public assistance, it is his responsibility to initiate proper legislative action to reduce public assistance and in this effort he has failed miserably," said Scheffres.

"He has continually blocked attempts to hire additional case workers so that the individual case worker load can be reduced, thereby allowing them to ferret out any possible frauds among those claiming public assistance," he said.

According to Scheffres, the state has not made enough effort to hold down costs of expanding welfare rolls.

"The overall figures, as shown by Governor Ogilvie's 1970 budget message, showed there has been a steady increase in the public aid caseload since 1966," he said. "Until that point the caseload was actually decreasing due to proper management of public aid under a Democratic administration."

"My opponent has failed to speak out for legislation and funds for job training that would allow public aid recipients to become gainfully employed and thereby get off the public aid rolls," said Scheffres.

"He has failed to fight for and obtain funds for day care centers for the care of those children whose mothers receive public aid so they can obtain gainful employment," he said.

"A public aid recipient must be given the opportunity of facing the future with dignity. He must be given a chance to become a productive member of our society," Scheffres said.

Entire Town Project Told

CHICAGO UPI -A joint venture to create a new town in Lake County, Ill., at a cost of $250 million was announced Monday by developers of the project.

A spokesman said the venture is being undertaken by Sears, Roebuck and Co.; Malco, Inc., a subsidiary of Marshall Field & Co.; and Urban Investment and Development Co., a subsidiary of Aetna Life and Casualty.

The site for New Century Town is located 30 miles north of Chicago, and construction is scheduled to begin next year, the spokesman said.

The project will be built in two stages. The first stage will be a commercial center and will require about 18 months to construct.

Sears and Field's will have major stores in the center when it opens. Leasing agent for the center will be Draper and Kramer, Inc.

The second stage will include a regional town center, residential neighborhoods, schools, recreation area and research development centers.

Hate crabgrass? You'll love CLOUT!

Just spread CLOUT on your lawn and it's good-bye crabgrass. The ugly stuff starts to curl up and disappear within days. One or two follow-up applications at weekly intervals will polish it off completely.

Yet CLOUT is kind to good grass — lets it grow merrily on to fill in where the crabgrass was. Result? A thicker, handsomer lawn — without ugly crabgrass.

Drowning Statistics Told By Red Cross

More Chicago area persons have been reported drowned in swimming and boating accidents already this summer than lost their lives during the entire 1969 summer season, according to the American Red Cross.

Red Cross reports that 50 men, women and children have drowned in the Chicago metropolitan area in the period from April 1, 1970 through July 13, as reported in local news media.

The 45 males and five females who lost their lives in the water exceed the total of 42 persons reported as drowned in the six-county Chicago metropolitan area from April 1, through Labor Day weekend, 1969.

With six weeks left until Labor Day, 1970, Lake Michigan water temperatures at 70 degrees and rising daily to peak in mid-August, a Red Cross water safety expert fears that the 1970 drowning toll might even exceed the terrible count of 92 persons drowned in the period from April to Labor Day, 1968.

DR. J. JAN GUND, chairman of water safety for Mid-America Chapter of Red Cross, and department chairman of girls' physical education and health for Niles Township North High School, points out that the 50 persons drowned so far this summer include 21 persons who hadn't even intended to go swimming.

"These 21 persons drowned when they found themselves unexpectedly in water and either could not swim well enough to escape, or had no one near to help them out of the water," Dr. Gund said.

The 21 persons include those who were fishing from the shore or a pier and fell into the water, tumbled out of boats, or were thrown in when boats overturned.

"They also include the tragedies of small children playing near the water and falling in," Dr. Gund said. "There have been six drownings of youngsters five years old or less who fell into wells, ponds, pools, and lakes."

It is equally unnecessary to lose 25 persons in the age bracket of 11 to 20 years, Dr. Gund feels. "Obviously, these persons are old enough to have learned how to swim well enough to save their lives in the water."

Only three of the 50 persons were swimming in pools where there would presumably be lifesaving equipment handy, even if there were no trained lifeguards, Dr. Gund said.

She believes this points out two facts. One is that Chicago areas' trained lifeguards are just about 100 per cent effective in spotting swimmers in trouble and saving their lives. Secondly, parents must make absolutely sure that their youngsters swim only in approved swimming areas where trained lifeguards are on duty.

Dr. Gund also believes that a review of lifesaving techniques might keep summer, 1970, from setting a grim record for the Chicago area.

"IT CAN BE easy to aid a swimmer in trouble if you remember three words, extend your reach," Dr. Gund explained.

"Use a tree limb, a towel, knotted clothing, a lifesaving ring, a boat oar, anything to extend your reach to the swimmer and help the swimmer by keeping yourself firmly anchored on shore or in the boat. Do not go into the water to save a swimmer in trouble unless you are a trained lifesaver. This can result in two drownings."

Dr. Gund believes that knowing how to give mouth-to-mouth resuscitation might save the life of a friend who goes under while swimming. Red Cross has printed sheets describing how to give mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

Dr. Gund cites the case of a four-year-old Chicago boy who nearly drowned in a Wisconsin lake, but was saved by mouth-to-mouth resuscitation given by a lifeguard.

"It makes us happy to know that this little boy isn't Chicago area's 51st drowning of 1970."

Veterans' Vane

Q — My only income is $200 a month military retirement benefit based on longevity. I am without dependents and, due to a non-service incurred disability, I am totally disabled and permanently bedridden. Am I eligible for VA pension benefits?

A — If you waive your entire retirement benefit, you may be eligible for a tax-free VA disability pension of $210 a month, which includes an aid and attendance benefit. Contact your nearest VA office.

Q — I am a veteran rated 100 per cent for service-connected disabilities incurred during peacetime. Am I eligible for out-patient treatment of ailments not related to military service?

A — No. You are not eligible unless you had some wartime service.

Q — I am attending school under the G.I. Bill. What must I do to qualify for the increased educational allowances under the recent amendment to the G.I. Bill?

A — No action is required on your part. The VA will automatically see that you receive the increased payments.

Q — I am 65 years old and plan to retire soon. Can I convert my National Service Life Insurance to the new Modified Life Plan?

A — No. The Modified Life Plan insurance is not available after six months have passed since your 60th birthday.

Q — I am a Vietnam veteran who plans to start a small business. May I use the G.I. loan for this purpose?

A — No. G.I. business loans are not available to Vietnam veterans. However, you might try the Small Business Administration.

Voters League Invites Interested Women

A poolside social gathering is being given by the Des Plaines League of Women Voters Aug. 26 at 9 p.m. for women interested in joining the group. The party will celebrate the 50th anniversary of the League and will honor Mrs. Chester Tash, 1710 Campbell, an original suffragette, who hopes to attend.

Those interested in attending the social or receiving more information about the League should contact Mrs. Howard Wightman, 827-2675.

Membership in the Des Plaines chapter is open to women of the community over the age of 18.

In launching the league's 50th anniversary celebration, President Richard M. Nixon declared, "For 50 years the League of Women Voters has provided Americans in every state with information on candidates and issues, and it has furnished a non-partisan platform from which all candidates can be seen and heard. These activities have strengthened government and have helped to sustain the public weal."

ALSO IN HONOR of the anniversary, members of the League of Women Voters of Des Plaines have a special interest in the new six-cent stamp that will go on sale in Adams, Mass., Aug. 28, 1970, commemorating the 50th anniversary of the ratification of the 19th amendment (women's suffrage.)

Adams, Mass. was selected for the First Day of Issue of the Women's Suffrage Stamp because it is the birthplace of Susan B. Anthony, pioneer crusader of women's rights. Miss Anthony was founder and president of the National American Woman Suffrage Association which became the League of Women Voters in 1920.

A suffragette skit will highlight the pool party Aug. 26 and refreshments will be served.

Mrs. Robert Swearingen applies her nursing talents to projects as well as people. A registered nurse, Mary Swearingen is currently in her second term as president of the Des Plaines Jaycee Wives and is looking forward to a busy fall schedule with contagious enthusiasm.

"Even before school starts, we hope to conduct a crime prevention program, in conjunction with Forest Hospital, for teenagers at Maryville," she said.

The 26-member Jaycee Wives group has applied for a $3,200 grant for the Project Action Now program from the Criminal Justice Dept. of Illinois, which must be approved by the Illinois Law and Enforcement Committee.

Two one-half day seminars for the 150 teenagers at Maryville would be followed up by Forest Hospital staff counseling on drugs, personal feelings, roles in society and alcoholism.

MARY, 39, is a native of Decatur, Ill., and took her nurse's training in Springfield. A resident of Des Plaines since 1960, she was one of the original nursing staff at Holy Family Hospital, and her medical and health orientation is reflected in some of the many activities of the Jaycee Wives.

The group held the fifth and final mental health workshop July 28 at Forest Hospital. Open to the public, the workshop series was conducted by Dr. Robert Willford, executive director of the post-graduate center at Forest Hospital.

Madame President

The Jaycee Wives'

Multi-Talented President

Mary referred to the workshops as "designed to help achieve emotional health and personal growth."

Two members of the Jaycee Wives have lost children from leukemia. Project Sandy Sue perpetuates their memory with donations of toys and shoe boxes filled with craft materials to bedridden children at Holy Family Hospital.

"WE'VE ADOPTED a hall of girls at Maryville," Mary went on, "and we take them on field trips and each girl gets a $5 gift and an individual shopping trip on her birthday, so that personal contact is established."

The Jaycee Wives are also sponsoring two handicapped children at "Handi-Camp" run by the Park District in Des Plaines.

All of the activities of the wives' group, which meets on the fourth Thursday of each month, are not of such a serious nature. As Mary noted, "We exist primarily to be of help to the Jaycees and the Chamber of Commerce."

The club has run concession stands, passed out voting literature, and delivered phone books, among other helpful tasks. Members will be manning (or woman-ing) a "Corn-cession" at the Des Plaines Oktoberfest, which will be held the weekend of Sept. 17-19.

ON NOV. 2, the Jaycee Wives will present an "all age" fashion show at Henrici's Restaurant. Clothes from Madison's for everyone from children to grandmothers will be modeled, and one of the models will be Anita Pedersen, Miss Des Plaines Valley.

Mary Swearingen and her fellow members are making all the craft items which will be sold at the luncheon. They include ornaments, gingerbread boys, bead flowers and even a lamp. The other current officers of the Des Plaines Jaycee Wives are: Mrs. Reed Richert, vice president; Mrs. Robert Chomko, secretary; Mrs. John Kargl, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Dan Morava, treasurer; and Mrs. Lee Broviak, director.

In addition to her Jaycee Wives responsibilities, Mary Swearingen finds time to teach pre-natal classes at Holy Family Hospital and to serve as the newly elected director of the Mothersingers group of Des Plaines.

SHE IS THE MOTHER of Mary Beth, 4, who was adopted from the Cradle, and of Timothy Robert, 3. Her husband, Bob, who is also from Decatur, is an industrial salesman for Metal Lubricants in Chicago.

Mary derives her greatest satisfaction from helping others. Her favorite song, "People," says that "people who need people are the luckiest people in the world." She considers herself a very lucky person, and those who meet and work with her feel fortunate, too.

Infant Mortality Urgent Problem

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ask any parent life's greatest joy and the answer will be — "the birth of a healthy child."

At the opposite end of the emotional gamut there is the greatest grief. Ask any mother who has had a baby born dead or any parent who has lost a child the week after birth or before the first birthday.

America, the richest land in the world, doesn't have the world's best record when it comes to infant mortality, a term that describes the number of infant deaths in the first year of life per thousand live births.

In 1968, the latest year for which figures are available, the infant mortality rate was 21.7. In 12 other nations, the infant mortality rate is better, with Sweden having the best record at 12.9.

DR. FRANK FALKNER, associate director of the National Institute of Health, calls infant mortality an urgent national problem.

In a report in "Children," journal of the U. S. Children's Bureau, Dr. Falkner says the high rate of infant mortality "indicates that the health of mothers and babies in this country is needlessly and grossly jeopardized."

"No matter how good the medical care system is, mortality rates cannot be lowered below a certain point unless changes are made in the social environment, such as improvements in housing, income and the quality of education available to the poor," he said.

He also disputed the assumption, drawn both here and abroad, that the major reason for the high infant mortality rate in the United States is that the infant mortality rate among black babies is double that among white babies.

"SINCE ONLY 15 per cent of the U.S. population consists of black people, were that part of the population excluded from the rates, the U.S. infant mortality rate . . . would be only two points lower," he said.

Dr. Falkner also is professor of pediatrics at the Georgetown University School of Medicine in Washington, D. C., and coordinator of growth studies for the International Children's Centre in Paris.

"Of all the factors involved," he said, "the nutrition of families is the one most amenable to immediate improvement, but a national commitment is required to attain this goal."

'Show-off' Clocks Replace Drab Ones

Many new types of "show-off" clocks are replacing the drab appliance-type clock in America's kitchens.

Cordless decorator wall models, electronic table styles, and compact self-powered models that silently "flip digits" have all entered the kitchen following development — starting in the 1960s — of the completely equipped decorator-style kitchen.

The once all-white kitchen has been revolutionized by color, creating the need for appropriately matching clocks, Bu-ova researchers report.

Last year, a large number of the estimated 6 million, "show-off" clocks sold entered the kitchen for the first time.

For A Happy Life

It's Fun in July To:

1. Look for a new bathing suit that's been reduced.
2. Spend a couple of hours in an air-conditioned public library.
3. Decide to accept the next time you are asked to take on a new task or hold an office in a favorite organization.
4. Make yourself a full-length hostess gown for August parties.
5. Use paper plates and cups for supper every night for one week.
6. Arrange to take your children to a farm for a three-day visit.
7. Teach your children the wonderful effect and the value of frequent smiles.
8. Note this by Tiruvalluvar, a poet of India: "For a kindness done without expecting reward, heaven and earth are hardly enough recompense."

South had no trouble counting to eight tricks but his partner had put him in game and, somehow or other, he had to find a way to get nine.

There was no chance for a fourth trick in spades. Whichever opponent held four spades was going to throw one away. Hearts were even more hopeless. He didn't have time to set up dummy's.

A defeatist would have run his top cards and settled for one down but South was a firm believer in giving the cards and his opponents every chance to help him.

That meant he had to get East and West to play clubs for him. The Statue of Liberty play was indicated and South led a low heart to his 10 at trick two.

West was in with the queen and went into an executive session. What did South have for his bid? Nothing in spades. Surely the king of hearts and something in clubs. Perhaps the ace. Probably just four diamonds, all of which would wind up as tricks.

West decided that it was up to him to start the club suit, since otherwise South would have time to set up a heart trick.

By that time, West had thought himself into the losing line of play. He led the three of clubs. East rose with the ace and led the suit back. East knew that South didn't hold the king of hearts but was sure that he held the ace and jack.

West was in with the king and could have saved the day by playing hearts, but West was still acting under the wrong idea. He led another club and South had his nine tricks.

Des Plaines Falls To Arlington, 11-7

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

Arlington Heights, which finished in a tie for first in the District Nine standings, used a variety of means to win enough games to take the pennant. But against Des Plaines in the American Legion District Nine tournament, Arlington found another way to get runners on base and around to the plate — hit batsman.

Post 208 batters were hit by pitches on four occasions, three in the first inning in which Arlington posted six runs, and held on to hand Des Plaines an 11-7 setback in a game which covered two days.

The contest was started on Monday afternoon but was halted because of rain at the end of seven innings. The game was continued on Tuesday.

By scoring single tallies in the seventh and eighth innings and a trio in the ninth, Arlington Heights salvaged a game which was thought to be sewed up in the first inning.

Jim Bokelmann, who hurled the first seven innings, was given credit for the victory. Bob Leja and Gary Anderson came on in relief in the final two frames.

Mike Losch, who was Des Plaines' most effective pitcher of the four sent to the mound by coach Keith Koentopp, was tagged with the loss. Losch yielded only one run in five and two-thirds innings of work.

The run that Losch gave up came in the top of the seventh. Gary Salm led off the frame for Arlington with a single. He went to second on a single by John Brodman and scored on a base hit by Dave Lundstedt. That made the score 7-6.

Arlington Heights tallied a run in the eighth against Frank May as Larry Geyer walked, went to third on Bokelmann's ground rule double and scored on an error.

Three more runs were scored by the eventual winners in the top of the ninth on singles by Brodman, Bruce Frase and Bob Fitzgerald, a hit batsman and a pair of fielder's choices.

Arlington Heights jumped out to a 6-0 lead in the first inning on three singles, three hit batters and a walk against Post 36 starter Ed Johnson and reliever Losch.

Salm got things started for Arlington with a single to left field. A walk to Brodman was followed by Lundstedt getting hit by a pitch to load the bases.

Fitzgerald was hit by a pitch and Salm scored. Mike Moffo was then hit by a pitch and Brodman scored. Larry Geyer slapped a single to center which scored Lundstedt and Fitzgerald and that was all for Johnson.

Bokelmann met a Losch pitch for a single and Moffo and Geyer sprinted to the plate after each had advanced on a wild pitch on the previous pitch.

Des Plaines stormed back with three runs in the bottom of the first. The initial stanza lasted 35 minutes.

Gary Pleickhardt opened up the frame with a walk and went to second on a single by Gabino Galindo. Rich Olson singled home Pleickhardt and then both Olson and Galindo advanced on a passed ball.

Galindo raced home with Des Plaines' second run on a fielder's choice and Olson scored moments later on a single by Kevin Chesney.

Des Plaines scored its fourth run in the next inning on Olson's booming 345-foot home run over the left field fence. Two pitches prior to the home run pitch, Olson slammed a 330-foot blast which was foul by a few feet.

Des Plaines tied the score at 6-6 in the sixth frame.

After two were out, Frank May walked and Gary Pleickhardt reached base on an error. Galindo rapped a single to center field to score May and Olson singled to score Pleickhardt.

After Arlington Heights made it 8-6 with runs in the seventh and eighth, Des Plaines tallied in the bottom of the eighth.

May singled to right field and went to second when Pleickhardt was walked. May and Pleickhardt advanced on a wild pitch and Galindo lined a single which barely evaded third baseman Brodman and May scored.

Anderson, who gave up the single to Galindo, settled down to retire the next two batters with Post 36 runners perched on first and third.

Arlington Heights then nailed down the triumph with three runs in the top of the ninth.

The win advanced Post 208 further in the winner's bracket while Des Plaines was dropped into the loser's bracket in the double elimination tournament.

Arlington Heights was scheduled to meet Logan Square while Des Plaines was slated to meet Park Ridge Wednesday night. Results were unavailable at press time.

TE VEGA, driving winner of one division of the $50,000 Governor's Cup here on opening day, might return this Saturday for the Laurence Armour Handicap. The determined son of T. V. Lark can really ramble over the Arlington grass.

The $30,000 Laurence Armour will be contested at 1-1/16 miles on the turf course, perfect conditions for Te Vega if he ships in Harvey Peltier's dynamic duo of Doc's T. V. and Famed Prince will try to prevent Te Vega from running off with all the money.

Watch out for Chief Sun Dance if he answers the call this Saturday. The Arlington turf is hard now and lightning fast. With his brilliant speed, "The Chief" could lead all the way.

If it weren't for two invaders from the east, both from the stable of Ogden Phipps, Robin's Bug would have won two nice grass stakes victories in a row. On July 3 the consistent colt lost a close one to Phipps' Pass the Drink in the $30,000 North Shore Handicap. Last Saturday he couldn't hold the lead in the stretch and finished second to Phipps' The Pruner in the $100,000 American Derby.

The Pruner ran a tremendous race. Robin's Bug was four lengths on top coming into the home lane. The Pruner then unleashed a determined drive under Braulio Baera to wear down Robin near the wire. Baera took his charge under the finish line with three-quarters of a length advantage, only two-fifths of a second off Mr. Leader's track record for the 1-1/8 mile distance.

Corn Off the Cob, even money favorite in the American Derby, faired very poorly in his first attempt over the grass. He ran forwardly for a half-mile then dropped back steadily to finish last. One never knows how the grass course is going to affect an American race horse. Even the best of them often show a keen dislike for the turf.

Baera had a good day at Arlington Park last Saturday. In addition to his expert ride aboard The Pruner in the feature, he rode Pass the Brandy to a new track record for one mile and seventy yards on the grass in the sixth race. Quite a feat, because Pass the Brandy was well-banded on both of his rear legs.

Horses to Watch

No Coast — Four-year-old is going to win a $350 claiming race on the main track. Getting the feel of things at Arlington Park.

Broken Song — Mare is tough in short races. Bishop has her ready to ramble.

Cab Driver — Closes like gangbusters in $10,000 claiming races. With an alert beginning will be right there next time.

Prefers the main track

New Scope — Mare is coming to form. She's going to win a grass race very soon. Might have hit last week, but drifted out in the stretch.

Petare's Bid — Six-year-old mare is as game as they come. Runs near the front but still has plenty left in the stretch. Runs for $350 claiming price.

Aclamado L.L. — South American-bred likes the turf course. Can come from way behind in allowance races. His record is not very consistent, but seems to be flashing favorable signs right now.

Ventajoso L.L. — Another South American horse who comes down the stretch with a tremendous rush. Barely missed last week. Right there on the grass next Saturday.

Racing History

Perhaps the most influential thoroughbred in the history of American racing and breeding was Lexington. His exploits on the race tracks during the 1850's were unequalled. In those days they ran four-mile heats and the mighty Lexington blazed to victory in these marathon events on race courses from New York to New Orleans.

Lexington's arch rival was a colt named Lecomte, who possessed tremendous speed. These two hooked each other on three different occasions at Metairie Race Course in New Orleans. Each race turned out to be a memorable moment in early American racing.

In their first meeting, the Great State Post Stake, Lexington ran away from Lecomte to win two four-mile heats in a row. The track was ankle deep in mud. The following week Lecomte took his revenge. He in turn won two consecutive four-mile heats, setting a new American record of 7:26 in the first heat.

Before their third encounter, Lexington was sent out alone to race against Lecomte's record clocking. Using fresh horses as pacers for each mile, the great Kentucky-bred champion lowered the record to 7:19 1/2.

On April 14, 1855 the two titans met for the final time. Lexington almost completely distanced Lecomte in the first heat. The New Orleans champion was in obvious distress during the last mile, causing his owner General Wells to withdraw him from the second heat. Lexington walked over for his final victory.

Lexington was slowly going blind throughout his brilliant racing career. This forced his retirement after the last triumph over Lecomte. "The Blind Hero of Woodburn" was returned to his native Kentucky where he became the most successful stallion in history. He led the American sire list for sixteen years.

Joggers Club Holds Meet

The Des Plaines Park District held a series of distance races at Maine West High last week.

Paul Plas won the junior high division race as Dan Barringer took second, Mike Klebe third, Dave Detzner fourth and Dave Henderson fifth.

Beth Berringer was first in the women's division with Mrs. Herman Glitz and Mrs. Walter Henderson tied for second.

The senior men's division race was won the Bill Barringer with Ralph Johnson second, Walter Henderson third and Herman Glitz and Charles Kovar tied for fourth.

In the men's division, Tom Detzner was first, Steve Melling second, Bob Glitz third, John Plas fourth and Al Crisafulli. Brad Frost was first in the frosh-soph race with Scott Sedlak second, Tom Ole-nicki third, Curt Heinrichs fourth and Scott Johnson fifth.

Don Anderson won the varsity division race with Tom Duntmann second, Dan Long third, Kevin Bartlett fourth and Steve Henderson fifth.

The Des Plaines Park District and Joggers Club meets nightly at 7 p.m. at South Park on Monday's, West Park on Wednesday's, Lake Park on Friday's and the Maine West track on Tuesday's and Thursday's.

All residents are invited to participate in this free program.

Three meets remain on the schedule. A track meet will be held on August 6, a cross country meet on August 20 and a road race on August 25.

The Way We See It

Control Pendulum

No one can honestly dispute that the problem of crime in this country has been swelling at an unthinkable rate, and that the ordeal for police in our cities worsens by the day.

Neither can anyone reasonably disagree with the logic of Sen. Charles Percy, who endorsed President Nixon's District of Columbia anti-crime bill with this observation: "The pendulum has swung too far. We have emphasized too heavily the rights of criminals and taken too lightly the rights of society."

These are grim facts. Crime rates spiral, and we've been guilty — for want of a better expression — of coddling criminals, of leaning so far to insure their individual rights that we've hurt ourselves.

Now the drift is going the other way, as it should, but in so moving, it has opened up a whole new menace to all of us. We are caught up in a backlash that may snap back too far.

The seeds are in Mr. Nixon's D.C. crime bill, given final Congressional approval last week.

There is no question that the anti-crime legislation was needed in a city with 56,000 felonies last year, including 7,071 armed robberies, 287 murders and 336 rapes.

There also is no question that much of the legislation, particularly in the area of court reorganization, should go a long way toward attacking that city's problem.

The danger lurks in the controversial provisions tacked onto the bill, particularly that for so-called "no-knock" entry by police and court-ordered preventive detention.

The provisions are dangerous on their face, and dangerous because the D.C. legislation may become the model for similar laws across the nation.

Under the no-knock section, police with search and arrest warrants would be allowed to enter premises without announcing themselves. A protective clause says the police must have cause to believe evidence was likely to be destroyed, or their lives were likely to be endangered, or the suspect was likely to escape if they delayed.

Under the preventive detention section, defendants charged with dangerous or violent crimes could be held without bail for up to 60 days if a judge found their release would pose a serious threat to community safety.

With the qualifying protective clauses in both provisions, a reasonable argument might be made for their necessity. Police, after all, have it tough enough.

But we don't think that's enough justification. We agree with the critics of these provisions that they fly in the face of some of our essential rights as citizens, among them the right to privacy in our own homes and the presumption that any of us must be presumed innocent until proven guilty.

Putting such provisions down on paper as written law is a dramatic threat to those rights, and even with the best of intentions, the way is opened for abuse. The potential for that abuse is incalculable if the D.C. plan does become a national model.

There are better ways to fight the crime problem — through stronger enforcement of existing laws, through stricter application in the courts, through expansion of the courts where backlog is a problem. But not through over-reaction.

Opportunity Could Knock Twice

by BARRY SIGALE

Beauty is in the eyes of the beholder.

I wish I had four eyes.

That's what it would have taken to envision all the lovelies who participated in the Miss Illinois pageant last week at Aurora. Among the featured attractions was Miss Des Plaines Valley, Anita Pedersen.

The 19-year-old Indiana University co-ed, a resident of Park Ridge but representing both that town and the City of Des Plaines in the pageant, stole the show at Aurora among fellow contestants and pageant officials from other communities but failed somehow to hit it off right with the judges.

INSIDERS WHO were at the contest most of last week and who watched the swim suit, evening gown and entertainment segments of the show, felt the former Maine East High School girl had a clear shot at the finalists category. But she fell short.

It's difficult to explain why one girl is chosen over another at a pageant such as this. There were 36 contestants entered from throughout the state, some of which excelled over the others in looks, talent and poise.

Not always does it prove that the choice of the many comes out on top. There were several impartial spectators at the pageant who would have voted for Anita at the drop of a hat.

She had won them over, according to Reed Reichert of the Des Plaines Jaycees, sponsors of Miss Des Plaines Valley. And this fact proved a bitter pill to those supporting and rooting for the local miss at Aurora and on WGN television.

This is not to imply that Lynn Ann Alexander, Miss Springfield, who was chosen as Illinois' finest at the pageant, was not a deserving queen. She had that certain something that makes a local girl rise to the heights and the five judges liked what it was.

WHEN YOU consider that several former state pageant winners and Miss Americas won the title in their second or third tries, such as Miss Indiana who made it to the top of her state's pageant after three efforts, it is not surprising that Anita may get another crack at the crown.

Anita agreed that the experience she gained in the pageant this year will put her in good stead for a similar try next year. Last year's Miss Des Plaines Valley, Sharon Navrital, made it to the top ten in her second try in 1969.

The local Jaycees will consider the possibility of running Anita next year after an evaluation is made of her week at Aurora.

The unofficial consensus is that she should get another shot at being Miss Illinois.

My Dear Children...

by RICK FRIEDMAN

Earlier this week, Louis Cassels, UPI senior editor, had a piece in the Herald called "A Letter For An Unborn Child."

It related a letter which a young couple composed to their yet-unborn-but-soon-due child, outlining their fears about the rough world into which they were bringing it.

It set me to thinking about what I could possibly write to my own four born-children, ages 11, 8, 6 and 2 whose world presently encompasses the home, schools, parks, playgrounds and swimming pools of a changing suburban community I won't even recognize by the time they have come to maturity in it.

IN THIS SUMMER of 1970, their own world is a good and happy one of piano lessons, swimming lessons, dancing lessons, art lessons, finger painting, library books, Lasso, The Wonderful World of Disney, Sesame Street, Captain Kangaroo, the Elk Preserve in Elk Grove, the children's shows at Ravinia, bike riding, the Chicago Cubs, baseball cards, planting flowers, building bird houses, catching lightning bugs and taking care of a collie named Norbert (the name came along with the dog).

Write them a letter about the larger world of which they will take their place someday? Why?

THEY ARE ALREADY aware of many of the concerns over which we adults express so much alarm.

I was smoking at the age of 13. But I doubt that any of my own children will ever pick up the habit. The older ones are already conscious of the dangers of cancer and cigarette smoking and are quick to remind me of it when I pick up a butt. (They make my smoking around them quite difficult.)

The older ones are already aware of pollution, even to the point of reminding my wife and me of what our old car is doing to the air we breathe. Littering to them is something for which you get arrested. They are unhappy about what poisoned streams have done to fish.

The horrors of drugs are beginning to enter their consciousness and I can only hope they become even more aware of them as they grow up and learn how drugs can destroy their healthy young bodies. They already value those bodies, which is a good start.

War and killing on any level is already something bad to the older ones, something to be avoided. Vietnam, riots and assassinations have done that job on their minds.

These subjects do not have to be pounded by me or my wife into their young heads. Through the mass media and through school teachers which they like and admire they have been made aware of what the larger world is beyond the confines of their own suburban summer. (They even like school, which puts them way ahead of me for starters.)

Josh, the eight-year-old, talks about going to Africa when he grows up and taking care of animals there.

Leah, the 11-year-old, talks of diving off the high board and having girlfriends sleep over.

Jessie, the six-year-old, talks of rocks she has collected, flowers she has planted and pictures she has painted.

Rachel, the baby, talks of food and "schvimming" in the small, backyard pool.

THEIRS IS A happy world of summer and it's a good place for them to be right now. The winter of their lives will arrive soon enough. I could no more sit down and write a letter about what it will be like than my own parents could have for me in the summers of 1932, 1938, 1939 or 1941.

As my four children will find out when that winter comes and they set off on their own, I've always been and always will be a lousy letter writer.

Volunteers Help Parks

by ALAN AKERSON

Buffalo Grove residents are determined to improve their parks. Last September they approved the formation of a park district by a margin of 5 to 1.

Now they are showing their determination another way. Volunteers are playing a major part in both developing new parks and improving the ones already here.

Last Saturday about a dozen adults and children answered the park district's plea for volunteers to spend a day cutting and clearing weeds and refurbishing the playground equipment at Emmerich Park.

THE JAYCEES have been responsible for adding to the village's park facilities. Recently they dedicated a new baseball field in the southwest corner of the village. The dedication came after three years of work and almost $2,000 of Jaycees funds were put into the site.

A much bigger and more expensive park project now being undertaken by volunteers involves the purchase of playground equipment and the development of the first park in the Lake County part of the village.

The project is being done by the Strathmore Homeowners Association. It involves the installation of playground equipment at Longfellow School and the development of a park on a 5.6-acre site on Arlington Heights Road just north of Checker Road.

Two SHA members, Larry Johnson and Eugene Gaines, are in charge of the project. Johnson is handling the Longfellow portion, Gaines, the Lake County park portion. They are using funds collected by the SHA during a fund raising drive held in May, and another held less than a month ago.

About $1,500 was raised in the drive. About $1,100 of that will be spent on playground equipment for the two sites.

GAINES' PLANS for the Lake County site include much more than playground equipment, however. He wants to install two ball diamonds, a football field and a picnic table area.

And, if his plans are successful, the cost will be minimal. Grading for the site to be done for no charge by a construction company. The necessary backstops and goalposts will be made of utility poles he is planning to get from Commonwealth Edison Co. — again at no charge.

As soon as the playground equipment arrives and certain others matters are handled, the two men will be ready to install it.

At that point, both will once again need volunteers. Judging from the volunteers that helped clean up the park last weekend and the ones that helped collect the money, Gaines and Johnson will have little trouble finding yet a few more Buffalo Grove residents who want better parks for their village.

Pride And A Green Folder

by JAMES VESELY

George Sammet, Sr. is a grey-haired gentleman who carried pride and dignity in a green leather folder.

Sammet lives at 1 N. Chestnut Ave., in Arlington Heights with his wife, Hanna. He is easy to talk to because he has a mild, unassuming manner and a quick smile that opens up his face.

The green leather folder Mr. Sammet has under his arm this week is something that few people see in their lifetimes. It was sent to him by his son, Brigadier General George Sammet, Jr., U.S. Army, and it contains the certificate to General Sammet's Legion of Merit.

GENERAL SAMMET was awarded the Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster after his service as the chief advisor to the First Republic of Korea Army, the largest tactical fighting force in the free world.

The Legion of Merit is one of this country's highest decorations, but it is just one of the numerous awards General Sammet has received in his years of service since World War II.

The general's father opened the green folder carefully and displayed the scroll-work and ribbons and fancy lettering that spoke of distinguished service on behalf of the United States.

Jim Vesely

George Sammet, Sr. said his son has served in places like Turkey, Korea and Germany and wanted to go to Vietnam but the Army thought he should be in Washington, D.C.

"HE'S BEEN EVERYWHERE," the general's father said. "He started out in the artillery when he graduated from Illinois in 1942 but I guess now that he's a general he gets involved in a whole lot of things."

George Sammet, Sr. said his son went through the Second World War and then got out of the army for a while.

"They sent him a telegram asking him to come back into the army and he asked me what to do. I told him he had to do what he thought was right," the general's father said. "I guess I would have liked to see him in business or something else but he said he wanted to do this, to go back to the Army."

And then, two years ago, George Sammet Sr. and his wife Hanna went to Washington to see a four-star general and the Secretary of the Army pin brigadier general's stars on their son's shoulders.

General Sammet is now on the list of men who will be made major generals in the United States Army. The promotion will probably mean the culmination of a career that began as a Second Lieutenant fresh out of the University of Illinois. It will mean high responsibility after years of wars and foreign assignments and dismal army posts, and that tough decision 25 years ago to stay in the army when everybody else was getting out.

THE GENERAL'S father said all of that and closed up the thick green folder that held the Legion of Merit. I asked him if his family had a long tradition of military service and he said no, he had tried to join during World War I but had been rejected.

"But now I'm the father of a general," George Sammet, Sr. said. "I can hardly believe it."

The Lighter Side

He's Really 'Astute'

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — My friend Rogers, who took a course in elementary psychology about 30 years ago, claims he has discovered a new personality-intelligence evaluation technique that is both simpler and more reliable than existing methods.

He explained it to me the other day as we were driving along Pennsylvania Avenue past the vast excavation from which the new $100 million FBI Building eventually will emerge.

"By their bumper stickers ye shall know them," said Rogers, who tends to speak in proverbs when he discovers something.

"What does that mean?" I said. "I was just thinking of all the money that the FBI wastes on security checks and similar investigations," he replied. "In many cases, it could find out everything it needed to know about a person just by looking at his car number."

"PEOPLE REVEAL a tremendous amount of information about themselves on their car windows and bumpers."

"Properly analyzed, bumper stickers provide deep insights into political instincts, prejudices, economic status, education, age, religion, ethnic and regional backgrounds and cultural standards."

I said, "How does bumper sticker analysis work?"

"It works like a political poll," Rogers said. "By examining a few key precincts, pollsters can project the vote for an entire state."

"There also are key bumper stickers that an analyst learns to recognize and interpret," I said. "Could you give me an example?"

"SURE. SEE THAT car just ahead of us? It has a Harvard decal on the rear window, an American flag decal on the trunk and an 'America — Love It or Leave It' sticker on the bumper."

"The car is owned by a middle aged, second-generation American who makes pretty good money as a construction worker and admires Spiro Agnew. He barely finished high school but he has a son in Harvard."

"He was proud of the boy at first. Then a generation gap developed. The kid let his hair grow, became an antiwar militant and got busted for smoking pot. Now his old man is ready to disown him."

I said, "That's amazing. How could you tell that was what the stickers meant?"

"The guy driving the car lives down the street from me."

Announce Leases

Gladstone Realty, with offices in Elk Grove Village and Des Plaines, has announced industrial leases negotiated by Gladstone.

Graphic Printing Ink Co. has leased 5,600 square feet at 2670 American Lane, Elk Grove Village, for a five-year term.

Edai Industries, Inc., a subsidiary of Edai Co., Ltd., Osaka, Japan has leased the 5,000 square foot building at 400 Bennett, Elk Grove Village. This building was previously occupied by H. W. Wakeer Co., who expanded into larger facilities, as previously reported by Gladstone Realty.

D & B BUILDING Products Corp., leased 3,950 square feet at 3210 Nordic Road, Elk Grove Township, for a five year term.

Pentagon Tool has leased ,850 square feet at 3206 Nordic Road for a five year term. This completes Gladstone's leasing program for the Nordic Road multi-tenant building in Elmhurst-Algonquin Industrial Park.

Sex Education:

Some Call It A 'Filthy Communist Plot'

This is the second of a two part series by the Des Plaines Herald/Day examining the issues involved in the sex education controversy and a look at a local group who plans to study the sex education program at elementary school Dist. 62 in Des Plaines.

by LEON SHURE

Since 1968, opposition to sex education in public schools has increased and become more vocal.

The National Education Association (NEA) in a report in May, 1969, said that an "organized attack" against sex education existed in 27 states, including Illinois. Several cities nationwide, including suburban La Grange have been forced to scuttle or postpone sex education programs.

Groups which have formed include Sanity on Sex (SOS), Mother's Organized for Moral Stability (MOMS), Citizens for Parents Rights, and People Against Unconstitutional Sex Education (PAUSE).

Best known is the Movement to Restore Decency (MOTOREDE) committee, a Des Plaines organization which exists in the Chicago area as the Greater Motorede Committee. It claims 92 local organizations, including groups in almost all the Northwest suburbs.

Motorede began with a call by John Birch Society founder, Robert Welch for an "organized, nationwide, intensive, angry and determined opposition to the now mushrooming program of so-called sex education in the public schools."

He said the programs are "subversive monstrosity" and said the American majority was "not yet even aware of this filthy Communist plot."

This plot, he has said, is to destroy the morals of youth and to keep them obsessed with sex.

The Sex Information and Education Council of the United States (SIECUS), often a target of anti-sex education groups, and accused of communist affiliations, has called Motorede a "cause on which to pin a recruitment program." This was quoted in the April, 1970 interview in Playboy Magazine of Dr. Mary Calderone, director of SIECUS.

Opposition to sex education has taken the form of bills in Congress, and before 19 state legislatures, though a Gallup poll in 1969 indicated that 71 per cent of American adults favor sex education.

Robert Andre, chairman of the new local group says that Motorede believes that there is no such thing as a good school course on sex education "Sex education is the right and the responsibility of parents."

"One of the biggest problems we must face is that too many parents have been abandoning their responsibilities for the training and guidance of their children," Andre said.

"Although some parents have neglected to instruct their children in this delicate area, the solution is not to usurp the right of every parent. The answer is to increase parental responsibility and strengthen the family relationship, which are among our basic objectives."

The committee in Des Plaines also plans to expose what Andre described as "a strong relationship" between teenage music and the alarming increase in drug addiction and sexual promiscuity.

"Many of today's popular songs are nothing less than invitations to try dope, experiment with sex and participate in revolutionary activity.

Pornography, sensitivity training, the elimination of positive values in the arts and other current issues will be examined by Motorede, he said.

"Our objective is to restore, to even brighter luster, the morals, values, customs and traditions that have preserved and strengthened our nation and its people."

Filthy language, squalid dress, lewd behavior and disrespect for authority are becoming almost commonplace, he said.

"Motorede will do battle with these forces of evil on every front."

Andre said one reason he has been drawn to Motorede is his interest in protecting his grandchildren. He fears sexual experimentation is encouraged by school programs and he believes that students might be conditioned to do immoral acts.

The Dist. 62 program, which Andre said would be studied by his group, is currently being revised and will be issued publicly soon, according to assistant superintendent Robert Renke, who said a committee has been studying the subject.

The committee consists of Mrs. Betsey

Kuzich, principal of Terrace School, and chairman; Robert Cowell, assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum; Henry Lashway, principal of Algonquin Junior High School; Glen Helms, principal of Orchard Place School; Mrs. Lillian Olson, school nurse; Mrs. Virginia Bowles, Central School primary grades; Mrs. Jane Wright, Orchard Place School, intermediate grades; and James Nero, chairman of the Physical Education Department.

According to the introduction to the curriculum now in use, "Sex is omnipresent in our society and children cannot be kept ignorant. Children are getting their information by all means of communication and much of this is unreliable and over-stimulating. Sexual maturity comes to all and is an occasion for changes that must be carefully explained."

"Children will acquire sex information one way or another; the choice is whether it shall be accurate and wholesome or harmful misinformation."

Renke said that sex education has been part of the various curriculums at the school for at least 15 years. The community is always notified of changes and school officials speak before PTAs and church groups about the sex education program, he said.

The district has sought, officials have said, to avoid using materials which they felt might be criticized or which might have concepts not suitable for youngsters. Their intent, they say, is not to take over the job of sex education from the home, but to supplement it.

All materials in use are available for public examination, in the principals' office of any of the schools. They haven't as yet received any requests to withdraw children from the program.

Teachers are given in-service training. Guidelines emphasize, good communications between parents and teachers, and more than biological facts. An understanding of sexual morality, self-restraint, personal well being and community well being are emphasized.

Grades kindergarten through third contain classwork to "build a wholesome attitude toward sex," help each child know and understand the differences between boys and girls, and the elementary facts of reproduction.

Grades four through six, are encouraged to stress a wholesome, healthy attitude toward sex, and to continue to develop an appreciation of the family as the basic unit of society, and "to appreciate and respect the miracle of life."

On the junior high level, emphasis is on proper social attitudes in boy-girl relationships, scientific background in growth and sexual maturity, and the establishment of respect for human relationships and social mores, sexual morality, high ideals and the understanding of wholesome family life.

'Too Many Parents Are Abandoning Their Responsibilities'

Job Office Bridges Hiring Gap

What do you say to a butcher who wants to change his line of work, if he likes to repair things and build model airplanes?

"We signed him up as a trainee to be an airline mechanic, and after a year of training he was hired by a local airline and has been there ever since," said Victor Gombotz, employer relations representative at the Illinois State Employment Service, Northwest Suburban Office, at 601 Lee St., Des Plaines.

Building bridges between the person looking for a job and an employer is important to Gombotz and others on the staff. "To meet this goal, they place many people in training programs designed to upgrade their skills or vault them into another line of work. They're filling employment gaps at the same time, in the towns from Schiller Park north to Wheeling and Barrington and as far west as Schaumburg.

"We work primarily with suburban people," said Gombotz. "Although many training programs are geared to the needs of a poverty area, we also respond to the needs of people in our area. We contact as many agencies and companies as we can through the Illinois Migrant Council, the Cook County Office of Economic Opportunity (CCOEO) and other groups, to set up training classes where there is a need, but many companies have developed training programs on their own."

TRAINING is a boon to people entering new jobs or skill levels, but the training programs evolve only after industries take a hard look at the labor market and admit that they can't afford to let a segment of the population go without jobs, said Gombotz.

Counselors at the employment office usually spend three to five sessions with a job-seeker before determining what employment field he'd like to break into. After basic information is gained about the person's background, aptitude and interest tests are given.

"It's all in the interpretation," said Gombotz. "Test results give structure to their ideas. Then we discuss specific jobs they could go into."

Gombotz estimates that between 100 and 200 people are usually involved in federally funded programs through this office, although this does not include a large number of people placed in training programs paid for by local industry. "Training programs run the gamut," said Gombotz, from licensed practical nursing, child care assistants, material handlers, to airplane cleaners.

Four training packages, through the National Alliance of Businessmen (NAB) and the Manpower Development Training Act of 1962 (MDTA) are most used by job-seekers through the Des Plaines State Employment Service, in addition to Project Transition programs for retiring servicemen. In the NAB programs, government and private industry form a partnership to help the disadvantaged, as certified by the state employment service, with job orientation and training. Under a contract program, a company assigns a contract to train a number of people, and is reimbursed by the federal government for the cost of the program. In the non-reimbursable programs, a company pledges to train personnel on its own.

ON THE JOB TRAINING is one of the MDTA training programs, and according to Gombotz, the easier to implement. Employers can submit a training program, for persons who are disadvantaged or have lost their jobs because of automation. If the program is acceptable they will receive funding for it. Institutional training programs represent another type of MDTA training. One example is the nurse training program in Niles Township, where local recruits, certified by the state employment service, on the basis of economic need and other factors, receive 48 weeks of training at no cost.

One local company slants its training toward disadvantaged people with a minimal background for factory type jobs, including suburbanites. "The people working for us represent a cross-section of the population," said Jim Deering, personnel director at Littelfuse, Inc., in Des Plaines, manufacturer of switches, relays and television components.

"We've found that the training benefits the suburbanite as well as the person from the inner city."

"We're interested in what a person can do, rather than where they live or whether they're a member of a minority group. Although we have actively recruited the disadvantaged, most of these people now come to us on referrals from their friends," he said.

"Before we started the formal training program, we didn't have the time to give our new employees personal attention," Deering said.

"If they went into the plant and their foreman gave them a job without much explanation or attention, those first few days were hell on earth."

"THROUGH THIS TRAINING program, we have reduced scrap on the job, retained more people and our workers develop a sense of pride in their work by knowing what the job entails," he said.

The program at Littelfuse includes on the job training for 30 to 60 days, and approximately 10 hours of classroom discussion. In addition to company policies, machine operation and safety, the counseling reaches into other areas of the employee's life, such as personal problems which could affect work.

Maryville Academy in Des Plaines is filling another employment gap through training. Maryville is conducting training classes for child care assistants under the JOBS-70 program of NAB.

"We recruited among the disadvantaged for this program," said Jack LaMotte, program director. "We wanted to hire from the local community, and in this area many of the disadvantaged are Spanish-speaking. We weren't sure what the response to this would be, but we got the word out through local agencies, and we had more than enough applicants for the training program. We feel that the need for this type of training is firmly established in the area," said LaMotte.

EIGHT WOMEN are now in training as child care assistants at Maryville, in a 15-week training program which started in June. Maryville has a one-year contract to train 20 people, and all but one are women.

"Our training program has been modified since it began," said LaMotte. "Our recruits spend 15 hours a week in training sessions including lessons in English, and 25 hours a week are spent on the job. From the time they start the program, they're guaranteed a job here."

It's a beautiful way for agencies and businesses to become involved in solving community employment problems," said LaMotte. We have other employment needs here, in addition to child care assistants, and we may go into other job training programs in the future."

Bringing people into the labor market and keeping them permanently employed are two big reasons why local industries and agencies are establishing training programs. As they realize their employment needs, many cash in on the experience of Gombotz and others at the state employment service to set up the programs.

PERSONALIZED ATTENTION is the key to training new employees at Littelfuse, Inc., in Des Plaines. Above, Bill Friebohn, training director, shows Mrs. John Cummarato of Prospect Heights how to do an assembly job. The company started the training program to reduce scrap and retain their employees as they develop a sense of pride in their job.

A 'Neurotic' Success

by WILLIAM VERIGAN
NEW YORK (UPI) — "I'm really a very sick, highly neurotic and problem-infested person," complained Paul Zindel.

Most aspiring playwrights would love to have problems like his. Ever since his six-year-old play "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds" became the biggest off-Broadway hit of the season, Zindel's most pressing problem has been fighting off salesmen who want to cash in on his new wealth and movie producers who want to add to it.

"It's more fun than I ever had sitting around while the producers try to outbid each other for the film rights," Zindel admitted. "My mother always said that play would be a hit."

His mother, the 44-year-old playwright, said, was very much like the domineering, neurotic woman who destroys the lives of her two daughters in "Marigolds." She died several years ago.

"OUR HOME WAS a house of fear," Zindel said in an interview. "Mother never trusted anybody and ours wasn't the kind of house someone could get into by knocking on the front door. A knock at the door would send my mother, sister and me running to a window to peek out."

"Mother was a girl in her 20s when my father left," he added. "She used to have to fight to get the allowance from him and tried to keep us together, moving from apartment to apartment. She worked at everything, nurse, real estate, a hot dog stand and inventions, but we usually lived in a shambles."

The Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Thursday July 30, the 211th day of 1970 with 154 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase.

The morning star is Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

On this date in history

In 1916 German saboteurs blew up ammunition dumps at Black Tom Island near Jersey City, causing an estimated $22 million damage.

In 1942 President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed a bill creating a female branch of the Navy called the WAVES.

In 1967 there were reports from behind the Bamboo Curtain of a mass purge of the Red Chinese Army.

A thought for the day: British Statesman John Morley said "You have not converted a man because you have silenced him."

His play has been bouncing around for six years since it was first produced at Houston's Alley Theater. It was done on television four times and at the Cleveland Playhouse, but Zindel had to take a job as a chemistry teacher on Staten Island in New York City while he was waiting for it to become a hit.

Besides "Marigolds," he has written a television drama, "Let Me Hear You Whisper," about a cleaning lady in a vivisection laboratory who talks to a porpoise, and he is currently working on the final details of "Miss Reardon Drinks a Little," a play about three old maid schoolteachers scheduled to open later this year.

"Perhaps it's not coincidental that his plays all seem to deal with women," Zindel explained. "When I write, I hear the voices of my mother and sister. I'm writing from their voices in a metaphor I know about. The only time I was away from them was when I was in a tuberculosis sanatorium for a year and a half, and the only times I saw my father was occasionally on Christmas."
